Accused Tells How N. Y. Boxer Was Killed

MONTRIEAL, Dec. 12—(CP)—William (Bill) Acorn testified in his own defence today that Lester Velez, 23-year-old Long Island, N.Y. boxer died accidentally when he plunged into a dagger held by the lanky night club entertainer from Providence, R.I. during an argument over the hours the two men kept.

Acorn, whose trial before a court of King's bench jury began today, is charged with murdering Velez, who comes from North Merrick, N.Y., in an actors' rooming house Sept. 20.

The six-foot four inches comedian and dancer testified he was appearing as an entertainer at the Samovar Club and that he and Velez were old-time friends and shared a room in the mid-town Crescent Street rooming house, a few blocks from the club.

Velez was annoyed, he said, because Acorn was able to keep late hours while the boxer, in training, had to stay home. At 6 a.m. the day of the slaying their argument over hours was renewed and Acorn said he seized a knife from the bureau because he was "afraid of being beaten up."

Velez, in plunging forward to deliver a punch, fell on the knife, Acorn declared. The witness said that when he realized he had killed his best friend, he tried to take his own life.

Barlier, Carol Grauer, manager of the Samovar and owner of the rooming house, testified he heard Acorn cry "quick, call a doctor, I have killed him." He said Acorn shouted these words as he bent over the boxer trying to stop the flow of blood from his neck wound. Irving Lubalin of New York, a roomer in the house, testified he was awakened by a voice crying "help, Carol," and that when he went into the corridor he saw Acorn stooped over Velez, holding his wrists.

He said he heard Acorn say: "My God, get a doctor, he's cut himself." Dr. Jean Marie Rousel, medical-legal expert, testified the fatal wound might have been caused by Velez thrusting himself forward onto the short-bladed dagger.

T. D. Anderson, 37, of Ottawa and Winnipeg, who has been appointed Assistant General Secretary of the Canadian Legion, B. E. S. L. A Flight Lieutenant in World War II, he saw combat service overseas as an Observer in Beaufighters and Mosquitos. He joined the Dominion Command staff in August 1944 as Executive Assistant. This appointment is in line with the Legion's policy of placing young men in executive positions as soon as they have proved themselves capable of doing the job.

Views Differ On American Soldiers Marrying Germans

(By The Associated Press) FRANKFURT, Germany, Dec. 12—American women now living in Germany differ decidedly in their views on the newly authorized marriages between U. S. soldiers and German girls, while some German girls favor caution in exercising the privilege.

"I don't like it at all," a Women's Army Provost Corps sergeant said when informed of the decision to permit soldiers about to return home to marry German girls.

She did not give her name, commenting that "the things I like to say about American soldiers marrying Germans should be quoted in print."

Cpl. Blanche Barrington said: "A lot of German women will take advantage of G.I.'s and use marriage to get into the States." Several soldiers—and some frauleins—emphasized that German girls now might use marriage to Americans as a means of escaping from war-torn Germany.

Jail Governor Denies Hitting Correspondent

WHITBY, Ont., Dec. 12—(CP)—J.D.G. Sutherland, governor of the Ontario County Jail here, in a statement today denied striking Elin Ross, Ottawa correspondent of the Toronto Globe and Mail, Dec. 10 following the hanging of George Bilton.

