THE CARDINAL'S HAT

The peculiarity of the cardinal's hat is that it is not intended to be worn. On one occasion only is it to be seen on the head of a cardinal, and that is when, at the pontifical vesting, it there as a symbol of his own elevation to the Sacred College. When the cardinal dies it is placed upon his coffin. The hat is of a deeper red than that of the be-worn by the cardinals, and is made of silk. The cardinals wear five tassels at the head, hanging on either side. There are at present three "red hats" in Westminster Cathedral. They are those of Cardinals Wiseman, Manning, and Vaughan. The crimson robes, which, like the hat, denote the cardinal's office, are made of a cloth which for several generations past has been supplied by a firm of cloth merchants at Furtfeld, near Aix-la-Chapelle. The process by which the dye is distilled is a jealously guarded secret.

STORM OF STONES

On a recent passage the passengers aboard the big Cunarder Saxonia were treated to a magnificent spectacle. A huge mass of incandescent rock came hurtling out of the sky, and struck the sea a couple of miles from the ship, throwing up a great column of smoke and steam. This meteor must have been of very unusual size, for radio or meteor notices disturbances in the engine for twenty-four hours before its arrival. Still, it was probably no longer than a few feet in diameter, and in past times, such an instance, as that unearthed by Prof. Ford some years ago in Mexico. This is so large that it took twenty-eight men a whole day to partly uncover it. It weighs from fifty tons, and is ninety per cent pure iron.

USED FOR OLD NEWSPAPERS

Old newspapers are first aids in the kitchen. The sink is the easiest place in the world to break dishes during the washing process, but if spread with clean newspapers before you begin washing it is easy to keep the dishes whole. Another thing, it keeps the sink clean and saves many scrubbing. When preparing vegetables and other eatables at kitchen table spread a few newspapers over it before starting the work. How quickly you can clean up after the work is done and there will be no need of washing the table. Use a newspaper to wipe the gas stove before you use the stove rag. It will take off much of the grime and grease. If the sink gets greasy after washing a big stack of pots and pans, treat it the same way. After mopping the kitchen floor, whether or not it be covered with linoleum, spread several newspapers over it until it is thoroughly dry. This will keep it from getting trapped. Tie on a newspaper apron while preparing fruits for canning. There are many other ways in which old newspapers can be used about the house with a saving of time and labor and the busy housewife should avail herself of them, especially, during the summer months when every available moment should be spent outdoors.

BRINGS HAPPINESS

There are on record a number of instances of meteorites falling in our own island. The largest of these, which weighs fifty-six pounds, fell near Bridlington in the year 1799, and may to-day be seen in the British Museum. Here may also be seen aerolites which fell near St. Clears, in Carmarthenshire, in May, 1906.

GREEK CASUALTIES PLACED AT 10,000

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 10.—Greek forces occupying positions on the right wing of the Sakaria front, where for the past 10 days they have been heavily engaged against the Turkish Nationalists, are withdrawing from the battle area in consequence of heavy losses and the difficulty in maintaining communications with their base of supplies 100 miles away. The Turks, however, apparently are unable to take advantage of this withdrawal, not being in a position to launch an attack.

The Greek casualties, including the sick, are reported to total 10,000. The troops are tired, and are said to be unable to make fresh efforts in the attempt to drive the Turks back to Angora.

PROFESSIONAL TEMPTATION

Patent—Great Scott, doctor! That's an awful bill for one week's treatment.

Doctor—My good fellow, if you knew what an interesting case yours was and how strongly I was tempted to let it go to a post-mortem, you wouldn't grumble at a bill three times as big as this.

MONUMENT UNVEILING.—The unveiling of the monument of the four fallen soldiers will take place at 2 o'clock on Wednesday, Sept. 14th at Travellers Rest. Prominent speakers will address the public.

STILL GOING STRONG.—The Crown and Anchor game is still flourishing in Summerside according to reports, which have a pretty good foundation of truth. It was said that more than fifty boys engaged in the gamble on Sunday morning and that one of them lost $19.00, which should have the effect of depriving him of some meals for the next few weeks.

MIXED THE GEARS.—While assembling a Ford runabout at one of the Summerside garages the other day, the mechanic on the job got the gears mixed and for a day or so the driver thought he was either drinking or bewitched. For every time he put the car into high she ran on low gear, and every time he put her into low she ran on high. Eventually the trouble was righted and now the little old Ford rambles right along.

NEEDS FIXING.—With the exhibition dates for Charlottetown and Summerside so close, it is hoped by the residents of Summerside, particularly the horsemen and motorists, that something will be done to improve the condition of the eastern approach of the town, which is the worst bit of road in all Prince County. One motorist has suggested that a collection be made among the drivers and the work be done in this way, which should have the effect of shaming the proper authorities into some kind of action.

