BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

TOO TENDERHEARTED

Too tenderly a heart may beat; Then its possessor foully cheat. —Old Mother Nature

Of all the feathered folk who come and go or stay the year through none are more beloved than Mr. and Mrs. Little Friend the Song Sparrows. Little Friend calls Little Friend the "Sunshine Bird" because he brings so much brightness into the lives of all his neighbors. No day is so cold and drear and gloomy that he cannot, and does not sing his silver notes seem to come straight from a happy heart, and find echo in the hearts of all who hear them. So the little brown "Sunshine Birds" have many friends wherever they may be.

As soon as the news got about that Sally Sly the Cowbird had left an egg in their nest the neighbors hurried to offer sympathy and advice. One of the surprising things in life is the discovery of how many people seem to know just what those in trouble should do, and are glad to tell them just how to do it. Yet those same people when in trouble themselves often are quite helpless.

"Throw that egg out. That is what I did to one in my nest," advised Mrs. Robin.

"That is what I tell her we should do. It isn't our egg. It doesn't belong in our nest. If it hatches there will be one more mouth to feed, and we will have enough mouths to feed as it is," said Little Friend.

"Somehow I can't do that. Eggs are too precious. How would you like it if some one took one of your eggs, or broke one, or threw one out of the nest? Perhaps Sally Sly doesn't know how to build a nest, so the poor thing does the best she can for her baby-to-be by leaving the egg in any good nest she can find," said tender-hearted Mrs. Little Friend.

"She is just plain lazy. That is why she doesn't make a nest of her own. She doesn't want to be bothered with babies. Even if she can't build a nest there are plenty of old nests that nobody will use. She could find one without much trouble. But she wants to be gadding about having a good time, not sitting still on her eggs. She hasn't patience enough for that. The trouble with Sally Sly is that she doesn't have any mother love. Yes, sir that's what is the matter with Sally Sly. It takes a lot of mother love to work and worry as we mothers must to raise a family. Sally Sly simply hasn't got it," declared Mrs. Robin.

"She is just plain selfish. She thinks only of her herself, and like most selfish folks she cheats herself. They do it every time," said Kitty the Catbird.

"In what way?" asked Mrs. Bluebird and added, "I don't quite see how doing just what one wants to do, having a good time and no cares or worries is cheating one's self."

"The trouble with Sally Sly is that she doesn't have any mother love. Yes, sir that's what is the matter with Sally Sly. It takes a lot of mother love to work and worry as we mothers must to raise a family. Sally Sly simply hasn't got it," declared Mrs. Robin.

"I've been thinking," began his little mate.

Peter Rabbit calls Little Friend the "Sunshine Bird"

"I was afraid of it," interrupted Little Friend. "That egg should have been thrown out before you had time to do any thinking." "But one more in the family wouldn't be much extra work," said Mrs. Little Friend. "It really wouldn't. I'm sure we wouldn't mind it. If that was a baby bird instead of just an egg would you throw it out? You know you wouldn't even think of doing such a thing."

Contract Bridge

THE FUTILE FINESSE

The declarer lost out with today's contract by taking a finesse that could have been easily avoided.

East dealer. Both sides vulnerable.

Bridge hand diagram showing cards: A J 10 6, A 8 7 2, 10, Q 9 4, K 9 8, 5, A Q 8, 6 3, A 10 7, S, Q 7, J 10 4, J, K 8 6 3 2

The bidding: East South West North 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ 3 ♠ Pass 4 ♠ Pass Pass

Considering the great length of West's diamond suit, a lead of that suit should not have appeared very attractive, but West was not an imaginative player and opened the diamond five. East put up the ace—and he had to be very careful about his return! Obviously, a diamond return would have led South discard a spade while ruffing in dummy; a club return would have made it easy for South to lose only one club trick; and a spade return was patently suicidal. Hence, East made a good decision when he led back his singleton trump—his partner's king was trapped anyway.

After drawing the adverse trumps, South led the spade queen for a finesse. East won and promptly discarded (quite futilely) two clubs on the long spades, then led the low club toward his own king. West made the excellent play of unblocking the club jack on the king, and then there was no way for South to avoid the loss of two club tricks to East. Down one!

South should not have touched the spade suit! His right play was to lead a club from dummy to his king after drawing trumps, then to continue with clubs, cheerfully letting East take his two tricks in that suit. Now East would have to return a diamond, allowing South to discard a spade while ruffing in dummy; or a spade that would be equally satisfactory to South.
