Georgetown

An illustrated temperance lecture of a very high order was held in the Georgetown Temperance Hall on the evening of April 20th, when Rev. C. U. McNevein came along with his lantern and by means of some forty slides told "The story of two lives." It is the story of two boys who were born in the north of England some fifty years ago under very different conditions. The one was the son of a large business man, but a moderate drinker, and his son learned the habit, but he was brilliant and as a young man was sent off to Oxford, where he did well and graduated with honours. However, the drink habit continued with him, and it grew on him till he began to sink. Then he married, but instead of conditions improving, they grew worse and worse. At last an attic became their home and the little ones had to do all they could to help mother earn a living. At last his wife ended by dying in delirium tremens. The other boy was born in a poor Sympathy from this community and beyond goes out to our faithful mail courier Mr. Martin and Mrs. Martin in their great sorrow. They have lost a son who was just in the prime of manhood. Reginald has a host of friends who will mourn his early passing, but most of all he will be missed in the home, by his wife, his sister and brothers. The funeral was very largely attended, service being conducted by Rev. E. J. Ohlholm. Interment took place in the Cross Roads Cemetery.

Two of the members of our local W. C. T. U. Misses Lillian Jenkins and Sadie Jones visited the school recently and presented prizes to the scholars who were winners in the Temperance work, viz: Miss Isabelle Ings, Claude Jones and Jackie Herman from Grade nine. Grade six Gordon Brown and J. Lorne Ings. Miss Jones gave a very interesting talk. We have many signs of Spring, the song of the robin at dawn, the honk of the wild geese as he revels in the blue waters from which the ice has gone and the ardent lover hastening his footsteps, as he journeys through the wood lands to meet his hearts desire for it is Spring, beautiful Spring. The woods in this section of the province are exceptionally dry. The last of the month will see the autos again which will bring us back to the good old summer time.

The Hungarian partridges which arrived in Charlottetown from Alberta some time ago were shipped to Hazelbrook on Monday where they were taken in hand by Mr. W. E. Smith of Pownal who gave them their freedom in his woods in Hazelbrook where it is hoped the true spirit of sportsmanship will be exemplified.

Sunday evening Rev. A. S. Murray delivered a very interesting sermon from the words "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord Thy God in vain" which should have been heard by many more young men. The speaker pointed out the fact that while men will not insult the great men of today they call it idle habit when they insult their Creator, without even blushing. After the regular service a large number called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Judson where a sing song was had. Mr. Judson possesses a tenor voice of fine range and certainly enjoys using it. These two octogenarians are in splendid health. Mrs. Judson does all her own house work. She has hooked two rugs this spring along with caring for her flock of hens which are laying well despite the depression. Mr. Judson who has been a sm'th all his life is still able to make the sparks fly. It was a pleasure to sing with these folk once more and we hope to do so again in the near future.

Spanish Main Treasure Buried In Cumberland (Canadian Press)

MONTREAL, Apr 12—Belief that treasure buried by the offspring of a famed freebooter of the Spanish Main, was to be found on the "Fleet Road," Cumberland County, Nova Scotia, was expressed here today by Miss Dorothea Vliet, lineal descendant of Buck Vliet.

Miss Vliet said she was positive treasure was buried there but hesitated to dig because she anticipated legal troubles. She told the story to Lyon W. Jacobs, K. C., seeking his advice, and later gave an interview.

She is 31 years of age, chestnut haired, and of the Vliet family. She believes her treasure is buried in a long-forgotten graveyard beside a wagon trail that a century's growth of trees have effaced. The trail, in Cumberland County, is still preserved in the memory of old inhabitants as the Fleet Road, she said, and parts of it even appear as a dotted line on maps sketched by Hugh Fletcher, surveyor, back to the 90's.

Miss Vliet said that she has explored the trail and found two graves, marked by moss-overgrown headstones. By scraping one of them she discovered the name "Fleet." The Fleets, she believed, were the old family of the Vliets, issue of piratical stock. Their right to the land on which they once endeavored to build a lasting estate away from possibility of arrest arose from their capacity of squatters.

