Sport Echoes From Prince County

Windy Steele's intermediate hockey team has been accenting the All in All-Stars with pleasing regularity of late. These boys have certainly arrived, having won three games and tied one in their last four. In their three wins they have scored 31 goals, and have been scored against only 12 times. As a result of their amazing 13 to 3 defeat of St. Dunstan's University here in Summerside, they have now five points, and although still in the cellar, are crowding the other teams pretty close.

• • • •

The boys took a long time to round into shape, but since they have had an opportunity to do some skating on outdoor ponds and rinks, the improvement in their play has been very noticeable. We hadn't seen the "kid line" of Oatway, Gay and Grady for some weeks until the game played with the Abbies in Summerside last Thursday night, and we were impressed with the way these youngsters have co-ordinated their attack. They were performing as three fast-skating, tricky individuals when we saw them last. They now play as one line, and their three-man breaks over the enemy blue-line seldom fail to give the opposing defence plenty of trouble.

• • • •

Joe Bernard is breaking much faster of late than we have seen him at any previous time. Far from going down the hill, the baseball hero seems to be at the very peak of his play. "Mooney" Gallant, the galloping ghost of hockey, is another player who is showing fine form. Woodside, still rugged in the brushes, is using his body more and his elbows less, and is consequently staying on the ice. Carl rarely gets the worse of a body-slamming exchange. Steele himself seems to be a shade better than in 1948. Always a dependable blocker, Windy is hustling more this year.

• • • •

Freddie Foy in the Summerside nets is the answer to a problem that had Steele worried plenty at the beginning of the season. Since Schurman took off the big pads the team was getting indifferent goaling until Foy went in between the pipes, and Freddie immediately plugged that gaping hole in the All-Star defences. We have certainly not seen too many goal-tending displays in the Crystal Rink that had anything on the stellar work of Foy against the S. D. U. Redshirts Saturday night.

• • • •

The locals had to take a 15 to 0 defeat at the hands of the St. Dunstan's boys last year, so we imagine they got quite a kick out of turning the tables on the college crew. It is but fair to admit, however, that the Redshirts were without the services of their ace defenceman, Hennessey, after about three minutes had been played in the first period. In a melee in front of the college net Hennessey apparently received the puck or a stick (we haven't been able to find out which) just above the eye and had to retire from the game. This accident, of course, weakened the S. D. U. defence and paved the way for the avalanche of goals from the sticks of the All-Stars.

• • • •

The "200 Club" of the Summerside Community Bowling League is getting to be a very exclusive and snooty group. Two of their members, Keith Champion and Austin Brooks, had their names dropped from the roll because they slipped a little from the gilt-edged bowling required by this collection of blue bloods. Of course, Keith and Austin may have their membership renewed if they behave themselves and get that old ball down in the right grooves. Only ten members remain, as follows: President, Earl Smith, City Slickers, 229; Vice-President, Windy Clow, MacQuarries, 225; Secretary-Treasurer, Allie Harris, Curran & Briggs, 222; George Guergis, Curran & Briggs, 213; Pinky Peters, Dodgers, 210; Dutch Underwood, Curran & Briggs, 206; Ed. Arsenault, Dodgers 205; Syl Bernard, Dodgers, 203; Len Gallant, Doughboys, 203; Tanton McNeil, Legion, 200.

• • • •

Six of the "200 Club" are split even between Dodgers and Curran & Briggs, so that makes it look as if these two aggregations will be finalists in the play-offs for the championship next spring.

Dunning has spent almost fifty years in the West and this is his third visit to his native homeland.

—Messrs. R. Vaillancourt, Superintendent; Thomas Keeble, Foreman; S. Shewchuk, boiler maker; and William Robb, mechanic of Canadian Erectors, Montreal, left this morning on return after a stay of six weeks when they successfully completed the dismantling and transporting of the central heating plant from Mt. Pleasant R.C.A.F. to St. Eleanors, R.C.A.F. Mr. Keeble will stop over en route in Saint John, N. B., to visit at his parents' home. These gentlemen were enthusiastic in their praise of the hospitality of the residents of Summerside.—S.

KIDNEY ACIDS Rob your Rest..

