BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

(By Thornton W. Burgess)

When a home is to be won
Work can be the greatest fun.

—Little Chipmunk.

"That doesn't look like a home to me," said Peter Rabbit.
"It isn't yet. It is only the beginning," retorted Little Stripes, the young Chipmunk.
"It isn't much of a beginning, that little hole. How deep will you dig it?" said Peter.
"I don't know. I've never dug a home. How deep do you think it should be," replied the little Chipmunk.

"Don't ask me. I've never dug one. It is easier. Use one some one else has dug if I ever really need one, which isn't often," replied Peter. "When I need to go under ground there usually is one handy," he added.
"I don't want a house some one else has dug. I wouldn't ever feel that it was my very own, and

"Digging is fun," declared Little Stripes that is what I want, a house all my own."

"Digging is hard work," said Peter.
"How do you know if you've never done any digging?" asked the young Chipmunk somewhat pertly.
"Oh I've done enough to find that out. You'll find it out, too, before you are through," replied Peter.
