“Dr. Kildare's Victory” at Capitol

There is a new girl in the life of young Dr. Kildare, as presented in “Dr. Kildare's Victory,” latest of the medical dramas, which opened last night at the Capitol Theatre.

She is Ann Ayers an extremely attractive and talented young actress who bids fair to equal the popularity of her predecessor in the series, Laraine Day, whom the script writers removed I.C. on the pictures when they involved her in an untimely death in “Dr. Kildare's Wedding Day.”

Another newcomer to the series is Robert Sterling, last seen with Greta Garbo in “Two-Faced Woman.” It is Sterling, who as Dr. Winthrop, precipitates the crisis in which he, his nurse, fiancée, Jean Rogers, and D.S. Kildare and Gillespie fight the injustice of the when they violate hospital zoning ordinances in an effort to save an emergency case. Lew Ayres, as Kildare, and Lionel Barrymore, as Gillespie, fight the injustice of the case and win when they are able to bring it to public attention through the efforts of a much publicized debutante, who becomes a patient of Ayres.

Newcomer Ann Ayers is cast as the debutante and gives a performance full of vitality and credulency.

Souris Pastor Stresses Vital Wartime Issue

The following inspiring sermon on the issues underlying Canada's position was delivered at St. James United Church, Souris, by the Rev. W. A. McQuarrie:

John 12:27: "Now is my soul troubled, and what shall I say? Father, save me from this hour? But for this cause came I unto this hour." Or with Mark: "My soul is sorrowful unto death. What shall I say? Father, save me from this hour? Nay, it is something else which has brought me to this hour. I will say, 'Father, glorify Thy name.'"

These words give us an insight into the mind of our Lord at a crisis in His life. He was at Jerusalem at the time of the Passover. Greek travellers had come to the city, doubtless to see the sights, at that interesting time. They were teaching some way about Jesus, whose teaching was making a great stir, and causing so much debate, and they were curious to know the meaning of it. They were making a great stir, and causing so much debate, and they were curious to know the meaning of it. They were making a great stir, and causing so much debate, and they were curious to know the meaning of it.

Interesting Fox Field Day At Summerside

A very successful and well attended fox field day was held at the experimental station, Summerside, yesterday afternoon. A good number of the visiting directors of the Canadian National Silver Fox Breeders Association were present from Manitoba, Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes. The field day was a fitting conclusion to the meeting of the Association which were held on Thursday and Friday mornings. Fox men from different parts of the Island were present and took much interest in the addresses and discussions that took place.

Mr. Lowell Hancock, as president of the Island Fox Breeders and Exhibitors Association, presided and Dr. C. K. Gunn, supervisor of the experimental station, looked after the comfort of the visitors and showed them around the station. Mr. D. O. Stewart president of the C. N. S. A., accompanied the visiting directors to the field day. A number of the new type of platinum and white face foxes were on exhibition and a most interesting talk was given by Mr. Geo. A. Calbeck on the characteristics and values of each animal.

Mr. Calbeck spoke briefly on each fox explaining in detail the breeding history of the foxes and what their particular type would be expected to be valued at when it reached maturity. He stressed the importance of having good fur. This is more important than anything else. The skins carrying large white collars were very popular at the moment, he said. Light coloring is very desirable in the lighter types. The very light platinum have a tendency when they return from the dresser to have a bleached out look, which is not desirable.

Mr. Calbeck's talk was followed by an address by Mr. Sven Klumburg of Manitoba, who has been a fair breeder in the west, where considerable progress has been made in breeding the new type of platinum. He also spoke on what he was doing to shorten the fur bearing animals in captivity, such as marten, fisher and chinchilla. The western fur ranchers had bred marten very successfully for two years and chinchilla breeding had been 100 per cent successful in the fox market just now and the rancher was facing many problems due to shortage of labour, shortage of feeds and other conditions arising out of the war. Feeds will be cut down and the rancher must rely more on fish and cereal. Mr. Klumburg said he

Matched With The Hour
Before his outbreak we talked of a set of men in our line, and things like that. The men who had got to positions of power in Britain and France, gloried in their liberations and refused to see the facts which were taking shape. They said: "Save us from this hour." And in that sentiment many of us have lived. But the hour has come upon us, and we are matched with it. Prime Minister Churchill in a recent broadcast said upon the subject of men in our line, "We do not know, any one of us, what this fourth year of conflict will bring to us in the way of trial, and what that word of strength and courage he said: 'You came into existence, not when you chose, but when the world had most need of you.'"

So in the book of Esther, where the Queen is announced to rise to the height of her opportunity. Our men in England who took their part bravely and at great cost in the recent raid at Dieppe, where they upheld nobly the honor of Canada, and the presence of the Anti-Christ. So the impression is deepened and burned into us that the welfare of mankind, to cast out this evil thing which has brought us sorrow, must strive and work and sacrifice and fight to win this war.

Jean Davison and other relatives and friends.

Miss Charlotte Driscoll returned to her home in Charlottetown on Saturday evening from Kensington.

Mr. Benjamin Thibeau of Pictou spent the weekend in Kensington with his wife and family.

The Misses Una and Dorothy Gallant, of Summerside spent a few days recently in Kensington the guests of the Misses Aileen and Phyllis Pineau.

Mr. Bud Mountain spent Sunday in Kensington with his father, Mr. Michael Mountain.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Preston Wadman on the arrival of a bonnie wee lassie at their home on Sunday.

Mr. Ewen Davison returned to Dovercourt, Maine after spending a most pleasant holiday in Burlington with his mother Mrs.
