AN AUTUMN WEDDING — On September 1st, St. Anns Church, Lot 65 was the scene of a very pretty Autumn wedding, when Miss Blanche Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Campbell, New Wiltshire, became the bride of Mr. Raymond Gallant, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gallant, New Haven. The bride looked charming in an attractive dress of heavenly blue crepe with hat to match and navy blue accesories and carried an ivory prayer book. She was attended by her sister and Miss Winnifred Campbell who wore rose beige crepe dress with hat to match and black accesories. Mr. Clarence Murray ably supported the groom. The church was nicely decorated for the occasion with variagated Autumn flowers. During the ceremony which were performed by their Pastor Rev. Fr. Keefe appreciated hymns were rendered by their former pastor Rev. Fr. Herrell who with Fr. Keefe and a number of friends and relations partook of a sumptuous breakfast at the home of the bride. After the usual festivities and merriment the happy young couple left by motor car for a honeymoon tour of the Maritimes. Prior to the wedding the bride was tendered a miscellaneous shower and was the recipient of many valuable and useful gifts testifying to the popularity of the happy couple.

Heat Conservation Helps Relieve Coal Shortage

"You can't have your cake and eat it" has changed to "You can't have your coal and burn it." For this reason, it is now patriotic hot stuff to be cold. For years people in the rural districts of the Dominion have been used to that early morning chill in their homes. This Autumn, town and country are coming closer together, as the city folk follow their example and don't stoke up their furnaces until absolutely necessary.

To keep warm is really a problem. Pull down the window shades as soon as it becomes dark. Not to discourage peeping Toms, but to prevent heat from being dissipated when it strikes cold glass. An additional help is to draw draperies and curtains across the windows.

When the stove is on in the kitchen, leave the doors open so that some of the heat will circulate about the house. Otherwise keep the doors closed, as heat escapes through open doorways.

When a fire isn't burning in the grate, close the fireplace damper. If there is no damper, stuff the chimney opening with newspapers, but remember to remove them before the next grate fire is lit.

While the weather is comparatively warm, preparation for a long, hard winter should be taken. Weather-stripping loose fitting doors and windows, calking cracks and open seams of exterior casings, and installing storm windows and doors will wipe out most draughts and heat wasters at moderate cost. Heating engineers claim that proper weather-stripping will save half a ton of coal in the average home.

Being a little chilly nowadays should be regarded as all in a day's war work.

Mailing Parcels Early Ensures Christmas Delivery

A corporal stands on a box or running board of a truck, waves a fist full of letters in the air and shouts at the top of his lungs "Mail!" Whether in a training camp in Canada, in a service station in England, or wherever the Dominion's men are serving in the armed forces, this tableau is the same. Men drop everything and dash up to stand in an eager circle, some half-shaved or clutching bits of equipment they have been polishing. Around Christmas time, the men are extra anxious, but there always seem to be some who turn away disappointed at mail time and go back disconsolately to their various tasks.

The Post Office has pointed out that Christmas parcels must be mailed for overseas not later than November 1. This will ensure delivery in time for Christmas. Many parcels will have a much longer distance to travel this year, entailing more handling and reshipment. The earlier parcels are mailed the better, so that the timely arrival of the anxiously awaited gifts will be a reality.

This year it is better if parcels are as light and compact as possible. This means more parcels for more men and women. The maximum weight allowed per parcel is 11 pounds, but a parcel somewhat lighter will be just as welcome.

All parcels and mails should be addressed in ink, clearly and with out abbreviations which might mislead handlers in the post office. The authorities say that a return address should be placed on the cover, and a slip should also be included in the parcel bearing the sender's address as well as the address of the recipient.

Fall Of Java Forms Basis For Story In "Pilot No. 5"

The fall of Java forms the background for the timely story of "Pilot No. 5," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's drama of America at war, opening today at the Prince Edward Theatre.

Franchot Tone, Marsha Hunt and Gene Kelly are starred in the film, which also presents Van Johnson, red-headed discovery, in an important role.

Kelly, who made his screen debut in "For Me and My Gal," after several years on the New York stage, plays his first straight dramatic screen part. Miss Hunt, who has specialized in "character" parts during her Hollywood career, is the romantic lead.

Await Jap Bombers

The story opens on a bomb-blasted Java airport, where a squadron of United Nations flyers are awaiting the reported arrival of Jap bombers. George Collins (Franchot Tone) takes off in their lone makeshift plane to intercept a Jap aircraft carrier. While on his suicidal mission, fellow pilots left behind reveal his life story.

The screenplay, written by David Hertz, forms a panoramic picture of plight of the pilots as well as the throbbing story of Collins' past.

The supporting cast includes Alan Baxter, Dick Simmons, Steve Geray and Dorothy Morris. George Sidney directed B. P. Fineman produced for M-G-M.

Dr. Endicott On Maritime Lecture Tour

Much interest attaches to the visit to the Maritimes of Rev. Dr. James G. Endicott of the English department of the West China Union University, Changtu. Dr. Endicott opened a series of meetings in New Brunswick on Sept. 24 He will speak in the auditorium of Trinity United Church, Charlottetown, on Monday evening, Oct. 4, at Montague on Oct. 5 and at Summerside on Oct. 6.

Loaned by the United Church, upon request, to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek in promoting the "New Life Movement", Dr. Endicott has been directly responsible for the organization of relief work in West China. He has travelled thousands of miles by air, and by lorry over the Burma Road, distributing medical and emergency-relief supplies, and directing the evacuation of bombed-out areas.

Born in West China, Dr. Endicott is a son of the Very Rev. Dr. James Endicott, veteran missionary and former Moderator of the United Church. During the first Great War he served in France with the C.E.F., later graduating from the University of Toronto with the Moss Scholarship in Philosophy, English and History.

After completing graduate work in English, Dr. Endicott returned to West China in 1925 to engage in educational work under the United Church. He wrote a series of English-Chinese text books that have since been adopted by Government schools. His unusual command of the Chinese language, which he has spoken since early boyhood, has been recognized by such international speakers as Stanley Jones, Sherwood Eddy and others, for whom he has acted as official interpreter.

Dr. Endicott has a vivid story to tell of his experiences in China during the last fifteen years, his personal association with Generalissmo and Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, General Chang Chun and other leaders of the Chinese democratic people.

Dr. Endicott was given an enthusiastic reception by the faculty and students of Mount Allison University in a series of addresses and discussion groups last December. This was to have been his last public appearance in Canada before sailing for the Orient. But when conditions made this impossible the Church retained Dr. Endicott for another Canadian itinerary, beginning with the Maritime Provinces.
