A CHANGE OF PLANS
Chapter 86

Millie had been writing to Humphrey, since he told her where he was. But her letters were short, vague, anything but affectionate. The first definite thing she told him during their correspondence was that she had borrowed money to send her mother back to Wisconsin.

"This brought a money order within a week, and a letter. 'From what they write me from home, and what you said about selling the house,' he wrote, 'I thought you had plenty. Gosh, I had a shock when I read you'd been borrowing. I'm making a little now. I've been saving up to go furniture for the house. I wish you'd come. Millie, it's built now, and looks awful cozy.' Humphrey wrote as he talked sometimes, Patty was rather touched by his letter."

"He says he put up white curtains at the windows to make it look homey," Patty said as she read through the pages. "A lot he has about making a place homey; I'll bet he leaves his clothes lying all over the place, came from Millie. 'He's sent enough to pay Mrs. Munn, and a little over.' Patty said with relief. She had never owed money, and she hated to do so even to as good a friend as this was. Millie said nothing, she expressed neither pleasure at being able to pay the debt, nor reluctance to part with the cash. But she came back with some blue satin one day and spent some time making her sister what she termed a "breakfast jacket," which she made with a great deal of white feather trimming. 'It's for your trousseau,' she explained in pleased tones. 'I suppose when you're married and needn't work you'll have breakfast in bed, so you'll need a breakfast jacket.'"

Sulphur Clears Up Rough Or Red Skin
Face, Neck and Arms Easily Made Smooth, Says Specialist

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation begins at once to soothe irritated skin and heal eruptions such as rash, pimples and ring worm.

It seldom fails to remove the torment and disfigurement and you do not have to wait for relief from embarrassment. Improvement quickly shows. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Metho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

plained in pleased tones. 'I suppose when you're married and needn't work you'll have breakfast in bed, so you'll need a breakfast jacket.'"

Patty tried to look as pleased as she felt Millie expected. But it never occurred to her that her life after marriage would be intolerable enough to include breakfast in bed. As for a trousseau, the whole affair was as yet so vague she dared not even think of such small feminine things. Paul's mother was making herself exceedingly unpleasant every day.

Humphrey had borrowed some money and was, as he called it, "investing." Meantime he began sending Millie small amounts every week or so, enough to keep the tiny flat going, with Patty's salary added.

"It's cheaper now mother isn't here," said Millie once, soon after Mrs. Parke had left. "But it wasn't. For Millie had to be the housewife. That is the two girls got breakfast, and Patty left for her office. Such housework as was done, which was very little, Millie did at various times during the day. Patty, to save expenses, ran in for luncheon, usually Millie was out. In the evening they got dinner together. Sometimes Paul put herself out to cook."

But Paul, truly the spoiled child, preferred a good restaurant to the small family parties and the badly cooked meals. Of course, he preferred Patty alone, though she only went when Millie had other plans.

"I have a really good plan this time," Millie said one evening when the three were together in the flat. "There's no use trying to be an actress or do any theatrical or movie work without special training. But anyone can be a model."

"A model?" Patty showed most intense surprise. "Not an artist's model," Millie went on. "But a model to show off clothes. I know a girl who is in a wholesale cloak and suit house, all things they make, and walk up and down the show room, so the buyers can tell what they look like. She gets $25 a week. She's going to introduce me."

"Millie, the Beautiful Cloak Model," Paul put in and grinned broadly at his paragon.

"Oh, if you're going to make fun of me!" Millie answered crossly. "Anyway, clothes don't matter. I mean it isn't necessary to have a beautiful face. Millinery models have to be beautiful," she rattled on as though she knew all about it. "They have to show off hats. Patty, Irma says she could get you a place as quick as anything, and they pay $30. That's more than you make now."

"Patty" Paul began with exaggerated seriousness, "if I find you deserting the uplift of the working classes, for the uplift of the working men and women, or destroy their class solidarity."

MRS. ELVA CAULKINS

"I have gained thirty pounds since taking Tanlac and never felt better in my life than I do now. Mother says she hasn't seen me looking so well since I was a girl, said Mrs. Elva Caulkins, 303 Bland St., Utica, N. Y.

"For eighteen long years, I suffered from stomach trouble, and during all that time I hardly knew what a well day was. As I almost starved myself trying to avoid indigestion, I got out of all I was hardly more than a shadow, and was so weak, I was barely able to drag myself out of the house. As a result of my long suffering I became almost a nervous wreck."

"This was the condition I was in when I started taking Tanlac, but today I am strong and well, feeling and looking like a different person from what I did a short time ago. It is no wonder to me that so many people praise Tanlac to the skies, and by leading druggists everywhere."

"I'm not," Paul said with mock humility. "Never mind, Millie, only raise you because I like you. Put on your things, both of you. We've got 15 minutes to get a taxi and go to a show."

"No thanks, I've some friends coming later," said Millie, which obviously untrue excuse Patty accepted with reluctance, and Paul introduced her.

Left alone, Millie went from a mixture of loneliness, anger and nervousness. Then, impulsively she got up, put on her coat and hat and went out to a nearby telegraph office.

She wrote a short message to Humphrey, "Wire me money to come."

Then feeling better, she turned and walked home again.

Plan Of Krupp Works Rejected

ESSEN, Germany, Feb 28—Un- ion labor has rejected the plan proposed by the Krupp works, under which workmen were to have purchased a special issue of stock with their savings and were to receive certain administrative privileges, looking toward cooperative management of the plants, according to the Krupp announcement.

The resolution in which the plan was rejected by the Krupp shop soviet declares that the Krupp management intended to "unload" stock on the workmen and by creating "capitalists" among the laborers destroy the solidarity of the working classes.

The labor leaders believed participation in the management of the plants, as stock holders, could in no manner lead to better economic relations with employers, and would enlarge the status of a manual laborer in relation to the "brainworkers". Radical, Socialist and labor newspapers give the Krupp firm credit for an attempt to alleviate the "social problem" by promotion of a big family of employees and employers but nevertheless, generally approve the action of the Essen labor unions and express the hope that German labor will stand together against any "schemes" to capitalize the

STEFANSSON'S BOOK WINS

WASHINGTON, Feb 28—The Grant Equities prize, it was announced tonight, has been awarded to Vilhjalmur Stefansson by the National Geographic Society for his book "The Friendly Arctic," which was adjudged the outstanding geographical publication of 1921 by the society's research committee.

The book, a narrative of five years' exploration and scientific research by the Canadian Arctic expedition, was regarded as especially significant because of its presentation of a new view of that region, its climate, and its pasturage resources, showing that Arctic Canada can be added to the world's area of food production. Important information, it was added, also was given regarding human diet and nutrition, and Arctic exploration was placed on a new basis through Mr. Stefansson's experiences.

The prize, it was explained, is contributed by Grant Equities, of New York, a member of the society's board of trustees, and is awarded only on the publication of exceptional books dealing with geographical subjects. Mr. Stefansson in 1919 received the Hubbard gold medal from the organization for notable exploration.

Why Chilly Weather Brings Rheumatism

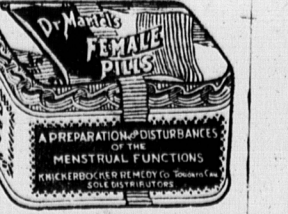

Says Skin Pores are Closed and uric acid remains

Rheumatism is no respecter of age, sex, color or rank. If not the most dangerous of human afflictions it is one of the most painful. Those subject to rheumatism should eat less meat, dress as warmly as possible, avoid any undue exposure, and, above all, drink lots of pure water.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually setting in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast, each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acids of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia water drink which overcomes uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.
