Double Hockey Bill Saturday At Montague

A double header hockey game was played in the Montague rink on Saturday night, with the Montague High School girls playing the Charlottetown West Kent School girls to a 1-all tie, and the Charlottetown St. Paul's team defeating the Montague High School boys by the score of 12-1.

The girls' game, although not as fast as the boys' game was just as enjoyable to watch. In the second encounter the fast Charlottetown boys through their greater speed and better passing, convincingly defeated the local squad by the score of 12-1. Only the fine work of Higginbotham, the Montague goalie, saved the score from rising higher. As the game progressed tempers flared and two brawls ensued, with both players and fans participating. The offenders were sent to the "cooler" with misconduct penalties.

Catering to a lad's liking in foods we made a date sandwich cake for Jamie, following a recipe of Carolyn's, found among others neatly put by in a pantry drawer. The sight of a remnant of the fruit on a cupboard shelf brought the idea to mind. About a cupful, and covering these with water to which we added a scant handful of brown sugar and a pinch of salt, we set all to boil, thickening the mixture presently with flour, and then carrying it to the sun-porch to cool. One of the delights of winter baking we find is the ease with which the cook can cool or chill her mixings without benefit of refrigerator—keeping an eye, of course, on the whereabouts of dogs and cats!

The recipe mixes the following ingredients together at one operation that reduces them to crumbs: A cup and a half of rolled oats, and this equal in flour. A cupful of brown sugar and three quarters of one of a shortening agent. We remember how crisp the measure of butter once made it, but today in a successful move we used bacon fryings, adding with a thrift that is sometimes vagrant, the duck we roasted over from the duck we roasted. A half teaspoon of salt was its accompaniment, with vanilla to flavor. The half-teaspoon of soda called for, is sifted with the flour. "Spread half the crumbs on a greased and lined pan, and cover with a layer of the cooked dates, topping this with the other half of the crumbs. Bake until brown", the recipe said. It turned out to be so tempting in appearance and aroma that with younger grandson, we lunched on two squares of it this very afternoon!

But there it is — and have we not been waiting for it, a bit breathless? James' end of day 'phone call! Until tomorrow — Diary—Good-night.

Country Garden

It is difficult to set any hard and fast rules one may consistently follow. From experience, nevertheless, we observe a number of points that generally resolve themselves into things to do or not to do.

It is difficult to think of a garden as being anything but an enclosed area. In the country gardens we usually have large spaces and lovely views, so we must do our planting with this in mind, suitability and simplicity must be incorporated in every beautiful garden, and it must be livable.

Let us think of suitable gardens; we can have a large garden in the country if we have time and strength to give it the care it needs, we have all the good earth we need, and if we cannot manage a large garden it is possible to have a small one. It is necessary to have it enclosed with shrubs, fences or hedges of some kind. If it is not, it is like a picture without a frame; flowers look so much better with a background of lovely shrubs. I remember seeing a very nice garden last summer with beautiful flowers scattered about in the lawn in several flower beds of different shapes, and I thought how difficult it must be to weed and trim around these separate small beds, and also the moving of the grass would be a task.

The effect would have been so much better if all the flowers had been placed in a border to one side of the garden with a background of shrubs or hedge, the daily care would be cut in half, and the garden would have been beautiful.

A suitable garden is one suited to the requirements of the gardener and his family. In the country we need a garden filled with hardy plants, easy to replace and renew. The shrubs and trees native to the place are in better taste, rather than exotic plants growing in a feeble fashion. Country gardens on farms need simple and rustic furniture and patios. Everything in a country garden should be in keeping with the surroundings and when we consider these things we will have a pleasing garden picture.
