CHARLOTTETOWN BUSINESS COLLEGE EXAMINATIONS

List of Students Who Passed the Examinations at the Charlottetown Business College.

The final results of the examinations and the work of last term at the Charlottetown Business College have been posted, and today we publish the results.

Owing to the fact that a number of the students taking shorthand and typewriting were sent out to positions before graduation, as they had passed in theory, the certificate of their employers was accepted in lieu of the College examination. This, we think, is a splendid, practical step in advance, for the candidate has to prove his or her merit in actual office work, and the Management is quite safe in granting diplomas under such conditions. The C. B. C. stands for progress whilst protecting the interests of its students.

Knee Joint Stiff Three Years CURED BY NERVILINE

Anyone would marvel at my recovery, writes Mr. Leonard Lotham, a young man well known about Charlottetown. I had inherited a rheumatic tendency through my mother's family, and in my early years suffered frequently with my knees.

My left knee joint was stiff and I was lame and walked with a very distinct limp. Nerviline was brought to my notice and I rubbed it into the stiff joint four or five times a day. It dispelled every vestige of pain, stiffness and gave me the full use of my limb again. I don't believe there is a pain-relieving remedy not a single liniment that can compare with Nerviline. I hope every person with pains, with sore back, with lameness with lumbago, with neuralgia—I do hope they will try out Nerviline which I am convinced will quickly and permanently cure them.

If Nerviline wasn't a wonderful painless remedy, if Nerviline didn't quickly relieve, if Nerviline wasn't known to be a grand cure for all rheumatic conditions, it wouldn't have been so largely used as a family remedy for the past forty years. No better, stronger, or more soothing liniment made. Get the large 50c. family size bottle; small trial size 25c. sold by any dealer anywhere.

For the Weary Wife and Mother, after the Winter struggle with poor food and poor service, there is no boon like Shredded Wheat Biscuit. It is ready-cooked and ready-to-serve. The food that supplies all the strength-giving nutriment needed for a half-day's work. For breakfast with milk or cream. Eat it for luncheon with berries or other fruit.

Farewell Address To Rev. George Orman

On Friday evening last, Rev. George Orman, the retiring Methodist Pastor at Cornwall, was presented with the following address by a committee from King William Lodge, L. O. L.

Address to Rev. George Orman, Pastor of the Cornwall Methodist Field, Dear Brother:—

We, the members of King William Lodge, No. 1166, on this, the eve of your departure for another field of labor in one of the sister Provinces, wish to convey to you our high appreciation of your valuable services while a member of this Lodge.

You have filled a large place in our honored Order, as Grand Master and Grand Chaplain, and at present Honorary Grand Chaplain. The duties of these honorable offices you have discharged so capably, and with such fidelity, as to merit our heartfelt commendation.

In all our meetings we have learned to look to you for that wise counsel and leadership which you so strikingly evidence in your daily walk and conversation, and in your ministrations in the different meetings, public and private, of our Lodge.

On various occasions you have been called upon to preside, and it is only right for us to affirm that, at such times you filled the chair with dignity, grace, and impartiality.

We will also miss your cheery companionship, for we have ever felt that you took a strong personal interest in us individually as well as a warm regard collectively.

Both you, and Mrs. Orman, will be greatly missed in this community, and we feel, sure, that our loss will be the gain of others, and that in the new field to which you have been called, you will still be working for righteous and the promotion of those principles which characterize the Orange body of the Dominion of Canada.

Thus, Lodge King William, No. 1166, and the Cornwall Circuit, in bidding both Mr. Orman and yourself adieu, will ever pray that the richest blessings of a beneficent Providence may attend you both, and that abundant good may follow your efforts in your new field of labor.

On behalf of the members of King William Lodge, No. 1166. The address was read by Mr. R. S. Barrett. Mr. D. T. Fraser added some words of appreciation.

Mr. G. F. Younker, Master of the Lodge, and another member of the committee was unavoidably absent. Rev. Mr. Orman made a fitting reply in his usual eloquent style, asking the committee to convey to the Lodge his heartfelt thanks for the complimentary address, and he asked them also to accept his appreciation of the many kindnesses he had received at the hands of the brethren.

Mr. Orman is an honorary member of the Lodge, and has been one of the principal speakers at banquets, on 12th of July celebrations. The high esteem in which he is held by the few members is evidenced by the fact that about a year ago he was also presented with a gold-headed cane and an address.

