LEAVING THE PROVINCE

This morning Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Ross and family leave by automobile on a long trek of 3,000 odd miles to Vancouver, B. C., where they intend making their home for the future. This is not an ordinary case of emigration from the Island as the public testimonials published in yesterday's and today's Guardian prove. Owing to reasons of health Dr. Ross, who is still in the prime of life, considers it advisable to remove to a climate where the winters and especially the hoar frost will not tell so severely upon him. While in England, during the war, he contracted bronchial trouble which recurs with the approach of every winter and he has been advised that he will probably get rid of his trouble if he chooses to live in a climate where frost and snow are practically unknown. And so, Dr. Ross has selected Vancouver for the experiment and, being a thorough sportsman and a lover of the out of doors has chosen to proceed by his own car, camping en route when necessary and making a leisurely and enjoyable tour of it in the best of summer weather which he can easily do, seeing that he is not tied down to any time table.

Dr. Ross' name has been a household word on the Island for many years. A Belfaster both by birth and predilection he has practised successfully at Eldon, Alberton and Charlottetown besides devoting a year as Army Surgeon in one of the Military hospitals in England during the war. The doctor has entered enthusiastically into the social as well as the professional life of the community and has been a member of many organizations in all of which his advice and assistance are greatly valued by the membership. Everyone who knows the doctor and many who know him only by reputation regret his departure and we feel we are echoing the general sentiment of the community when we wish for him and his health and abundant prosperity in his new Canadian home in the West.

DEMORALIZING CANADA

A lady, in giving her opinion of a certain function which she had attended, perpetrated this unpardonable pun: "It is not so much the menu as the men you meet!" Had she been asked to give her opinion of the political situation in Canada today, she would probably have less to say about the fiscal menu provided by the Robb budget than about the men you meet in defending it. Probably never in the history of any country, certainly never in the history of Canada, has a party so utterly thrown to the winds its whole political creed and traditions and so fulsomely lauded the new direction it was obliged to take in order to save its political skin, as has the present semblance of the old Liberal party, a semblance which dares to bear the name while stripped of every principle of Liberalism.

The people of Canada must be greatly edified and comforted by being daily told that they are all satisfied with the Robb tariff, that this was just what the people wanted and that through the statesmanship of the Rt. Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King this tariff was concocted in the interests of the farmers and the manufacturers! All this while everyone in Canada who knows anything knows that the tariff is not of Liberal choice but was thrust upon them by the Progressives who demanded it as an alternative to withdrawing their support and facing a general election!

They tell us that tariff protection is of no use to Canada as prices are controlled by the open world markets. This while officials of the government are issuing official figures to show that the home market consumes from 93 to 98 per cent of Canada's whole agricultural production! This, when everyone knows that practically all the bacon and hams and even the butter exported to Great Britain is sold there at a much lower price than is obtained for it in the home market.

They tell us that it will pay our farmers to buy from the United States rather than from Canadian manufacturers; that it will pay our farmers to buy their stock feed from United States mills rather than from Canadian mills, that the Canadian markets, barely sufficient for our home production will not be injured by the free and almost free importation of American agricultural products, and much more to the same effect. And all this the poor benighted people of Canada are expected to believe!

What if any considerable proportion of our people should believe it? Where would Canada be ten years hence if the theory of buying in the United States rather than in Canada should be accepted? What would Canada be without the industrial centres which grew up under the National Policy, a policy as strictly adhered to during the past forty years by Liberals as by Conservatives? How long would it be before Canada became "independent" or "annexed" to the United States?

To whom was Mr. MacKenzie King appealing when he set forth in the House of Commons a few days ago that there were three possible developments in the future for Canada, namely, "independence," "annexation to the United States" or a "more clearly defined nationhood"? Have we enough disruptionists in Canada to be worth while appealing to in this fashion? Is Mr. MacKenzie King himself a disruptionist. Or is he anything to anybody who for any consideration will give him his support?

OUR COUNTRY

Surely our province is at present a land to be proud of, a land in which it is a pleasure to live. The copious rain of last Saturday night and Sunday gave new life and vigor to vegetation and the growth and increasing greenness since then have been almost unparalleled even in this land of rapid vegetation. There are many strangers in the city, some of them from England, noted for its rural beauty, some from inland Canada and from the United States and all are enthusiastic in their comments on the loveliness of The Island. Crop prospects in all lines, grain, vegetables and fruit are more than ordinarily bright and the indications are that we shall have one of the largest harvests in our history.

CANADA'S DEBT

The total indebtedness of Canada federal, provincial and municipal in 1913 was $601,870,000. In 1919 it had risen to $3,604,600,000 mainly because of the expenditures consequent upon the war. Since then it has risen to $4,336,538,435 and is still growing notwithstanding statements to the contrary. There is a growing opinion that it is time to call a halt. With debt and taxation both growing there appears to be little room for unnecessary extravagance.

