Drowns Trying To Save Two Dogs

The following is taken from the Vancouver Province. Mrs. Dundas the boy's mother is the former Frances Gallant of Kinkora and is the daughter of Mrs. Gallant and the late Frank Gallant of that place.

He gave his life for two dogs.

That is the simple epitaph of Robert Warner Dundas, a gallant 9-year-old, who drowned in Kitsilano pool Monday afternoon trying to rescue two small dogs which had fallen through the thin ice.

Robert loved dogs. His sorrowing parents — Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Dundas of 1923 Trafalgar road — knew that only too well. For Robert used to play with them on the beach most days.

So when he saw the dogs plight it seemed the most natural thing to him that he should dash out across the treacherous ice to rescue them.

The ice gave way before he was half way across the pool and young Robert plunged into four feet of icy water.

Eleven-year-old Douglas Frew of 2346 West Sixth who had been playing with Robert, promptly ran out onto the ice and grabbed his friend. But the ice gave way again.

Once again he caught hold of Robert and was holding him up with one arm resting on the ice when it cracked a third time. Robert disappeared from sight, while Douglas, unable to help his friend further, crawled onto the retaining wall.

Calls For Help

A woman, who had watched the struggle from a distance but could not make out exactly what had happened, telephoned George Burrows, city beach superintendent, and hero of many rescues.

Mr. Burrows ran over to the pool, pulled off his rubber boots, coat and pants and dived under the ice. He found the boy unconscious on the floor of the pool. Swimming ashore, he carried him to the bathhouse and phoned for the inhalator squad.

For more than an hour, the squad under Fire Chief J. H. DeGraves, tried to restore the boy's life, but without success. He was pronounced dead by Dr. G. O. Hallman, 532 West Broadway.

The little dogs were more fortunate than their gallant rescuer. Soon after Robert made his heroic attempt to save them, Douglas Kirkpatrick, driver of Kingsway ambulance, waded out into the water up to his armpits and carried the dogs ashore.

Dr. Britnell, in a telephone conversation inquired as to the cause of so few carloads of P.E.I. potatoes reaching Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto markets. Mr. Barbour told him that the price was satisfactory and shippers here were anxious to ship their seed and potato stocks. However, the great difficulty was in getting enough refrigerator cars to the province. Mr. Barbour said he could not recommend a priority as there was a great need for incoming cars of coal, livestock feed and gasoline for military establishments. The livestock shipments from the province must be kept moving.

ENJOYABLE HOUSEWARMING. —On Thursday evening, February 4th a large number of the residents of Bonshaw assembled at the home of Mr. Daniel MacPhail to offer to himself and family their congratulations upon the event of having moved into a fine new residence. eres and former Minister of Public Works and Transport in the present administration, cannot take place until then.

Members of parliament expressed belief a good deal depends on how many of the Quebec Liberals vote for the motion, which amounts to one of want of confidence in the government.

In Montreal Saturday, Mr. Cardin said in an interview it was not his intention, through his sub-amendment, to force formation of a national government or to consolidate groups of Quebec members opposed to the government's manpower policy.

His sub-amendment, he said, was the "logical consequence" of the premises laid down by him in his speeches when a bill was before the House to authorize the government to impose conscription for overseas service by order-in-council. That bill later was adopted.

Mr. Cardin admitted his sub-amendment could be interpreted as a want of confidence motion, but "essentially it was not intended as such." He said he took what he believed would be the one opportunity he would have during this session to present his proposal.

FLIGHTS TO MAGDALENS —

Two Maritime Central Airways planes, a Boeing and a Rapide made round trips to the Magdalen Islands yesterday. They carried a total of 1,260 pounds of mail and 11 passengers outward and brought 165 pounds of mail and six passengers back. One plane circled Entry Island and dropped mail for the third time this winter. Because of conditions landing at the small island is difficult and it is also extremely difficult to reach it from other islands in the group during the winter. Two men walked to it from an adjoining island during a recent cold snap, however. Planes landed yesterday at Amherst and Grindstone Islands.

TEST SITE FOR OIL WELL —

Engineers are probing the bottom of Hillsboro Bay, a mile west of Governor's Island to determine the suitability of the place as a site of a possible oil well. Work began Saturday under the direction of Robert Griesbach, engineer with the Foundation Company of Canada, Montreal. The men are using a core drill mounted on a large motor truck. They are working on the ice covered bay in an effort to determine whether the bottom is suitable to erect a breastwork using piles or whether a cribwork would be more satisfactory. There is still no information available here as to whether actual drilling operations will be undertaken and if so when. But it was recalled that last fall both Hugh McKay, who holds the oil rights of the province and members of the seismograph survey crew were rather optimistic. Mr. McKay indicated it was considered likely drilling for oil would be undertaken this year.

