LACK OF REALISM

(Boston Transcript)

Exc—What ridiculous, impossible things these fashion plates are. Mrs. Exc—I know they used to be, but today many of them are engraved from photographs. Exc—Well, this one can't be. Here are two women going in opposite directions, both with brand new gowns on and neither looking back at the other.

English Brand Essence of Vinegar makes the best pickling vinegar—one pint makes three quarts of good pickling vinegar and five quarts of white wine table vinegar. A pint 20c. Our pickling spices are the purest, cleanest, strongest and best obtainable. They are whole—unbroken. Also turmeric powder and everything you could want for pickling. ## SOME DELICIOUS CAKES.

In baking cake, divide the time into quarters. During the first quarter the mixture should begin to rise; the second quarter, continue rising and begin to brown; the third quarter, continue browning; the fourth quarter, finish baking and shrink from pan. If the oven is too hot, leave the door ajar; cake should be looked at while baking, but should never be moved until it has risen its full height. Cake when done shrinks from the pan. Pound and fruit cakes are tested by pressing surface with tip of finger. If the cake feels firm to the touch, it is done. The oven should be kept at a nearly uniform temperature.

ARTIFICIAL HAIR.

We all have read stories of the dead being robbed of their hair to supply the demand for wigs, switches and other substitutes for natural hair. These stories are largely untrue. Most of these things are now made from pure wool. At the wool exhibit is shown switches made from Canadian wool and dyed to imitate all colors of hair. The wool of Lincoln sheep is allowed to grow for two or three years, when it attains great length. It is then clipped and will bring about two dollars per pound on the market.

WOMEN AND AGRICULTURE

The new United States Secretary of Agriculture has addressed 50,000 letters to farmers' wives, asking them to tell him how best his Department can cooperate with them and serve their needs on the farm. With each letter was forwarded an official envelope to contain the replies. In the letter, these women are invited to give individual answers to the letter, or to discuss the matter in their church societies or women's organizations, and submit answers representing the combined opinions of the women of their entire communities.

NEW YORK FADS AND FASHIONS

Net and lace waists are, apparently, to take the place of colored chifon waists for use with coat suits this winter. And these net and lace waists, fashion decrees, are to be white. Some of them are much like the lace waists of the Spring. Diagonal bands of light pink and blue ribbon are used under the lace; the V-neck is the most usual one, and this is outlined with tulle or net frills. There are some new touches, too. One is the use of plush with lace and tulle and net of the sheerest sort. The plush is applied in the form of vests and collars and cuffs, and the contrast between the heavy and the thin material is interesting. White plush spotted with black, in irregular, leopard-like spots, is especially effective. Some of the white lace waists are finished at the neck with three or four tiny pink and blue ruffles, roses which give a dainty and distinctive touch. Another new touch to these thin blouses is the buttonholed net collar. The collar is cut out and buttonholed without scallops straight along the edge, in rather coarse colored silk and big stitches.

Reversible satin ribbon, of rich and heavy quality, shows two distinct colors, one on one side, one on the other. Black is faced with rose, blue and rose, green and violet, and many other interesting combinations are found. Sash ribbons are ever changing and even more interesting. One of the latest is a wide, soft, loosely woven ribbon of gray, tan, brown, black or other background. There is metallic lustre to each of these colors. The ribbon is run with woolen threads, which form crosswise stripes about three inches apart. One especially good combination showed yellow, blue and green stripes on a brown ground. The shades were all a little unusual and harmonized well.

Scarfs are used a great deal at present and will continue to be worn all winter. A whole book might be written on that subject. Net scarfs are more durable than those of chiffon, and now that the fashion for net makes them desirable, the shops show them in abundance. One sort, of pink, green, blue or white net, is heavily dotted with silver beads in a wide border at each end and a narrow connecting border along the sides. The ends are edged with a deep fringe of beads. The beads give to the net just the necessary amount of weight to produce gracefulness. Shoulder scarfs are even more elaborate and beautiful than they were last winter. One of unusual beauty shows black and white combined. It is made on a foundation of white chifon. It is shaped to a deep round point at the back, and has long rounded tabs in front. Over the white chifon foundation a filmy covering of black satin-striped chifon, banded with insertions of black lace. The edge of the scarf is finished with a double ruching of the white chifon, and long and heavy white silk tassels and the tabs in front.

Among the novelties in the shops are embroidered collars from Paris. They are made on silk and show Chinese embroidery done in Chinese colors. Some of them, showing gold on dragon on rich blue backgrounds or fiery red flowers on green backgrounds are very decorative. Appropriate to wear with the new white satin or crepe de Chine or chifon evening frocks which are equipped with a wired tunic of white lace, edged with fur, are the lace scarfs, also edged with fur. They are exceedingly attractive, for the contrast between fur and lace is always interesting.