Notes By the Way

Much has been said and written about the coming election in British Columbia, staged for Friday next, the number of parties and candidates, including men, women and preachers that are taking part in it, but the beer plebiscite which is to take place at the same time has hardly received a line of mention. The Columbians apparently think the less said about it the better. The Moderation League began two years ago an agitation to have the sale of beer by the glass allowed at the government stores. This was refused. The demand was renewed last year with the same result, but at the recent session a plebiscite was authorized on the question, to be voted at the same time as the provincial general election.

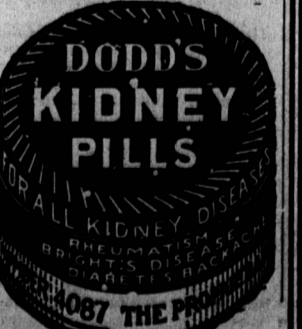

The Moderation League is a pretty name for the promoters of the free retail sale of beer, but we have our doubts about the real moderation of our Pacific cousins owing to some published statistics of quantities and values of the booze they consume. During the first year that the traffic was under government control the Columbians managed to swallow $9,000,000 worth of spirituous and malt liquors. The second year the sales rose to $12,000,000 and it is confidently estimated that in the last year, which ended just now on 15th June a total of $14,000,000 will be registered. It is questioned whether the habitual drinkers number 250,000, and if that number paid the fourteen millions of cost they were going it at a rapid pace indeed.

The population of the province is in round figures 550,000. It seems to be notorious that bootlegging is extensively carried on outside of what is sold in the licensed places and if what is thus unlawfully sold were added to the fourteen millions legally supplied the average consumption for every man, woman and child in the province would be rather appalling. Should the beer plebiscite result as the Moderation League confidently hope it may, there is no doubt that the consumption of intoxicants will be further rapidly increased. The revenue argument, is much relied upon by the "wets" to boost up government control. Not only has the provincial government treasury been hugely enriched, but the cities share in the harvest. In one year the Vancouver stores took in over $3,710,000, of which the city share was $273,000 or $2 per head of population.

Sale of beer by the glass is strongly advocated by the "wets" on the specious plea that it will tend to reduce the consumption of whiskey gin and other hard liquors. Four days before the beer plebiscite in British Columbia the people of Saskatchewan are voting to decide whether prohibition shall be repealed and government control of the liquor traffic brought in as has already been done in Alberta. The Prairie Provinces are largely Progressive in politics and the large element of immigrants from foreign countries tends towards the retrogressive policy of restoring the liquor traffic to the provinces in which they have located and which have been dry for years past.

Today, June 18th, is the anniversary of the Battle of Waterloo. It was fought on a Sunday, that "loud Sabbath," as Tennyson calls it, in which Wellington met Napoleon for the first time in battle and "shook the spoiler down." It was a great and decisive conflict and ended Napoleon's career of power and conquest. But in point of the numbers engaged, the extent of the battle front, the destructive engines employed and the number of killed and wounded it would now be counted as little more than a skirmish when compared with one of the great battles of the Great War of our times. The front presented by the opposing forces was about two miles, and both the British and French armies together numbered little more than one-fourth of the host that Canada sent across the sea to battle with the Kaiser.

Wellington's entire force was 67,661 British, German and Dutch troops of whom only 23,991 were British, and 156 guns. Napoleon's army numbered 71,991 men and

THE LOBSTER SEASON

Sir,—It is rumored that there will be no extension given to the lobster fishing season. Now to be brief. In my opinion we should have ten to fifteen days from June 26th, and anyone wishing to use those days could do so according as it looked feasible to them, and might possibly do some good. Another rumor is that some parties want a second season later on. I ask, who under existing conditions would be crazy enough to ask for this. A few years ago we had this and the following spring what did we find? A very low catch, and again with a glutted market from last year anyone with any common sense could easily see the effect. Another thing to look at is the low prices for canned lobsters. Who would be foolish enough to truck out their gear the second time, after having it put away for the season for a paltry few cases at a low price, which would mean nothing to anyone, as well as spoiling the business for another year. There are plenty other occupations after the 26th June besides engaging in such fool business as mentioned above.

I am Sir, etc.

Your Birthdays

JUNE 18.—You need more self-confidence. You have ability, but your diffidence often causes you to step aside in favor of those with inferior qualifications. Your pleasing manner wins many friends for you, and you are held in the highest esteem by all who know you. Your love is of the clinging type, and you will probably select a mate who is masterful and compelling. Cultivate hope and courage, and live out of doors a lot.

Your birth-stone is a pearl, which means health and long life. Your flower is the honeysuckle. Your lucky colors are light blue and white.

246 guns. The battle raged from about 9 o'clock in the morning until 7 in the evening. About 5 o'clock in the afternoon 16,000 Prussians arrived on the field—strange to say they were then Britain's allies. By 7 o'clock the Prussian forces under Blucher were increased to 50,000 and the entire allied army moved forward. A total rout of the French army ensued. The British losses were 93 officers and 1,916 men killed and missing, and 563 officers and 4,569 men wounded. The total loss of the allied army amounted to 4,206 killed, 14,539 wounded and 4,231 missing, a total of 23,976 lost hours de combat. The French loss in killed, wounded and prisoners was much greater.

