COVEHEAD ROAD MUSINGS

Come hither and hearken ye, laggards in love, And all who believe there's a heaven above; I will banish your fears and I'll move ye to mirth, And I'll make ye believe there's a heaven on earth. If your love has proved false and your courage is dead Just pack up your troubles and come to Covehead. There are bachelors there by the dozen and score, And as many old maids, if there aren't any more. But we lost one of each on November the twelfth, And here's to their happiness, fortune and health: Eddy Reardon had always lived single and sane; A woman of forty, who gave evidence at Shore-ditch County Court was followed in the box by a girl of twenty—A solicitor. Is the last witness your mother?—The girl, excuse me, my step-daughter. Miss Margaret MacDonald assisted the bride, And the groom had Frank Reardon to help on his side. They were married at Tracadie. Cross as you see, And the service was rendered by Father J. B. Lee. Eddy took them to Summerside then, And that eve they returned to their "woo and woo." The women and men and the girls and their beans All gave them the welcome each. Covehead knows: The single men, double men, wives and old maids, And such amorous veterans of wild escapades All heartily joined in the spirited fray. As they followed the tumbrels and Cyrus's grey, Horns bleated and bells pealed and the revelers cried, "May Eddy live long with his 'bonnie young bride.'" Then they scolded away like an army of devils, And left Eddy and Rilla alone to themselves. So there I will leave them and find I'll wish, may They enjoy many happy returns of the day. (With apologies to Mr. and Mrs. Reardon)

ENGLISH COURTS

(By Dominion News Service) LONDON, Dec. 30.—Following are some interesting paragraphs called from recent court reports: Shore-ditch woman: If a woman says that she is satisfied with her husband, he has, possibly, more money than sense. Thames Court witness: He wanted me to have a drink, so I had one to keep things coming. "He was singing, and when he reached the top note a policeman appeared."—At the Thames Court. SACRED CONCERT.—A very fine sacred concert was rendered by the choir of the Central Christian Church last evening to a large audience. Each number of the splendid program was very effectively rendered, and the opinion expressed by those present pronounced it by far the best given by this well-trained choir. All the numbers were of a very high order and were sung with good expression and made a marked impression on the audience. Professor Tanton deserves great credit for the high standard attained by this choir.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER.—A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Miss Edna Muttart, Carleton, on Dec. 19th, when a large number of her friends gathered to tender her miscellaneous shower, previous to her departure to her new home. The bride-to-be was led to the living room, where a basket heavily laden with useful gifts awaited her showing the high esteem in which she is held by her many friends. The parcels were opened by Miss Bertha Catliffe and the verses, which caused much merriment read by Miss Mary Byron. In a few words Miss Muttart thanked her friends for their kindness. All amused themselves for some time with games and music after which a dainty lunch was served and all departed wishing their old friend much happiness and prosperity in her new home.

IN MEMORIAM

DR. JOHN HENDERSON.

The late Dr. John Henderson, whose death took place in Charlottetown, after a very short illness on December 13, at the age of 70 years, was a graduate of McGill Veterinary College in 1887 and practiced his profession until about three years ago. He was a man of genial personality and a sincere Christian, and was for years a staunch member of the Baptist Church of this city. He leaves to mourn a widow, two sons, Myron in Halifax, who came home for the funeral; and Reuben K., in Boston; also one daughter, Florence, at home. The funeral took place on Sunday, Dec. 16, to Cumming's Cemetery, East Wiltshire, and was very largely attended. Rev. Ross C. Eaton conducted the services at the house and grave.

X-RAYS TORCH

(By Dominion News Service) AMSTERDAM, Dec. 30.—A new X-Rays invention of the first importance has been made by two scientists, Dr. Holst and Dr. Bouwers, of Amsterdam, which will have the greatest influence on future medical progress with the X-rays. It consists of a new tube which generates a powerful beam of X-rays practically like a searchlight. In fact the tube itself is very similar in appearance to a large electric torch. No X-rays emerge from the tube except in the searchlight beams, with the highly important result that there can be absolutely no danger to the operator. It looks as if the dangers of the rays had been banished for ever. The means by which these brilliant inventors have accomplished their work is not easy to describe without technicalities, but in simple language it may be explained that a stream of negative electrons is caused by means of a tiny filament heated to incandescence by an electric current, and that this draws rays from the positive anode of the tube in a finely focussed pencil. The rays can be directed on any local spot of the flesh for treatment with the greatest ease, as, in spite of the high tension of the electric current, the tube can be held quite safely in the hand. The tube marks a new era in X-rays work of enormous possibilities.