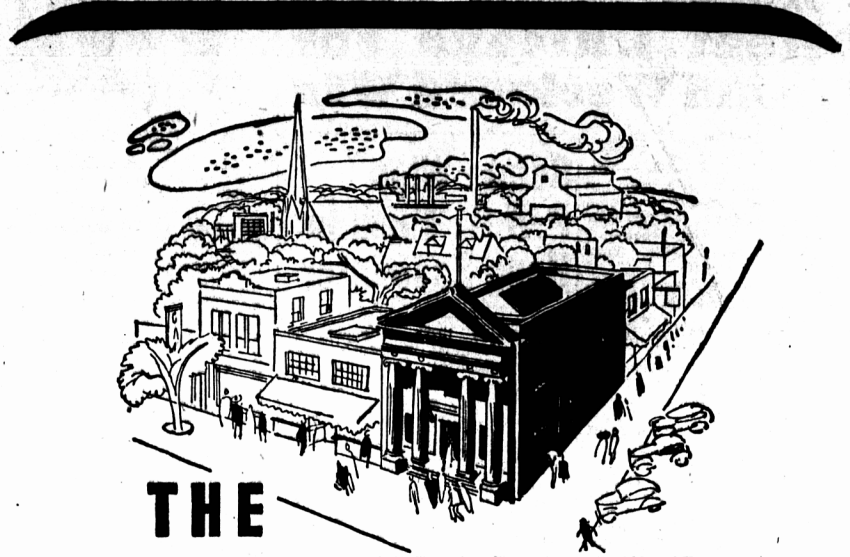

Newspapermen were not allowed to enter the jail building during the hanging but Ross was admitted to the governor's residence, which adjoins the jail, after he had asked permission to wait for the governor to come in.

Later Ross said he had received permission to use the telephone. The governor said that when he entered the room, Ross had talked to one Toronto newspaper about the hanging and was calling another. The governor took the telephone from the receiver and told Ross to get up.

"I didn't hit him," said the governor, "but I certainly conducted him to the front door where he picked up his hat and coat. He then stopped to argue. I pushed him out the door and he fell onto the verandah."

Ross claimed Governor Sutherland struck him on the head with an open hand and dragged him by the overcoat across the floor and onto the back verandah.

Sheriff Horace Boscom said a written report of the incident had been sent to provincial government officials.

SHOPPERS TOLD CLERKS' ANGLE
Working girls have themselves answered my charge that the dead-pan in the business world is here to stay. They say that if a clerk is a dead-pan, chances are she has become one through having to serve a rude, demanding, inconsiderate public, remarks Ruth Millet. Here, Mrs. Shopper, are the charges made against you by the saleswomen themselves. You expect a smile—without first offering one. You look unbelieving or accusing when the clerk tells you she doesn't have a scarce article, and you may even say: "That's funny, for a friend of mine told me you had some just a few minutes ago." You paw over articles on display musing and disarranging them and you make no attempt to put

SUPERB HIT OPENS TO-DAY

Acclaimed as one of the most unusual and heart-warming screen entertainments ever lined, "Sentimental Journey," the new 22th Century-Fox hit starring John Payne, Maureen O'Hara and William Bendix, featuring the sensational nine-year-old Connie Marshall, opens today at the Prince Edward Theatre.

The frank and dramatic story of a woman's secret heart and the passion of the man who loved her... but never really knew her, "Sentimental Journey" is said to achieve unforgettable moments of tender and poignant entertainment. Called a story every woman will understand—and every man will wish he could, the picture reaches a climax of tremendous emotional impact.

Exceptional Cast
Maureen O'Hara in the role of Julie plays a glamorous and successful Broadway star whose love for her husband supercedes everything else in her life. One of the screen's busiest actresses (two major studios share her contract), Miss O'Hara is seen in an especially challenging role, totally different from any in which she has yet appeared. Romantically teamed in this picture with John Payne, her stork is seeming to new heights through what is being called one of the outstanding dramatic portrayals of the year.

them back as they were before walking away. You don't talk loud enough to be heard the first time, and you are vague about what you want. You pull out a 10-dollar bill to pay for a 20-cent purchase, and then you grow impatient when you have to wait for change.

If there is a line, there are always a few who try to crowd in at the front, and a few who go through a line for scarce goods two or three times.

You think if you get confidential with a clerk you can expect her to pull a scarce article out of a hat. After she has already told you she hasn't the article.

You ask too many questions expecting a clerk to be an information bureau.

You ask a saleswoman to telephone you when a hard-to-get article arrives, not realizing you are perhaps the 100th person who has made the same request that day.

"After all this," say the salesgirls, "you expect us to stand and look sympathetic while you ask just how you are going to get along without a scarce article."

"We salespeople hear the term 'just looking' a hundred times a day.

"If we're dead-pans, is it any wonder?"
