It's Camp-Fire Picture Time

"Keep a Picture Story of Your Camp-fire Parties"

DURING these fine summer days just about everybody, it seems, wants to take advantage of every opportunity to get out to the country, the lake or seashore for camping, marshmallow roasts, corn roasts, clam bakes, beach parties and what have you.

Taking pictures at night around the camp fire is a lot of fun and the results pleasing and out of the ordinary. Since the introduction of the Photoflash lamp there has been a tremendous interest in camp-fire pictures for this lamp is so simple to operate. The Photoflash lamp is similar in appearance to a common electric bulb and can be screwed into a special holder resembling an ordinary hand flash-light tube. These holders are very inexpensive and can be purchased at almost any store selling photographic supplies. The flash is set off by pressing the flash button and it gives an intense light without any noise or smoke.

This is how you take a camp-fire picture. The people should be grouped as close to the fire as comfort will permit. The arrangement of the group can be viewed in the finder of the camera by having someone hold a pocket flash-light or fire-brand at each side of the scene. This will indicate just what and who are included in the picture.

And let me warn you—be sure you have everybody in full view in your finder. Otherwise you may find the decapitated body of a dear friend appearing in the finished print.

It is well not to have the fire too bright, nor yet allow it to die down to embers when the picture is made.

With the camera resting on a tripod or firm support, set it at stop f/8 or U.S. 4, open the shutter, and set off the flash bulb and then be sure to close the shutter immediately. When using the Photoflash bulb hold it to one side of the camera, and slightly behind it. The latter position prevents possibility of lens flare from the flash. Here's one simple precaution—see that the camera is placed where possible smoke from the fire may not be blown towards the lens or between it and the subjects.

Remember too it is not necessary to own an expensive camera to take camp-fire pictures at night. You can take such pictures—and good ones—with a box camera by using the largest stop.

So if you are planning on an outdoor party at night over this weekend, or a camping trip, be sure to be prepared to take some fascinating Photoflash pictures. Here's wishing you a lot of fun and good pictures.

Most Favored Nation Treatment For Antipodes

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire) OTTAWA, Aug. 29—Most-favored nation treatment, extended by orders in council made public today to New Zealand and Australia, places these Dominions on the same footing as foreign countries to which Canada has given this concession notably France. It means that the lowest tariff tariff imposed on imports from countries outside the Empire will now be applied to similar imports from Australia and New Zealand, if that tariff is lower than the British preference or the intermediate rate. In effect it continues to these British Dominions the advantages of the lowest rates established with other countries since the Ottawa agreements of 1932.

According to the orders in council "most favored nation treatment" will be accorded to all commodities from New Zealand and Australia included within the schedules of "most favored nation treaties" Canada has made with other countries.

Changes Made In External Affairs Dept.

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire) OTTAWA, Aug. 29—Laurent Beaudry, councillor to the Department of External Affairs, has been appointed assistant Under-secretary of State for External Affairs, succeeding the late W. H. Walker, I.S.O. He will be succeeded as councillor by Lester C. Christie, formerly legal adviser in that department who has been out of the service for some years.

Other changes in the External Affairs Department announced today were the transfer of Lester B. Pearson, first secretary, to the staff of the Canadian High Commissioner in London, and the transfer of Dr. Alfred Rive, third secretary, to the staff of the Canadian Advisory Officer, League of Nations, Geneva.

HEALTH

by Dr. J. H. H. H.

A HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA.

An interesting and instructive development in medicine has been the direction of attention towards the patient as an individual, rather than to focus attention on a diseased part or on a disease.

We know that if a person is to be healthy, he must have health in all parts of his body. Health implies the harmonious and efficient working of all parts of the body and mind.

The old idea that you ate fish as food for your brains and iron for your nerves is discarded. We have learned that the whole body must be properly fed if any one part is to be adequately nourished. Furthermore, no one article of food goes to make brains or nerves.

When something goes wrong within the body, even though the ill effects may seem to be limited to one point, it is the whole body which is disordered or diseased. You cannot have diseased lungs and have a healthy body other than the lungs. The body is a living functioning unit, not a collection of unrelated parts.

When treatment has to be considered, no longer is it a question of what is the right treatment for a diseased stomach, but rather what is the best treatment for a man whose stomach is diseased.

There may seem to be the same thing, but it is not so. Some years ago, typhoid fever cases were starved because it was feared that food might injure the ulcerated bowel. This may have been good treatment for the bowel but it was definitely hard on the patient. Now that typhoid fever patients are being better fed, more satisfactory results have been obtained, because the general needs of the patient, rather than one part of his body, have received consideration.

A number of faddy diets have come into existence because of their supposed value in some particular condition. Nearly all of these are faulty because they fail to provide for the general well-being of the persons concerned.

This does not mean that proper care and attention are not to be given to the treatment of disorders of function and to disease. All that it implies is that, together with such treatment, there should go an equal amount of care and

Ability To See Comfortably

The object of a modern eye service is to enable patients to see comfortably. That means seeing without strain on the eyes. And also the avoidance of many bodily results of eye strain. That thought deserves the consideration of all who are not certain of the condition of their eyes.

EGG COSMETICS

Eye cosmetics should be used sparingly and with a great deal of restraint. Lashes, heavily coated with uneven beads of mascara, stamp a girl as lacking in good taste, but a small amount that doesn't detract from the eyes themselves enhance her personal appearance.

Generally speaking, unless your lashes and brows are quite colorless, you ought to reserve eye makeup for evening when lights are soft. Blue eyeshadow that, under electric light, adds allure to a blonde's skin and hair may, if she uses it in the daytime, make her features coarse and her complexion sallow.

However, whether or not you need artificial color on your lids during the day constitutes an individual problem. If you decide that you look better with it, pick a shade that makes a subtle shadow and not a blatant smudge. Cover the entire lid, but do not extend the shadow outward from the corner of your eye.

Purple and brown shades generally look nice on the lids of brunettes, but do try several before you decide. Green or dark blue often are as flattering to certain dark haired types or girls as they are on blondes. And many blondes look lovely with light brown or dark purple on their eyelids.

The new iridescent shades are attractive on nearly everyone. These cast a shadow, of course, but a light, shiny shadow, that seems to sparkle and shine and give vivacity to the upper half of the face.

If you have trouble getting eyelid makeup on smoothly, brush your forefinger across a bit of cleansing cream before you dip it in the eyeshadow.

VANCOUVER, Aug. 29—(C.P.)—"This city," asserted Mayor G. G. Geer at a recent council meeting, "lacks entertainment," and so