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH

Captain, the Rev. T. E. McLennan was the guest speaker at both services yesterday and was greeted by large congregations. It is pleasing to note that for some Sundays past there has been an increasing attendance in the galleries, especially at the evening services. Captain McLennan appeared in his military uniform and after the service several in the active forces advanced to shake his hand. He was also welcomed by Lieut.-Gov. LePage, Mrs. LePage and others. His sermons were eloquently delivered. They were inspiring and thought provoking. His morning sermon was based on the text Rom: 8-28 "We know that all things work together for good to them that love God."

In the evening Rev. Mr. McLennan took as his text Eph.: 1-9 and 10 "Having made known unto us the mystery of his will according to his good pleasure which he hath purposed in himself that in the dispensation of the fulness of times he might gather together in one all things in Christ both which are in heaven and which are on earth; even in him."

The music for the day was under the direction of Prof. Kendall and included a particularly fine anthem by Sir John Stainer "O Beautiful Jesu" by a choir of 34 voices. For the evening the anthem was "Just As I Am". There was also a duet "Unto The Hills" by Miss Margaret Sterns and Miss Doris Tait.

THE BAPTIST CHURCH

In his sermon at the service of Morning Worship the minister, the Rev. I. Judson Levy took as his subject "The Consecrated Hand," suggested by the question in Exodus 4:2, "and the Lord said unto him what is that in thine hand?" It was a question directed to one who protested his inability to perform that which God asked him. It is an argument as old as religion, and as new. Time after time in the Bible, time after time in our lives we see men called by God to a duty and an excuse made on the ground of inability. Moses was honest in his excuse of inability. "What is that in thine hand?" Only a rod, but committed to God it became something new and different and mighty. "What in that in thine hand?" said God to Joshua, and committed to God that spear became the symbol of victory. "What is in thine hand, David?" It was only a harp but used under God it brought solace to a troubled mind, only a sling, committed to God brings deliverance to a nation. "What is in thine hand, Peter?" It was a net, the humble tool of daily labour and he and his companions become fishers of men. In the hand of the lad, five loaves and two fishes, in the hands of Dorcas, a needle, and committed to the Master the result is measureless. Our hand and the hand of God together will bring his gracious purposes to pass.

Handel's "A Prayer" was the morning anthem.

The Church School met for its Bible Study session at 2.30 p.m. with large attendance in groups for all ages.

Evening Worship was held at 7 P.M., with sermon by the minister on "Making the Most of Life". Maunder's "Te Deum" was the evening anthem.

John Inch, Mus. Bac., organist and choirmaster was in charge of the music of the day. Large congregations were in attendance at all services.

THE KIRK OF ST. JAMES

Preaching yesterday morning from The Kirk pulpit on the text, "The place whereon thou standest is holy ground" (Exodus 3:5) the minister, the Rev. T. H. Bussell Somers said: "Earl Haig, to whom we now know ourselves indebted for a good deal hitherto ascribed to Foch, including the final and decisive assault of the last war, was the victim of disparagement and intrigue from many quarters, including that of a government which coldly and unappreciatively and grudgingly employed him. Conscious of the enormous burden on his shoulders — huge enough without this addition —he wrote to a friend "I preserve my tranquility of mind only because I feel that God is with me." Simple fellow! Yet that is how tranquility of mind can be preserved, and I know no other way. My people, you will go out from this Church—I know not whither it may be to some place of humble routine or to some post of honourable danger. You will often be alone, and sometimes depressed, and always, perhaps, anxious. Will you remember that that spot on which you are—that place of duty is holy ground. Your meeting place with God, the sanctuary where your hands are strengthened? Will you let your curiosity cause you to turn aside to see the heather on fire all around you? Will you lift up your heart—whether at the desk in your office or at the controls of your plane—to the Father of whom Jesus was so sure in his dark hour? Thus shall you come through and thus at last hear the voice which is as the sound of many waters say to you those words than which earth's greatest, wisest and noblest can wish none more rewarding or comforting. "Well done, thou good and faithful servant; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."
