FOXES FOR FOX HOUNDS—The Charlottetown Hunt Club this morning shipped two Sampson foxes to the Toronto and North York Hunt Club in exchange for English fox hounds.

SLIGHT BLAZE—At one o'clock yesterday afternoon the firemen received a call for a blaze at the residence of Mr. J. E. Cameron, 200 Grafton Street, where there was a small blaze under a veranda at the rear of the house. A garden hose brought into play as soon as the alarm was sent in extinguished the blaze.

CARPENTERS AND THE PRINCE EDWARD THEATRE—The Guardian is informed that the carpenters working at the Prince Edward Theatre had gone on strike for an increase of 10 cents per hour is incorrect. A Carpenters' Union was formed here some time ago, and Mr. Kenny, the contractor was advised of the fact on Friday evening and was requested, in common with all other contractors, to give his recognition on Wednesday 10th inst., by which time the work at the theatre would be practically completed, as the theatre was billed to open on that night. All the other contractors with one or two exceptions, agreed to give the requested recognition, over a dozen having already agreed. Mr. Kenny, who comes from Truro, however, refused recognition, and practically told the members that if they were not satisfied they could get out. That is all there was to the matter claim the Union officials, who are paying 52 cents per hour in Moncton, while here he was paying only 36 cents. The Union was quite prepared to continue at the lower figure until Wednesday night, after which the new rate would go into effect.

Would Create Better Feeling Among Races

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire) OTTAWA, April 8.—Michael Luchkovich, U.F.A. member for Vegreville, today introduced a bill in the House of Commons designed to make it an offence to utter defamatory words against any race, nationality or creed represented in Canada.

His bill, Mr. Luchkovich explained before the House met, "is designed to create better feeling among the races in Canada." He would gain his object through an amendment to the Criminal Code saying: "Everyone who utters, prints, publishes, circulates or otherwise disseminates any defamatory matter reflecting upon any person or body of persons of any race or religion tending to create hatred, revile or expose them to hatred, insult or contempt among the people is guilty of an offence."

THE VITAL Prescribed by Physicians the World Over

The value of calcium, phosphorus and iron (the "Vital 3") for run-down or convalescent patients has long been recognized by the medical profession. In Fellows' Syrup these minerals ("Vital 3") are available in a form particularly effective in helping to build up the blood, nerves, body tissues and bones.

In every department they have been tried and found wanting. The MacDonald Liberals of Nova Scotia gained power by this same worn-out "taxing everything" scheme, and after a million dollars, and a debt increase the biggest in the history of the Province.

PLOUGHING MATCH

Sir,—I was very much interested in reading a letter signed by John B. MacFadyen, Augustine Cove. This letter is headed "Ploughing Match."

The writer entirely agrees with the sentiments expressed by Mr. MacFadyen and the very thing he has in mind is to have a ploughing match in the habit of taking up rows. In those days we just had the ordinary wooden plough, but iron ploughs were coming into use. Not like the present time where more up to date ploughs are used, not only the single furrow plough, but the gang plough and plough drawn by tractors. Mr. MacFadyen states that some of the farmers ploughed their fields showing furrows straight as a ribbon, while others were as crooked as a ram's horn.

I remember an old joke where it was stated a farmer took his hired man and team to a ploughing match. He said to the man, "do you see that cow at the other end of the field? Keep your eye on the cow and you will have a straight furrow, and, of course, the cow was grazing and moving all the time, and you can imagine how straight the furrow would be when he reached the other end where the cow was, as the cow had moved quite a distance. The furrow would be about as straight as the proverbial "dog's hind leg." This no doubt was intended to test out the man who had the plough handles and what he was capable of. And as Mr. MacFadyen also states that the foundation of agriculture largely depends on the tilling of the soil, ploughing is the first step in the operation. I believe that more attention should be paid to ploughing.

Over a number of years I have subscribed to an Ontario Farmer's Journal, and take great interest in reading the reports of ploughing matches held in Ontario in the Fall of the year. And it is a pleasure to see a team of horses turning up the soil in a straight and even furrow. And when he arrives at the end of the furrow he looks back with pleasure at his handiwork. Whereas in these days the furrow is slanted over almost on edge like a hand of cards, and the ploughman would do it. It appears that he is more anxious to turn up the ground in the quickest time possible, rather than taking a little more time and making a good job.

These matches are still in vogue in Ontario and attract a good deal of attention, and I do not see why we should not have ploughing matches in this Province in each of the counties. It not only fosters good ploughing, but brings together farmers and their friends in a pleasant holiday and friendly rivalry. And I would suggest that ploughing matches be instituted not only in Queens County, but Kings and Prince as well. And my opinion the proper time would be when it is most convenient for the farmers of the year. After the harvest, or when the ploughing season is on. However, this could be left to the committee in charge as to time and place.

The office of Carter & Co., Ltd., will gladly contribute trophies as second prize, say the first. And the commercial suggested by the Guardian would be an excellent one if they will act in the matter and arrange for these ploughing matches.

