Rains Drawback In Water Search

REGINA, July 25.—Corps of young geologists studying drought conditions in the west in connection with the alleviation programme started by the federal government are prepared to spend the entire summer combing 100,000 square miles to ferret out details of water supplies.

Oddly enough the seekers after water have found their work handicapped to considerable extent by heavy rains. The consequent floods, washouts of culverts and bridges have caused the young men, who travel in motor-cars, to lose a great deal of time.

The geologists in the drought-fighting army number more than 80, and they are working under supervision of Dr. B. R. MacKay, of the Geological Survey, whose headquarters are in Regina. They are mostly seniors in geology and engineering of Universities of Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Alberta.

Roughly, the country being checked by the survey parties is the triangular-shaped drought area of the west, ranging from Manitoba's border to Lethbridge, in Alberta, at the base and its apex about at Saskatoon.

150 YEARS LEASE OF FAIR SITE

A lease for 150 years has recently been granted by the Birmingham City Council, England, to the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce of the estate of Castle Bromwich, owned by the City Council, for the Birmingham section of the British Industries Fair. There are already ten miles of stand frontages under one roof and well over 1,000 exhibitors were accommodated at this year's Fair, held May 20th to 31st inclusive.

The grounds comprise nearly 50 acres, including inland water of 265,000 square feet. Canada was represented by an exhibit of Canadian minerals and small timber display, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways. In the display of commercial woods, products of Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia were represented. In addition, several Canadian manufacturers had displays of their products. 124,178 people saw the exhibit.

It Has Many Qualities—The man who possesses a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil is armed against many ills. It will relieve a cough, break a cold, prevent sore throat; it will reduce the swelling from a sprain, relieve the most persistent sores and will speedily heal cuts and contusions. It is a medicine chest in itself.

Antlers of Reindeers Found by Scouts

GLASGOW, July 30.—The antlers of a reindeer, now judged to belong to the Ice Age, were discovered on the Luss estate towards the end of May by a party of Rover Scouts excavating the foundations of a hut. They were submitted to Dr. R. Gregory Apsell, curator of the Natural History Department at Kelvingrove Museum, Glasgow, who sent a report on the find to Sir Ian Colquhoun, Bt.

The report, according to the Glasgow Herald, states that from the description of the ground there is little doubt but that the remains have been washed out of a typical deposit of glacial boulder clay and gravel, thus indicating the presence of the reindeer in the area during one of the inter-glacial periods of the Ice Age.

The report then quotes from an article in Professor J. Ritchie on the subject: "The advent of the ice-sheets benighted the temperate fauna, but a long period of cold more or less intense seems to have elapsed before animal life on any extensive scale flourished in Scotland. Even then the remains which have been left are extraordinarily scanty, and represent only the smallest sample of what the total fauna may have been."

"Fortunately, they belong to the most important of all the animals indicators of the period of the Ice Age, the mammoth (Elephas primigenius), the woolly rhinoceros (R. antiquitatis), and the reindeer (Rangifer tarandus). The association of these animals in the South of Scotland, and particularly of the mammoth and reindeer, has been noted in the past, and the deposit of boulder clay, enables us to picture the conditions of their arrival."

"They formed part of a Continental fauna which, as the icefields receded and the country became covered with verdure, travelled northward from England and apparently never ranged beyond Southern Scotland. Their advent was probably of relatively short duration, and they were eventually driven from their limited territory by a new onset of the glaciers, when the boulder clay that buried the bones of a few individuals was deposited. So the first glacial fauna of Scotland came and went in the time of the old Stone Age, in the Upper Palaeolithic period at the close of the Moustierian culture stage."

On the final disappearance of the ice, the report proceeds, there was a new invasion, and the fauna was predominantly a reindeer fauna, the remains of as many as 400 young reindeer having been discovered in the deposits of a small cave at Inchmadamph, Sutherland.

It is shown that in early prehistoric times, when the reindeer was getting scarce in England, it was distributed over Scotland from the Solway to the Orkneys. Large numbers of reindeer bones were found in draining Scottish lochs and in the old British forts or brochs of Caithness, but, as Ritchie points out, at the time of their erection the reindeer was already on the decline, its remains being found only in Caithness, Sutherland, and the Orkneys.

Ritchie considers that the extinction of the reindeer in Scotland was not due to lack of suitable food or to change of climate, but was partly to be attributed to direct destruction by man, partly to indirect action by the destruction of forests.

Socialist And C.C.F. Merger

(C.P. By Guardian's Special Wire) VANCOUVER, July 29.—Members of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation and the Socialist party of Canada will work in British Columbia as one unit, under one executive during the ensuing year, their organization to be known as the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation (C.C.F.).