Sash ribbons show more and more variety. There are now gold velvet sash ribbons, about ten inches wide, with sleek surface, plaided in many colors. The lines forming the plaid do not run at right angles, but diagonally to the edge of the ribbon. On a recently imported gown of brown woolen material there is a sash of brown moire ribbon, worked with chenille, in red, green, and yellow, in irregular bands about an inch wide and three or four inches apart.

Chifon is combined with Chantilly lace in an attractive manner. One design, in lace of different widths shows orchids in the pattern of the lace. Some of these are left as they are, but over others orchids or puff of chifon, in different shades of mauve and yellow, are applied in the exact outline of the lace orchids. There is a new way of using ruffled old lace, if it is of the right shape and size. Fasten a band around the head, well down over the hair and brows in the front and somewhat above the nape of the neck in the back. At right angles to this band fasten another, going under the chin and straight up across the head. It can be fastened together over one ear with a jewelled ornament.

Jet is used in all the ways that the imagination of the dressmakers and designers can devise. One gown of blue brocaded velvet in a deep, rich shade, with a tunic of rich blue chifon, is outlined about the neck with a string of big jet beads, as big in diameter as a cent. The string is caught between every third or fourth bead to the chifon. A double string of the beads hangs from each shoulder loosely over the arms, two strands in front and two behind each arm.

Jet also forms a fitting trimming for velvet. It is heavy enough to uphold its own character even in the presence of anything so heavy and imposing as velvet. Moreover, it pulls the velvet down, and so may be satisfactorily used in the form of fringe on velvet sash ends. No more striking gown could be made than one of black velvet, trimmed with glimmering, cut jet fringe and corage ornaments.

Woolen ratine and velvet are combined in children's coats in different ways. One coat of rich brown velvet, shows a belt and collar and cuffs of black ratine. White ratine is used now for little boys' Russian blouse suits. There is a great deal of warmth in this material and ratine suits can be used until heavy INTERESTING VISIT—A visit to the office of Gunn, Langlois & Co., at Summerside, is full of interest to the farmer who depends upon making pin money for his wife and family from eggs. The genial manager, Mr. John Grady, is always ready to talk about his business, and when egg circles are mentioned his countenance brightens and one feels that this is a subject in which he takes great pleasure. The writer asked him if the egg circles were still satisfactory. In reply he asked him to read a letter he had just received from Gunn, Langlois & Co., and from which the following extract is taken. "We are glad that more new egg circles are being started. We are making a splendid reputation for your new laid eggs in Montreal and are going to be hard put to supply the demand. In reply to the question as to how long it could last he said, "as long as hens lay eggs." But how long will you continue to pay this big price? "We are not paying any exorbitant price, not more at any rate than the market will permit. We shipped about ten thousand cases of ordinary eggs this summer. We have a report in each case, if you would like to look them over. The writer selected, at random, the reports from one shipment. There were 61 cases in this shipment. The first case had 12 bad eggs, the second 14, the third 10, the fourth 21, and so on. On the whole shipment of 1830 doz. 87 dozen were unfit for human food. The writer then went over a lot of returns and found about 1 1/2 dozen in each case bad. Mr. Grady then gave the reports from the Egg Circle Shipment, amounting in all to about 1000 cases. Not one egg was unfit for human food, and very few stale. "So you see we can better pay 29c. for circle eggs than the present market price for ordinary eggs." Here is a letter we received last month from the firm in Montreal pressed with the way in which the farmers are handling this new-laid egg problem and it has turned out a great deal better than our fondest hopes." Gunn, Langlois & Co. have handled all the circle eggs in the province up to date. Their letters show they are satisfied. Mr. Grady of Summerside represents them in the province, he is satisfied. The farmers here have been, and are, receiving from 3 to 6 cents per dozen and are satisfied, and it looks as if P. E. Island would soon be in more than name the "Denmark of America," as far as egg production is concerned. 1912-Mell.

One day a college youth went west and got work on a farm. He wasn't very well informed about farm life, but, as he was willing to work, the farmer hired him. That night the farmer said: "How are you—a pretty good runner, boy?" The collegian swelled with pride, "I took the prize at college for being the fastest runner." "Well then," said the farmer, "you can bring in the sheep." Two hours later the young man entered, exhausted, his breath coming in short gasps. "Have any trouble?" asked the farmer, grinning to himself. "I got the sheep easy enough," said the youth, "but I had an awful time catching the lambs." "Why I haven't any lambs," said the farmer in surprise. Together they walked to the pen. There were all the sheep—and also five jack-rabbits.

SOME RUNNER

Of course, they can be worn in the house all winter. They have a big advantage over linen suits, as they do not show wrinkles and creases as linen does. Inexpensive head necklaces are much worn to complete the color scheme of a costume. Rhinestones and other handsome jeweled effects are seen in the latest importation of buttons. Even for autumn wear women nowadays are wearing white net waists with frills down the front. Some of the new separate skirts shown in the shops are made of a jaquard wool, and prettily draped. Almost without exception the new hats are small, with close-fitting crowns and brims, that hug the head. Feathers and ribbons lead among the trimmings.