I am, Sir, etc.,

PRECEPT AND PRACTICE

Sir,—Hon. Mr. Lew's Liberal policy looks nice, so nice, if we could get it in practice. It is not new. Same as the Bell party had at it in 1919, only yellow with age, and ragged by rough usage. Same old expenses, reduce taxation, and a balanced budget with a $25,000 surplus.

This was Liberal precept. In practice it didn't work out that way. Their own salaries and indemnities increased from fifty to one hundred per cent. Money scattered out as if by drunken sailors, and the country taxed to the hilt, everything "tangible and intangible," taxed to meet the orgy of waste and salary raids on the treasury. And debt and deficits piled up with increased violence.

Again, in 1927, this salvation policy was again trotted out, more nice and fattened than before, with prohibition as a clean white postscript added. This was Liberal precept again. In practice the treasury looting was repeated. The caucus divided on prohibition, and temperance bodies in protest against law enforcement. Deficits and debt increasing and thrown out of office in 1930 with an overdraft of over a million dollars and unpaid accounts of over $300,000, with nothing of tangible value to show for it.

"Economy," "balanced budgets," halting extravagance, how rich in promise? How nice if we could only get it in practice. But would we have the ghost of a chance of anything better than the last two Liberal regimes, both hurled from power by the people, because of their political perfidy. You couldn't tame them. The leopard can not change his spots, nor can the Liberal politician. In every department they have been tried and found wanting. The MacDonald Liberals of Nova Scotia gained power by this same worn-out "taxing everything" scheme, and after a million dollars, and a debt increase the biggest in the history of the Province.

Liberal Speakers In Budget Debate

Concluding Liberal Speeches In Budget Debate In The Legislature Last Week.

MR. ARNEAS GALLANT

Mr. Arneas Gallant, (First District of Prince), said he had not been in the habit of taking up rows very much time in the Legislature but he felt this time the occasion was ripe. He complimented the leader of the Government on the excellent manner in which he had presented the Budget, and the Opposition leader on "the excellent manner in which he tore the Budget into shreds."

Government expenditures were criticised by the speaker, who said the taxpayers' money had been wasted by reason of the bond issue which was made in 1932 of $1,000,000 at a high interest rate for a long term, against the advice of the Opposition leader. They had piled up increased indebtedness of $27,212 which meant an added interest charge of $50,000. Among the unfulfilled Conservative promises, Mr. Gallant said, had been the promise of cheaper school books.

Over $53,000, he alleged, had been charged up against the Falconwood hospital plans.

He had seen a statement in The Guardian newspaper that the Opposition leader was not a Pharos, neither was his ex-Minister of Public Works a Joseph. Evidently, said Mr. Gallant, the Government has a Moses who is going to lead them out of the wilderness.

He was prepared to give the Government credit for the fine building at Falconwood and Prince of Wales College, but they should be deducted from this the loss suffered by demolishing the walls of the west wing at Falconwood, which, Mr. Gallant said, could have been used.

He thought it would be appropriate, in view of the Government's "insane bungling," if their benches were placed at either end of the Falconwood Hospital.

He regretted that, we have no technical training in the Province. There seemed great laxity on the part of the Government in not having longer agricultural courses at Prince of Wales College.

Last year, he recalled, the Premier had commended very highly the new instructor at Prince of Wales College, who was receiving $25,000. Since that time this instructor had "escaped without anyone knowing it," and another man had stepped quietly into the position, and was doing the work for $1,500, and doing it just as well, as far as Mr. Gallant could learn.

Unlike some of his colleagues, Mr. Gallant said he would not like to condemn the Marketing Board. The Government had admitted it had nothing whatever to do with marketing schemes, but if the Act became a success, no doubt they would claim the credit. He thought the Marketing Board should be given a chance to let it work a little while, and if it does not succeed it could be discontinued.

Old club organization was a federal matter for which Mr. Gallant did not think the Provincial Government could take much credit.

The roads in his district last year, he declared, were in a disgraceful condition. He had not much faith in road dragging except in the early spring. Some means should be employed of pressing the gravel on to the road and of keeping the hard pan on top. In the section last year, every road had been ditched, but the Government had failed to implement its pledge to do all road mending early in the season. Instead, they had worked on them late in the fall, and the result was very unsatisfactory. On one road, Mr. Gallant said, a dozen cars had gone into the ditch at one time.

The provincial election, he predicted, would take place about the last of June, and there would be great activity in road travelling just about that time.

A committee had been appointed in the Legislature to investigate the condition of the Provincial Building. It was said the foundation was in danger, but Mr. Gallant thought it was the foundation of the Government in power that was giving away, and not the building.

Mr. Gallant read from the Hansard reports, Ottawa, a statement of Mr. J. H. Myers, M.P., quoting the president of the Potato Growers' Association respecting the U.S. duty on potatoes being raised for the 1935 crop.