The Sunday evening service at the Presbyterian Church, Summer side was of a patriotic nature. There were several special features, including the reading of the honor roll of those who had joined the colors from this church. It included some twenty-five names. At the close of the service a purse of gold was presented to Miss Harrison on the eve of her departure for her home in Marysville, N. B. The deep regret of the congregation and the community, at the loss of her most willing and efficient services was expressed by the minister, and by Mr. Neil McLeod, K. C. Miss Harrison replied in fitting terms, thanking the people of Summerside for many kindnesses, and expressing her hope that the members of the church and congregation would be the most happy.

Had a Nervous Breakdown, Could Not Sleep or Work

IS NOW CURED AND ATTRIBUTES HIS RECOVERY TO THE USE OF DR. CHASE'S MEDICINES.

Some splendid results have been reported to us from the combined use of Dr. Chase's Kidney, Liver Pills and Nerve Food. In complication cases they work together with great success.

While the Kidney, Liver Pills cleanse the system of liver troubles, Nerve Food restores the system in a general way.

Mr. R. B. Sullivan, Barbrook, Muskoka, Ont., writes: "About four years ago I was all run down, and could not work, and as a result, writing a letter, I could not do it on account of my hand shaking so badly. My nerves were unstrung and I was troubled with a nervous breakdown. I could not sleep soundly and would start up so suddenly as to almost jump out of bed. My kidneys were bad, too, and I had awful pains in my back all day. I doctored with our family doctor, but he did not seem to know what to do. I was recommended to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney, Liver Pills. I took only a few bottles, and my nerves were restored to their normal condition. I was able to do my work again, and my back is now as good as new. I attribute my recovery to the use of Dr. Chase's medicines, which are for sale by all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

A good many of these fruits contain cane sugar, or sucrose, which is one of the sweetest sugars we have, and when the fruit is eaten raw the taste of the cane sugar, or sucrose, is quite pronounced and has the effect of counteracting a considerable quantity of acid. When the fruit is cooked, however, due to the organic acid present in the fruit, most of the cane sugar of this cane sugar becomes inverted, that is changed to invert sugar and is not so sweet. In our judgment this is the reason why cooked fruits are so much more sour than raw fruits not because there is a greater content of acid present, but because there is a much smaller quantity of cane sugar present. Floyd W. Robinson, Michigan Farmer.

These same plums, however, cooked are so sour that they can scarcely be eaten without the addition of sugar, and it has been supposed that the cooking of plums increases the acid content. Scientifically it has not been easy to understand why this could be. It would be much easier to suppose that the cooking of fruit decreases acidity than that it increases it, were it not for the fact that the common observation indicates that the acidity has been increased, at least comparatively. Some experiments have been undertaken to ascertain if there had been an actual increase in acid, and it has been found that the cooking of fruit does not increase the acidity. One experimenter claims that the increased acid flavor is due to the fact that cooked fruit usually contains the skin, which is commonly rejected if the fruit is eaten raw, and as an instance he cites plums, gooseberries and currants. While we believe that a certain amount of acid substance exists around the fruit inside the skin, at the same time it seems that the greatest amount of sugar is also present at these places, and in our experience we are not familiar with the results of the skin, gooseberries and currants when they are eaten raw.

Otherwise than in the Lutsik region neither side has made any headway in this contest. The Times correspondent at the Russian headquarters at this front explains how the Germans can win nearly a thousand miles long, and that it is impossible for the Russians to effect concentrations at the same speed as the Germans.

SUGAR IN FRUIT.

WHY COOKED FRUIT IS MORE SOUR THAN RAW.

A very common observation, and curiously enough, an observation which has never been explained in a wholly satisfactory way, is the fact that while raw fruits may be palatable because of a not excessive acidity, when these fruits are cooked it becomes necessary to add sugar to them before they can be eaten. Let us take a well known example, plums. Plums when ripe, are a delicious article of food eaten raw. These same plums, however, cooked are so sour that they can scarcely be eaten without the addition of sugar, and it has been supposed that the cooking of plums increases the acid content. Scientifically it has not been easy to understand why this could be. It would be much easier to suppose that the cooking of fruit decreases acidity than that it increases it, were it not for the fact that the common observation indicates that the acidity has been increased, at least comparatively. Some experiments have been undertaken to ascertain if there had been an actual increase in acid, and it has been found that the cooking of fruit does not increase the acidity.
