STUDENTS HAD ADVENTURES

CLEVELAND, Aug. 29--After having twice been in danger of death and once arrested and chained with criminals, Herbert V. Schiefer and Richard G. Gill Case School students are back in Cleveland. They left this city July 4 to work their way to Europe on a cattle boat.

Gill is the son of John Gill, a wealthy retired business man of Muscogee, I. T. and Schiefer is the son of Samuel Schiefer a manufacturer of Massillon, Ohio. They left Cleveland penniless and determined that they would not say transportation.

They sailed from Baltimore July 14 on the cattle boat Almorra for Liverpool. For sixteen days they were compelled to work like slaves with the poorest food to eat. One night a storm nearly demolished the boat. No one expected to escape.

While riding on a freight train in New York they were held up, beaten, and robbed. In Sohenetady they were arrested as tramps and chained to criminals.

SCHR. WM. DUNBAR WAS DISMASTED

In Yesterday's Gale--Towed to Charlottetown by S. S. City of Ghent--Crew Safe.

There is lying at Pownal Wharf a waterlogged schooner, which, but for the fact that her cargo consists of railway sleepers, might today have been lying at the bottom of the Straits of Northumberland, and her crew the victims of a similar fate.

She is the William Dunbar, a small schooner, owned by Captain Read of Piquash, N. S. She was on her way to Charlottetown with a load of sleepers for the Island railway, consigned from Northport, N. S.

During the blow yesterday the schooner made heavy weather and the choppy sea in the straits made it hard to manize her. She has seen a good deal of service and in trying to navigate her into port both masts went by the board.

Fortunately they broke off clean and the crew escaped injury. Had the accident occurred after dark the condition of the men would have been perilous but as it luckily happened the afternoon the schooner was towed to the disabled schooner and in answer to her signals threw the crew a tow line and turned back to Charlottetown bringing the schooner along behind.

Whether the bumping of the mainmast which was attached to her side opened her planks, or whether she filled when her bows went under as her tow rope tautened, it is hard to say, but on arrival at Charlottetown the schooner was lying deck awash. The crew was taken off all night and came to the City in the steamer.

HOME COMING OF WILLIAM J. BRYAN

NEW YORK August 30--(Special)--The home coming of W. J. Bryan was complete tonight when he was greeted in Madison Square Gardens by a throng numbering more than 20,000.

It was such a welcome as never has been accorded a private citizen. Bryan's eyes filled with tears as he acknowledged the cheers.

For eight minutes he strode nervously from side to side of the narrow platform. Only once again during the entire evening was there anything approaching it that was when the speaker told his hearers that he had become converted to the cause of government ownership of railroads.

I favor the control of only trunk lines by national government, and ownership of all other railroads by state governments.

In an instant a thousand voices were raised and faces turned towards the side of building opposite the speakers stand where Wm. Randolph Hearst sat, and cheers were given for Hearst.

Mr. Bryan spoke for an hour and twenty minutes, declaring that trusts were great issue of the day and scoring the Republican platform for not passing the legislation urged by President Roosevelt, giving publicity to campaign contributions.

St. JOHN, Aug. 30--(Special)--Dr. Harrison Chancellor of the University of New Brunswick has handed his resignation to the Provincial Government today.

It is believed that Professor Walter Murray of Dalhousie will succeed him. It is understood that Professor Cecil Jones of Acadia College will be an applicant.

The Government deferred action until tomorrow. Should no successor be appointed before the beginning of the college year it is likely Dr. Baily will act as Chancellor throughout the year.

A painful accident occurred this morning when Jack Armstrong the seven-year old son of E. J. Armstrong, printer, fell down the elevator shaft in Mr. Armstrong printing establishment and was badly injured.

The little fellow had gone into the room where elevator shaft was and was standing near shaft talking to another boy when the shaft had been lifted up.

He called to young Armstrong not to go too close to it. Hardly were the words spoken when the child lost his balance and fell down shaft over thirty feet to the bottom.

When picked up he was found to be still conscious, but suffering very much. Dr. Walker was called and had the little fellow taken to his office. He was there given some attention and was soon as possible removed to the hospital.

His face and head was badly bruised and cut and his right arm is broken.

Mercham, of Portales, while out driving across the desert near Kenna yesterday found a covered wagon with two dead men on the seat and four mules dead in their harness.