Resuming the debate after recess, he stated that conditions are hard, and it is the duty of the Government to do everything in its power to relieve the distress. How, he asked, can the Conservatives redeem themselves after five years ago promises they made five years ago to end the depression? The people are awaking to the fact that there is only one solution, and that is to return the Liberals both in this Province and at Ottawa.

"A great powwow" had been made Liberals, preaching the same dried out story, plus the chronic free trade, turned right about face in action when returned to power, increasing debts, deficits and tariffs, creating debts, deficits and tariffs. In hope of averting defeat they invented the "brick for brick" tariff policy. But once bitten twice shy, the electors could not trust them, and elected the Bennett Government whom they knew they could depend upon.

In his district about an expenditure of $82,000 to elect Mr. Thorne Campbell some years ago. Mr. Gallant said. He thought the money had been well spent. He commended his district for being "a district of politicians." Every second man was able to discuss intelligently the political issues of the day. That was why he and Mr. Campbell had been elected with large majorities.

He alleged favoritism in the awarding of certain tenders for public works under his present administration, in the First District of Prince. One contract had been awarded to a contractor in the Second District who had succeeded "in engineering the engineer and the Government" into changing the plans and adding over $600 to the cost. This contractor had paid his workmen only 10 cents an hour. Why did the Government allow such starvation wages to be paid? The contractor had bought a new car on the profits he made off the workmen, Mr. Gallant said.

He did not approve of "too many attempts to criticize the Royal Canadian Mounted Police" in the city as well as they are called upon to do it. He did not hold them, but the Government, responsible. The Prohibition Commission was not "driving spears into the Government's back as they were doing when the Liberals were in power," he said.

Mr. Gallant referred to returned soldiers who had been employed under the Provincial Police, who had to "stand aside" while the R.C.M.P. men were brought here from outside. Many returned soldiers, he said, were our own monuments. He stood on the street corners, dependent on "the dirty dole" to keep them alive.

Mr. Gallant commended the people of Rustico, in which community he had been born, and said he was sorry to hear any discriminatory remark made in the House about the hall at Rustico.

The Liberals, he concluded, were proud to go back and fight on the issue they had fought in the last election, namely, the record of the Government of the Saunders-Lee Government.

MR. J. J. LARABEE

Following Mr. W. A. Stewart in the debate, Mr. J. J. Larabee, (Fourth District of Queens) said there had been a good deal of criticism of the Opposition for talking Dominion politics, but the Conservatives had spent a great deal of time in discussing this subject too. Reference had been made to a section of the McIntyre highway having had to be torn up and carted away, but his informant was that the portion of road carted away was the part between the city limits and the McIntyre highway. Extravagant misstatements regarding the McIntyre highway, he said, had been made in the 1931 campaign. The Hillsboro Bridge highway, which had been built by the Conservatives, had cost about twice as much per square yard. The 1931 Conservative platform, he continued, had been smashed to pieces and was in a much worse condition than the McIntyre Highway is today.

He referred to a government car which had been sacrificed for $300 or $400 to give a commission to "some friends of the Government." He also criticized the appointment of a Purchasing Agent, contending that purchase by tender would be cheaper and more satisfactory.

School books today, he insisted, are dearer than they were four years ago, on account of some of the taxes which have been added. Cheaper school books had been a Conservative election promise, and they had asked for more credit to attempt to water roads and had failed to do so.

He had never attempted to make a Prohibition speech in the House, Mr. Larabee said, and he did not intend to do so now. It may be that the Prohibition law is not receiving the support of the people who should support it. He would not attempt to criticize the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, but he believed the Provincial Police were quite suited to the requirements of this Province.

With regard to Old Age Pensions, Mr. Bennett had promised to pay 100 per cent, but he was

Will Rogers Plays Vivid Role In "County Chairman" At Capitol

Will Rogers, the inimitable, is here again—and that's as good news as that prosperity is back! Opening yesterday at the Capitol Theatre, the star's newest Fox Film production, "The County Chairman," was revealed to a delighted audience as perhaps Will's finest vehicle to date—even more mirthful, human and engrossing than "David Harum," "Handy Andy" or "Judge Priest." "The County Chairman" has been adapted from George Ade's famous stage play of a generation ago and deals with small-town politics back at the turn of the century. Their colorful personalities, their made-for-rallies, their intense feeling made of a very different "game" from politics today—conducted with reserve and dignity via the radio.

The star is seen as the seasoned veteran of many a campaign—the fiery war-horse of his state, who knows every family skeleton by its first name—and doesn't hesitate to use them! He may be the best baby-kisser in the county, when the need arises, but he's also the stormy petrel of the political camps and a genuine fire-eater.

In his support, there is a notable cast of players, many of whom have worked with him in earlier screen hits. Evelyn Venable and Kent Taylor, the young lovers of "David Harum," have important roles and colorful personalities, their feuds and rivalries, their intense feeling made of a very different "game" from politics today—conducted with reserve and dignity via the radio.