MR. VANDERBILT'S VISIT.—Summerside was honored on Saturday by a visit from William K. Vanderbilt, the famous American sportsman, who is also one of the richest men in the world. The party arrived on board Mr. Vanderbilt's off-burning steam yacht, "Eagle" from New York by way of Sydney and proceeded on Sunday morning for Quebec, where Mr. Vanderbilt is the owner of extensive fishing grounds. While the vessel was in port, the visitors were entertained by some of the leading citizens of Summerside, and a visit to several of the most prominent fox ranches being one of the articles on the program. Yesterday morning, before the yacht made her final clearance for Quebec, a leading citizen of Summerside sent a large bouquet of flowers to the master of the "Eagle," by motor boat courier, and on Monday morning received a radio of thanks which had been relayed by way of Fame Point, Quebec. The yacht while in port created almost as much interest as the visitors, being a beautiful craft, 100 feet long, and fitted out with every luxury. Captain Swanson, skipper of the craft, is a Canadian and Chief Engineer Benson Martin, who has been in the Vanderbilt service for the last 16 years, is a native of Port Hawkesbury.

Rogers won from H. N. MacNeil, 5 up and 4 to play. H. MacNeil won from A. H. MacKinnon, one up. Prof. Watkins and P. Pope drew byes.

The second round of the match will be played on Wednesday afternoon when the players meet as follows:—

Prof. Watkins vs. H. E. Miller, 3. B. Stewart vs. George Nicholson.

H. D. Longworth vs. W. K. Rogers.

P. Pope vs. R. N. MacNeil.

FASHION NOTES

Practically all Paris model houses feature black or dark broadcloth in fall collections.

Callot is featuring trimmings of rich flowers in a great variety of ways.

Very wide steel cloth girdles are found on dress models of many Paris houses, especially on black headed dresses.

Besides experimenting with the length of skirts, most of the Paris couturiers have also made uneven hems usually longer in the back.

New hoop skirts are quite different from the ordinary run, inasmuch as they are rather flat in front, having the bulge at the sides and also they drape with perfect grace around the limbs when the wearer is sitting.

Madeleine et Madeleine are featuring yellow and silver evening frocks, vivid canary shades heavily trimmed with silver lace.

For new millinery New York Moyon Age has been the inspiration of the majority with the Louis XI period also called upon.

Chinese brocade in black with colored pattern is seen on smart tailored waistcoats for which much velvet or suede is being used.

ANTIQUE LOVE LETTERS

Among the remarkable discoveries in the new excavations at Pompeii are several love letters of patrician girls to successful gladiators.

They are found near the newly unearthed wharehouse in the Street of Abundance, which has almost been restored to its appearance as it was 2,000 years ago.

The letters are on ivory tablets and one is addressed to a gladiator named Strax, who, in the opinion of Prof. Vittoria Spinazzola, director of the Museum here, was probably a "barbarian" from Britain. The letter reads:—"Art thou Phoebus Apollo in the body of Hercules? Indeed thou art a god to me. Thy beauty and strength have blotted from my eyes all other men I am young and the suitors I despise say that I am beautiful. I will await thee, beloved one near the Temple of Isis"

Inscriptions on the walls under drawings of gladiators show that Chloë, Lydia and Cornelia were in love with them.

IN FLANDERS FIELD.

The poppies of Flanders field are associated in the mind of all English-speaking soldiers with the events of the greatest struggle of all time. Immortalized in poetry, they remain the symbol of the spirit that sustained the victorious nations during the long years of struggle when success seemed in the balance and the outcome of the conflict was shrouded in doubt. The graves of our heroic dead should blossom next May with a multitude of poppies—the poppies of "Flanders field."

LIFE'S LESSONS

A child came close to his teacher's side. His book tight clasped in his little hand; "Teacher," he said, with wistful eyes, "We're coming to words that I don't understand; I've turned the pages over and over. And the words are so big, and they're all so new. When we come to the lesson where they are put, Oh, teacher, I don't know what I'll do."

The teacher smiled at the troubled face. "And tenderly stroked the curly hair."

"Before we reach them I think you will learn."

"The way to read them" she gently said.

"But if you shouldn't I'll help you then."

"And don't you think that the wisest plan is to learn the lesson that comes today. And learn it the very best you can?"

And it seems to me it is so with us; We look at the days that are still ahead— The days that perchance may never be ours— With a pitiful longing and nameless dread. But surely the Teacher who gives the task Will lovingly watch as we try to read With faltering tongue and tear dim mid eyes And will help His Children in time of need.