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—blame it on 'nerves'—when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons and excess acids from the blood. If they fail and impurities stay in the system—disturbed rest often follows. If you don't rest well get and use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's help the kidneys so that you can rest better—and feel better. 136

Credit Union

tificate of the member's death to the Cuna Mutual Headquarters at Hamilton, Ont. That is all. Then without any delay Cuna Mutual mails a check for $850 to Mrs. A. to cover the insurance, and also a check for $760 to the Credit Union to cover the balance of the loan. Mrs. A. now has the $1,050 savings in the Credit Union and the check for $850 making a total of $1,900 with no liabilities against it. Now let us see what Mrs. A. would have had, had her husband not belonged to the Credit Union. Even supposing he would have saved the $1,050 without the aid of the Credit Union which is doubtful; and again supposing when he needed the $1,000 he borrowed the money after the manner stated above, which again is doubtful, at his death Mrs. A. would have had $1,050 in savings less $760, the balance of the loan which she would have to pay, leaving her only $290. Quite a difference between that amount and $1,900, isn't it?

Now what about the cost of this insurance? Share Insurance costs 65 cents per thousand dollars per month, and Loan Insurance costs 60 cents per thousand. But the member does not pay the premium: it is paid out of the earnings of the Credit Union, a rebate being made at the end of the year by Cuna Mutual for any overcharge in premiums. It is interesting to note that these earnings—the interest paid by the members on loans—would never have been at the disposal of the members to pay those premiums had they not had a Credit Union and had done their borrowing elsewhere.

Commends Banking System

Now, please let there be no misunderstanding. When we speak of the services that Credit Unions can and do give their members we are not, even by implication criticizing other institutions giving similar services. Take, for example, our chartered banks. One might think we are criticizing them, when, as a matter of fact, we have not the slightest intention of doing so, even by implication. We know that our Canadian banking system is among the best, if not the best, in the world, and we know that our banks are doing a splendid job in the fields in which they operate. But the fact remains they are not so constituted as to be able to do the job that the Credit Union does.

For example, they cannot give the service that the Credit Union gives to the "small man" or child whose weekly or monthly savings would be but a dime or a quarter, because for them that would not be economically sound business. For the same reason they cannot take a chance on giving to the poor man without property or backers what is known as "character" loans as the Credit Union can and does without danger of any significant loss.

You will be interested to know that the loss on loans sustained by all the Credit Unions since the inception of the movement on this Continent in 1900 has been only one-fifteenth of one per cent. Moreover the Credit Union is so constituted that it is able to deal with its members at their very doors, as it were, which manifestly cannot be done by banks. No, Credit Unions do not criticize banks; as a matter of fact they deal with and always on the most amicable terms: Credit Unions put their funds in the banks and where feasible deal with their members through banks.

Moreover, Credit Unions, by encouraging thrift and wise spending build up the prosperity of the community, which in turn increases the business of the banks, and thus they do banks a service. Shall we say then that the Credit Union needs the Bank and the Bank needs the Credit Union and that together they can do a complete job of extending banking services to everybody, everywhere?

Now to sum up: The Credit Union is a school, in which the common man learns to work with his fellow-man for the common good. In doing so he learns the necessity of setting aside all prejudices or differences of convictions that divide people, whether these be political, social, racial or religious. He acquires the habit of thrift; he learns to save wisely and spend wisely; he learns to work with his fellow-man not only for the economic, but also the social, moral and cultural uplift of the community in which he lives.

Moreover, the good Credit Union member learns to carry on his own business and how to manage his own money, giving him a legitimate pride in his accomplishment, inspiring him with faith in his own ability and in his dignity as a man. This coupled with the fact that because of his savings through practicing thrift; because of his working with his fellowman on terms of Christian friendship, understanding and good will; and because of his knowledge of the services available to him through his own organization, he has a feeling of social security and economic stability, which will buttress him against falling a victim to the specious arguments and false promises of subversive "isms", no matter how promising they may seem.

It is hard to interest some people in the Credit Union: they take the attitude that they do not force; because, if people everywhere need it. Perhaps not, but the where will but make use of it and need of every worthy citizen of part to hasten the day when the our fair country—because it is Brotherhood of Man will be a force for good in a world that really and not just so many is so urgently in need of that words.
