

INCREASED SUBSIDIES DEMANDED

Appear Mostly a Grab for Western Provinces

INTENTION TO BALANCE

Maritime Claim for Fishery Award—Murray and Longley Think Demand Will Carry.

NEW SUBSIDIES DEMANDED.

OTTAWA, Jan. 28.—(Special)—The total increase in provincial subsidies demanded by the Provinces would amount to $2,159,832, of which amount $151,824 would have to be paid anyway under the increase shown by the census in Manitoba, British Columbia and New Brunswick.

BIG GRAB FOR THE WEST.

If granted this will be a great grab for Ontario, Quebec and the Western Provinces which will get over $2,100,000 of the total. As their population also grows more rapidly than the Maritime Provinces they will also gain more largely in the future by having the subsidy increased after each census as proposed.

TO BALANCE FISHERY AWARD.

It seems intended by this deal to give the West a quid pro quo for the Fisheries Award should that be divided between the Maritime Provinces and Quebec, as will probably be done.

WILL PROBABLY BE GRANTED.

Premier Murray and Attorney General Longley have left for home. They expressed the opinion that the increased subsidies will be given by the Dominion.

TREATY SIGNED FOR SETTLING THE ALASKAN BOUNDARY MATTER

Tribunal of Six Jurists to Be Appointed, Two from Canada—Sir Louis Davis and Hon David Mills Mentioned as Probable Members—No one to Give the Casting Vote, Both Sides Being Equal.

WASHINGTON, January 25.—Secretary Hay and Sir Michael Herbert, British ambassador, yesterday signed a treaty providing for the settlement of the Alaskan boundary question. Efforts in this direction have been put forward for a long time, the pressure coming from both sides, the Canadian miners being anxious to get through the Klondike to the sea without passing through American territory, and the Americans insisting upon their right to the coast line and the control of the ports.

The treaty provides for the reference of all these boundary questions to a mixed tribunal of jurists, three on each side, to determine the interpretation to be placed on the treaty of 1825 between Great Britain and Russia, which defined the boundaries between British America and Alaska.

This proposition is virtually the same as that brought forward by the American members of the Joint High Commission, which met in Washington three years ago but which then was rejected by the British and Canadian representatives. It has taken three years to obtain the consent of the British and the Canadian governments to a just the boundary disputes on this basis.

It is understood that the treaty has been drawn up after thorough consultation with leading members of the senate of both political parties. The administration desiring to do everything possible to advance and secure its ratification. The commission proposed is curious in composition, consisting of an equal number of members upon each side, without an umpire or odd man to cast the deciding vote.

No other terms of arbitration would have been acceptable to the people of the northwest states, who see in this arrangement a practical extinction of any chance of a decision hostile to their plans. On the other hand, to get a verdict favorable to the American claim, the case of the United States must be so strongly presented as to win the support of at least one of the Canadian contingent. The treaty will soon be submitted to the United States Senate and the effort will be made to ratify it before the expiration of the present session.

Under the Canadian contention, all the Lynn canal, with Chilkat any Tarya inlets and the Dyea and White Passes, would be in Canadian territory; under the American contention they would be in United States territory.

GENTLEMEN,—Again I have the pleasure of thanking you for your cordial support and co-operation in the labors of another year. The year just closed has been in many ways an eventful one. Its opening saw soldiers on the battlefields of South Africa; its close saw that country at peace and another colony added to the Dominions of Britain. It saw our beloved King standing in the valley of the shadow of death and rejoiced over his restoration to health. I saw him crowned King of Great Britain and of her Dominions beyond the sea.

In our own Dominion peace and prosperity ruled; our trade and commerce have advanced in an unprecedented degree. Our contribution to the world's markets has far exceeded that of former years; and an era of general prosperity appears to have dawned upon our country.

When I had the pleasure of addressing you at our last annual meeting, your attention was directed to the unsatisfactory
