Declaration Would Provide United Front Against Aggression.

LIMA, Peru, Dec. 21 (AP)— Argentina through the Pan-American Conference into an uproar tonight by rejecting a completed draft of a declaration on continental solidarity and defense and focusing in her own resolution with the implementation of the delegates could take it or leave it.
Iddoro Ruiz Moreno, Argentine delegation head, on the basis of instructions from President Roberto Ortiz of Argentina said the rejected draft constituted a military alliance and was therefore unacceptable to Argentina.
The heads of delegations immediately sought to persuade Argentine to accept a clause in the draft saying explicitly that it did not constitute a military alliance, offensive or defensive. The Argentines remained adamant, however, and said their instructions were to stand on their own resolution.
They took the unusual step of publishing the text of their proposal, which significantly declares for cooperation against aggression either from a continental or extra-continental power.
It further adhered to Argentine policy by mentioning aggression from within the continent first, rather than second.
Surprised by the Argentine action, some delegates said negotiations would be begun for all nations except Argentina to agree to the Melio Franco-Hull-Concha project and vote it through the conference without her.
Hotel corridors were alive with delegates striving to prevent what might develop into a major break in the conference.

Government Promises Bomb Proof Shelters To Millions

Mr. MacDonald said: "I have not dismissed that plan. I have not rejected it. It is to be considered. I understand by authorities in Canada in the first place." Premier Pattullo of British Columbia had offered a free grant of land for the settlement scheme.
Mr. MacDonald said: "But until the Canadian Government had signified its willingness to cooperate nothing could be done in London." He said the British Government was committed by legislation to keep its contribution to the cost of migration plans to one-half.
Mr. MacDonald said: "The voice of the British people in the defence of world peace" would be far stronger than it is today if Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa were more heavily populated.
The motion accepted was offered by J. E. Crawford, Conservative, supported by Sir Henry Page Croft and agreed to by Mr. Mac-Donald. It declared:
Migration Most Desirable
"This House is of the opinion that an early resumption of the movement of population within the Empire is most desirable and urges His Majesty's Government to seize every suitable opportunity for considering, in concert with the Dominion Governments, all arrangements that may be practicable and in the future for promoting and encouraging the settlement of the Dominions of people of this country and to indicate its readiness to cooperate fully in providing schemes.
A Labor amendment calling for an Imperial Conference in 1940 to consider Empire migration was defeated.
Mr. MacDonald's said the Canadian Government's contribution to Sir Henry's plan for settlement of British Columbia could be either in cash or in land.
"I can assure the House," the Dominions Secretary went on, "and those interested in the Dominions that when the authorities in Canada and New Zealand feel their domestic conditions allow them to enter into agreements with us to start assisted migration again, we shall give the same goodwill and the same material assistance as we are giving in agreement with the Austral Government." He stressed the necessity of considering the Dominions in settlement plans. In his judgment, they must be populated not only for economic reasons but "for augmenting the strength of Britain herself."
This did not mean strategic strength so much as "reinforcement which the Dominions could bring to the military assistance which the British peoples exert in the affairs of mankind."
No dominion could support extra millions simply by expansion of agricultural industries. He believed far too much importance was placed on land settlement schemes, although he did not minimize their role.
Empire settlement could be accomplished only by the complementary development of secondary industries in the dominions.
