MacIntyre - MacLean Nuptials

A marriage of more than usual interest was solemnized in St. Dunstan's Basilica at 9 o'clock yesterday morning, when Miss Anne MacIntyre, R.N., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. MacIntyre of this city, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Roderick Duncan MacLean, B.A., son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald MacLean, Antigonish, N. Earl Dalton, of the Basilica, Sub-Deacon, and Rev. Louis Dougan, of the Basilica Staff, Master of Ceremonies. Leonard's mass was rendered by the male choir of the Basilica, under the direction of Mr. W. J. Brown, Miss Bessie Blanchard presiding at the organ.

During the signing of the register Rev. B. Gillis, D.D., rendered the English hymn, "Hail, Queen of Heaven." The bride was assisted by Mrs. C. V. Fisher, as matron of honor, while her husband, Dr. C. V. Fisher of Roxbury, Mass., supported the groom. The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, by whom she was given away, the organ pealed forth the familiar strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

The church was crowded by a large number of friends of the contracting parties, the invited guests being ushered by Dr. Jas. Reddin, and Mr. Francis MacIntyre. The bride was attractively gowned in Periwinkle blue tulle, made in a beehive style, with hat and shoes to match, and carried a bouquet of white lilies, while the matron of honor was gowned in tea rose tulle with hat and slippers to match, and carried a bouquet of blue larkspur.

CHANCELLORY

unprecedented situations. Rebels, members of an outlawed party, had invaded the very headquarters of the government itself, the head of the government, who a few hours before had been threatening to hang them for terrorism and captured everybody in sight. Earlier another group of Nazis had captured the government radio station and held it long enough to broadcast an announcement that Dollfuss had resigned and that Rintelen was head of the government.

The army and the Heimwehr, representing the power of the government, was deployed in the square before the building, ordering the greatly outnumbered and comparatively poor equipped rebels to surrender, threatening to attack if they did not.

Fey, loyal government man, came to the balcony, accompanied by two Nazis guards, who apparently were holding revolvers to his back, and negotiated for the release and safe transit to a foreign country for the man who killed his chief.

The extent to which the Nazis long looked for to start a "putsch" against the government they have been harassing with bombs and incendiaries—prepared for today's coup was not clear.

(Nazi leaders exiled in Germany denied that their comrades at home were responsible for the outbreak.)

NAZIS SEIZE TOWNS

It was clear, however, that there must have been some general understanding since fighting broke out in Styria, where the Nazis were reported to have seized several towns in which they have many sympathizers.

After his release Fey made a radio speech in which he said that Dollfuss was shot in a separate room from the apartment in which the other Cabinet members were confined.

The Nazis, he said, gave him and his companions an opportunity to see the wounded Chancellor, who in his dying moments begged that his family be taken care of, and expressed the belief that bloodshed can be avoided in Austria.

The next time he saw Dollfuss, the Chancellor was dead, Fey said. The body still lay in his office at nine p.m.

Dollfuss' family, composed of Frau Dollfuss and two children, was in Riccione, Italy, and the wife was prostrated with grief when she learned that he had been slain.

The Nazis were vacationing with that of Premier Mussolini of Italy and Dollfuss himself had an engagement to see Mussolini later this week to talk about the future of his nation.

TOOK RADIO STATION

The disguised Nazis started their day's "putsch" by taking the radio station at the cost of four lives, and making the announcement regarding Dollfuss' resignation.

While machine guns barked out the story that the government was retaking the radio station, and the chancellor was seized and the ministers captured. Dollfuss was shot without warning, officials said.

The army and the Heimwehr went to the large Bauhaus Platz before the government building to rescue the head of the government. Fey, with his guards appeared upon the balcony and said something to an officer which resulted in the withdrawal of the army. Although large detachments later were moved up to a strategic position.

The Dominion Fur Sales, Limited

The following is an open letter received by The Dominion Fur Sales, Limited, Summerside, P. E. I. "The Dominion Fur Sales Limited, Summerside, Prince Edward Island, Canada. I saw by the Island papers that you are handling Gerber's Dried Bread Crumbs. The Island fox men will thank you after the first breeding season. We have been buying this same feed for the last six years and it is 50 percent our cereal ration. Our production has never been below three and a quarter. We give dried bread crumbs a lot of credit. We have yet to find any fault. We have inspected the plant many times and always find it in fine shape. In fact we use the bread crumbs for bread pudding and for breaded pork chops or any occasion we have to use dried bread in the house. You are to be congratulated on securing such a good product. For your information, Mr. Gerber is supplying Fromm Bros., Niemen & Co., the largest fur farms in the country, all the bread crumbs they use. Yours very truly, (Sgd.) CHARLES T. DUNNING."