The merger was ratified by a decisive vote at the final session of a joint convention of the two parties which concluded early today, Arnold Webster, C. C. F. candidate in Vancouver-Burrard Dominion riding, was elected president.

A platform statement was adopted stating the C. C. F.: 1. Favors ownership of the means of life by the whole society instead of by a small section. 2. Recognizes the necessity for orderly political action by an intelligent electorate. 3. Recognizes that a period of transition will intervene unless society is precipitated into a revolutionary condition. 4. Proposes in the provincial field organizing the period of transition by substituting social for the present private ownership of industry wherever possible. 5. Recognizes the need for educational preparation for this revolutionary change.

Brings up Flakes Of Gold On End Of the Drill

(Canadian Press) AMHERST, N. S., July 30.—Fred Blair, who holds the mining rights of Oak Island, where Captain Kidd's $10,000,000 treasure is believed to have been buried, said today reports that an American syndicate had been formed to purchase properties on the island probably were true.

He declined to say whether or not he had been approached regarding the underground rights he has held since 1909. A bill providing that lessees would have to obtain special rights from the owner before seeking or recovering treasure trove in Nova Scotia was presented at the last session of the legislature but failed to pass. It was sponsored by interests represented by Blair.

Scores of treasure trove expeditions have failed to locate the legendary cache on Oak Island. Years ago one group of engineers brought up flakes of gold and a piece of gold chain on the end of their drill but water flooded the shaft before they could get much deeper. Those who have worked on the island say the water came through a cunningly contrived tunnel below the water level which the pirates built to flood the "money hole."

A few years ago a western company, capitalized at $150,000 and with head office in Victoria, B. C., was organized to seek the treasure. Like previous companies they found plenty of clues to urge them on but finally gave up when extensive digging failed to bring results. The last attempt to find Captain Kidd's booty was made by a Sydney, N.S., firm.

Historic Letter Given Province

VICTORIA, July 30.—(CP)—Link between British Columbia and Sir John A. Macdonald, a letter from the former premier of Canada and father of Confederation, to Hon. John Robson, one-time premier of British Columbia, will be presented to provincial archives by Alderman J. D. Hunter, grandson of Mr. Robson.

The letter is said to be the last written by Sir John in his own hand, and is dated May 19, 1891. Sir John died in June of that year, and Hon. John Robson died in London, Eng., the following year. In his letter, Sir John asked the then premier of British Columbia to confer with him in Ottawa on various matters, including the "railway belt," the "Bonghees Reserve," and the "Alaska Boundary."

Wild Bush Eagle Likes Captivity

DUNBURN, Sask., July 30.—(CP)—"Oscar," lone prisoner of war following military manoeuvres in camp here, liked his captors and stubbornly refused an honorably release.

The prisoner, a "bush eagle," proved a willing captive from the beginning. Perched outside an orderly tent, he took a lively interest in the show battles. When the camp broke up he was several times removed from his station and tossed into the air. Each time he returned, and finally Art Neighbors, C.A.S.C., brought him to Regina. Oscar loved city life and daily proudly struts like a rooster on the lawn in front a residence. He eats a pound of beefsteak daily, his regular fare of gophers having been cut off.

MRS. PETER FLAHANAN

A sad gloom has been cast over Kensington by the sudden passing away of Mrs. Peter Flahanan in her sixty-eighth year. She had been troubled with rheumatism for several years, but nevertheless the end was sudden and unexpected. All that medical skill and the tender nursing she received from her daughter Janie, could do were unavailing and the Angel of Death entered and claimed her for his victim. The deceased a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Murphy of Freeport, was a most estimable Christian lady and few persons were better known or more deservedly esteemed in the community. For young and old she had always a kind, cheerful word and a friendly smile and welcome greeting for all who entered her home. It may be truly said that she lived a good life and was blessed with a happy death. Ever an earnest and devout Catholic, she had the consolation of the Spiritual

She leaves to mourn a family of four Mrs. Edward McCarroll, Kinross, Basil in Kensington and Janie and Roy at home. MORE AMERICANS VISIT BRITAIN

LONDON, July 30.—Official figures published here show that the number of holiday visitors to the United Kingdom during May was 18,747, an increase of 1,876 over the total for May of last year, and 4,887 over that of May, 1933. The most important increase is shown in the American totals: there were 5,121 holiday visitors from the United States, an increase of 1,120 over the total for May of last year. Combined total of holiday and business visitors was 27,244, an increase of 3,248.

These figures, the Travel Association points out, include neither visitors from the Dominions and passports nor the large number of visitors from the Continent who came to England for extended week-ends during the May Jubilee celebrations with "no passport" facilities.
