As Long as I Live
By
EMILIE LORING

Don't be so formal to a neighbor, Tony to you.
A neighbor? Do you live here too?
I spent my summers at the Country Club. And unless Craig lives at Silver Birch, while they are here, we both keep our residence in Canada. We'll move out next week. How are the roughs coming?
What's that?
She tried to meet his grin with surprised eyes as she asked the question, but she felt her lips curling up at the corner.
Good, but not good enough. Those cunning little devils at the corner of your mouth betray you. Beaters have a word for them, dimples. Think that I don't know that you have a chance? My scouts are always on the job.
Do you mean you had me followed?
She caught his quick look at Craig Lamont at her right.
Hey, not that. Of course we didn't. 'Scout' is merely a figure of speech. How about it? Is genius burning?
As you insist upon knowing, it's blazing. My brushes smokes like the exhaust pipe of a racing car.
Not too busy to come work for the Lamont Agency, are you?
Before she could utter a crisp and emphatic Yes! he turned to answer Babs Shelton. At the same moment she heard the butler say in a low voice.
Cannon wished me to tell you that he cared up at the Mansion and has a fresh lot of eggs and a jar of cream.
So it had been one of the Silver Birchmen whose shadow she had seen flitting about the garden. Joan thought. She turned to Craig Lamont and impulsively regretted: I'm sorry you bothered about the cream and eggs and broken glass mixture on the steps. I would have taken care of it.
Is it your custom to throw hot pans at a person who approaches your door waving a white flag for a peace parley? Have you never been taught that little girls shouldn't give way to temper?
Why did he have the power to make her so fighting mad? Joan asked herself. She looked at the butler that ringed his eye and bit back the angry retort on the tip of her tongue.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

Learn to make the most of life, lose no happy day, Time will never give thee back chances swept away. Work while yet the daylight shines, man of strength and will. Never does the streamlet glide uselessly by the mill; Wait not till to-morrow's sun beams upon the way. All that thou canst do, shine own lies in the "to-day"; Power and intellect and health must not always last; The mill cannot grind with the water that is past. -SARAH DOUDNEY.

THE B. C. TEMPERANCE LEAGUE
May 30th the B. C. Temperance League Convention was held in St. Giles Church. In point of numbers the Convention was disappointing but the address every fine, and the discussions helpful.
The budget was thoroughly discussed and the members of each church to raise for the B. C. Temperance League the sum of 10 cents per member at least. Although some churches have a very low amount it would more than cover the allotted budgets. Many of the churches have a very low amount of this worthy cause. If it be true that the interest taken in any cause can be measured by what it costs, then the efforts of the churches to eradicate this most devastating evil, is very low.
Addresses on Juvenile Delinquency, Venereal Disease and kindred topics were given by Rev. R. McEwen and Rev. Dr. Lippard and some marvelous how Christian people can remain apathetic to liquor question.

Detrimental effects upon children of parental indulgence in alcoholic beverages has been pointed out. A man or a woman may think they have a right to squander life in dissipation, but they ignore the fact of parental duty to him who forges a defective link in the chain of life. Biology knows only one irrevocable law, that is, any act of ours that will render the lives of our children less complete. Parents and children every year more the mother, too often denies to children their birthright of vitality and vigor and gives a childhood of degeneration, disease and potential criminality. It is estimated without fear of exaggeration that alcohol kills in Britain every year more little children than Herod's soldiers slew that black night in Bethlehem. The alcohol of chemical analysis and slaughter of the innocents to-day, we have a juvenile delinquent problem as a result of delinquent parents. The bodies of their little bodies, minds and souls can very frequently be laid at the brazen gate of alcohol.