Some day the question of the right of civil servants to walk out or go on strike in a body will have to be seriously considered in Canada. The right to resign has never been challenged. There are always plenty of men and women not only willing but eager to get into the employ of the government. Taxpayers as well as the salaried classes have certain rights which ought to be considered. From the taxpayers' standpoint there are many salaries at the top of the government machine, Cabinet Ministers, Members of Parliament and others, whose pay is much too great and this fact seems to have a demoralising effect upon the entire public service of the Dominion.

By James W. Barton, M.D., NERVES AND DIGESTION

It is not unusual for a patient to complain to his physician about a form of indigestion and diarrhoea that is very persistent.

The physician uses the ordinary remedies, and endeavors to allay his fears by telling him that the symptoms are not like those that would be caused by cancer, ulcer, or other serious organic condition.

The patient returns in a short time and is not any better. The physician in order to prove that there is nothing seriously wrong, then suggests a test meal and removes the material from the stomach with the stomach pump.

Nothing unusual is found. A dismuth meal is then given, and its progress through the intestine is watched for three or four days by means of the X-Ray.

Again nothing is found. This is sometimes sufficient to satisfy the patient but not in every case.

Now what is really the matter? Well, this is often called "nervous indigestion," and although physicians do not like this name it is the one most generally used.

It is simply the same thing in an aggravated form from which you suffer when you have had something worrying you, or have received some bad news.

You will remember that you were unable to eat anything, and you found yourself troubled with diarrhoea ever time the door or telephone bell rang.

Your physician has told you that medicine is not what you need, but you have tried one thing after another, until you have almost started some real trouble in the stomach or intestine.

Now what is the treatment? Well, just as the sight of good food excited the mouth and stomach juices, depressing emotion can have the opposite effect, and the juices are not forthcoming to take care of the food.

Then in the large intestine the nerves which drive the waste material along are stimulated to overactivity, and a diarrhoea results.

The only treatment is that of getting outdoors, taking regular exercise, eating simple nourishing food.

Getting outdoors gives a change of scenery and gets the mind away from the depressing emotion. This is why the holiday, the change, the new form of work or exercise will render almost a magic cure in a very short time.

DR. GLOVER TELLS MEDICAL MEN HE HAS ISOLATED CANCER GERM

BUTTE, Montana, June 17.—Before a medical meeting held at St. James' Hospital, last night, Dr. T. J. Glover, of Toronto, presented a paper describing in detail his cancer research work. He showed and described the germ that, he said, caused cancer. Dr. Glover stated that from every type of cancer, he had been able to isolate in pure culture a specific organism, which, when inoculated into healthy animals, produced the disease. Afterward, he said, he had been able to recover the organism again in pure culture from these animals. He also said that he had been able to immunize healthy animals against cancer. He said that the cancer toxin was slow toxin and the production of the cancer anti-toxin in the blood of the horse was slow and required from 12 to 18 months to secure a serum of high potency.

Dr. Glover said his research work showed that cancer was not hereditary, that it seldom infected healthy epithelium but was usually preceded by some form of irritation which broke the resistance of the epithelium cells and permitted its entrance.

I CANNOT READ THE FUTURE

I do not claim the ability to read the future any more than any other man who makes a study of conditions in his particular line, but if I were asked for a statement as to the possibilities of Silver Fox farming for the next five years, my conscientious opinion would be, that we are in for a period of greatly increased prosperity and better prices for Silver Fox furs than we have seen during the past two or three years.

Anyone who has studied the fox industry the last twenty years must know that Europe has been the great outlet for Silver Fox furs, and that all the world's records for pelts (which by the way have been captured by Prince Edward Island raised fox pelts) were made at the great London auctions. These pelts found their way to Austria, Russia, Germany, and France. From 1914 to 1920 these countries have been practically out of the market. Now Germany, Russia, Austria and France are again active in their demand for Silver Fox furs. The Germans were the largest buyers at the January Lammson's sale, sending the price of good skins up 50% above the previous auction sales figures. Germany also was the largest buyer at the Danish sale held a month later.

This is good news for the fox rancher, as it means a broader market and steadily increasing demand during the next few years. The United States is also demanding great numbers of Silver Fox furs. Thus market conditions are being created which will take care of all the Silver Fox furs that can be produced, at prices that will yield a profit ten times greater than any other farming proposition one can engage in.

If you intend to take advantage of this condition you would be wise to start your ranch this fall and make your arrangements at once for the purchasing of breeding stock, and avoid disappointment in securing the kind and quality of foxes necessary to make for sure success.

Owing to my extensive connections in the fur industry of this province, I believe I am in a better position than any other man here to advise and select for you the kind and quality of breeding strains that the fur markets of the world demand today.

Every fox I sell is scored by me and my score card goes with it. I also take particular pains to see that matings are satisfactory as to blood lines, etc., and that the markings are carefully proportioned. To ranches that require a change of blood my services will be particularly valuable, as I am in a position to buy for them almost any desirable strain or type.

Book early and avoid disappointment.