She hesitated to proceed because she feared her claim to the treasure might be overthrown. Mr. Jacobs advised her that land acquired by squatters' rights would have been lost by the lapse of centuries, but the presence of two graves on the very site of the supposed cache would make it inprescriptible. Burial grounds were considered as sacred things and could not have their ownership changed unless the bodies had been removed.

Miss Vliet had been working in the cookhouse of a lumber camp at Parent, Que., during the winter.

Famous Hotels Of Paris Feel Pinch Nowadays

PARIS, April 22—The hotel that in the good old days of yore served dinners costing up in the thousands of dollars—when fruit and vegetables were served growing in poted urns on silver platters—today offering lunches at prix fixe to stimulate trade and tempt customers into its still spacious but sparsely filled salons.

The Hotel Ritz, in that celebrated and aristocratic area known as the Palace Vendome, has announced that meals will be served at a fixed price including certain wines, and is actively engaged in stimulating increased trade by every known means of publicity. A far cry from the days, not so long passed, when to get into this select dwelling place of the most high, the proper pass word had to be said, credentials shown and references given.

Hotels are keeping a stiff upper lip, however, preserving the dignity and decorum of better and happier days, and swallowing bravely the bitter pill of having to cater to people.

Today, royalty and riff-raff—provided it pays the price—rub shoulders in the rose and old dining rooms of the Ritz, the Persian carpets in the corridors are feeling for the first time, the touch of strange and unaccustomed feet, and waiters spill tears in the soup as necessity compels them to serve it to Bourgeois clients, who stick their napkins under their chin and silence the singing of the birds in the adjacent garden with their succulent soup symphonies.

"C'est la vie!" says the maitre d'hotel with a sigh. "In the old days in the rose and gold dining me must eat to live, what else can we do?"

IN MEMORIAM

THE LATE JAMES PURDIE

By the passing of Mr. James Purdie, whose death occurred at his home in this city Thursday, Charlottetown has lost one of its best known and most highly respected residents. He was a citizen possessing high and honourable principles and in all his dealings during many years in the commercial life of this city, was the soul of honor.

During his illness, of about a month, he received the best medical attention and tender nursing, but his advanced years made recovery impossible.

The late James Purdie was born in Charlottetown 88 years ago, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Purdie. His father for many years conducted a large general merchandise business, shipping large quantities of goods to the Old Country, and at his death the deceased w'th a brother John, continued the business under the firm name of J. S. & J. Purdie.

In 1888 they sold out, the deceased with his family removing to San Francisco where they remained for twelve and a half years.

On his return to Charlottetown the late Mr. Purdie became associated with the late S. W. Crabbe in the hardware business, remaining for thirty eight years, until the, death of Mr. Crabbe. After the business was disposed of in 1920 Mr. Purdie retired and he remained quietly at home until his demise.

He leaves to mourn the loss of a kind and loving father three sons and one daughter; his wife (ne Jane B. Douse) predeceased him two years ago. The surviving members of the family are: Reverend J. B. Purdie, Prince of the Bible School, Toronto; Victor of the firm of Purdie-Ferguson Shoe Co., and Rev. D. Rector of Saint David's Church, Ottawa, and Miss Maud C., at home.

The funeral will be held from St. Paul's Church this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock to the McLean Funeral Home where the body will rest until the arrival of his son Reverend D. Purdie who is expected to arrive home on Monday night. The funeral will be held privately on Tuesday.

Soviets To Retain Jap Friendliness

MOSCOW, April 22—(AP)—The Paramount importance to Soviet Russia of maintaining peaceful and neighborly relations with Japan was emphasized in an address before the trade unions congress tonight by V. M. Molotoff, Chairman of the Council of Labor and Defense.

From the "white guard, the deserters, landlords, and capitalists who previously dominated Russia down to the agents of the imperialist powers and the Chinese generals, there are persons who are striving to disrupt peaceful relations between Russia and Japan, he declared.

In the military Imperialist circles of Japan, he added, there are advocates of far-reaching aggression. And in these circumstances, it is necessary to preserve peace.
