HEALTH

MOUTH AND SKIN

The specific cause of cancer is not known. Chronic irritation of all kinds acts as an exciting or predisposing factor in cancer. The detection and elimination of chronic irritation prevent the cancers to which the chronic irritation might give rise.

Certain diseases are peculiar to humans; others are practically limited to animals, seldom if ever attacking man. It appears that all human beings are susceptible to cancer, a disease that is found also in birds, animals and fishes.

Cancer on the surface or in the accessible parts of the body should be the easiest to prevent. Cancer of the lip, tongue, or other parts of the mouth is nearly always preceded by some chronic irritation of the part, due to broken teeth, ill-fitting dentures, infected gums, or the germ of syphilis.

Cancer seldom, if ever, develops in a clear, healthy mouth. Every year in Canada several hundreds of individuals, mostly men, die from cancer of the mouth and throat. Many of these deaths would have been prevented by the proper treatment of syphilis, and by adequate dental care to keep the teeth and gums healthy. The prompt treatment of any kind of sore which does not heal and stay healed, either on the lip or in the mouth, is essentially a preventive measure because it removes what may be a pre-cancerous condition.

Carelessness and ignorance are responsible for most deaths from cancer of the skin. This form of cancer ordinarily occurs in older persons, but it may be found at an earlier age. Warts which slowly decrease in size, sometimes with pigmentation, tend to become cancerous. Pigmented moles should be regarded with suspicion. Any skin defect which may have existed for weeks or months and which begins to change its character, should be investigated as it may be changing into a cancerous condition.

Cancer of the skin may not always be prevented, but it is nearly always curable. It is the absence of pain and the apparent harmles-
