There are so many ways to serve Kellogg's Bran—the one great aid to humanity!

You will enjoy eating Kellogg's Bran because its nut-like flavor appeals to the taste. And, think what each mouthful is doing to drive constipation out of your system and to re-establish health! That's because it is ALL BRAN. Kellogg's Bran is scientifically made to relieve suffering humanity—IT WILL DO THAT AS NO OTHER FOOD CAN!

Physicians recommend the regular use of Kellogg's Bran for mild or chronic cases and as a preventive. Bran, eaten each day and in proper quantity, sweeps, cleanses and purifies the alimentary tract.

Get away from pills and cathartics—Kellogg's Bran will give you permanent relief from constipation.

Do not confuse Kellogg's Bran with common bran. Kellogg's is cooked.

JENKINS & SON, Dealers for Kellogg's Toasted

crumbled and ready to serve. It can be used in the most delightful baking products without in any way reducing its regulatory value. Try raisin bread or muffins or griddle-cakes made with Kellogg's Bran. Recipes are printed on each package.

Kellogg's Bran is nationally eaten for health's sake as a cereal—in winter time with hot milk. Others prefer it sprinkled over hot or cold cereals. Another way is to mix it with hot cereals just before serving. It can also be cooked with cereal. In each case add two tablespoonsfuls of Kellogg's Bran for each person; in chronic cases as much with each meal.

Kellogg's Bran is sold by all grocers and is supplied in individual packages at first-class hotels and clubs. Ask for it at your restaurant! Charlottetown Corn Flakes and Bran.

NOTICE

GENTLEMEN—As there are practically no hogs offering now we have decided to discontinue packing on Friday next, June 8th, for this season.

With the warmer weather we would suggest that you be very careful handling hogs, especially the heavier ones. They should be allowed to cool well before shipping, and if very heavy it would perhaps be wise to have them split down the back on the outside.

We will be buying again as usual next fall.

Yours truly, DAVIS & FRASER 2145-5-31

The Girl Who Had No Chance

By MARION RUBINCAM

She turned, flushed with her triumph to encounter in Gaby's face a look of such supreme contempt that she dropped her eyes again, and again the red flush ran over her cheeks. "Yes he was here. So was I," Gaby said. Ruth was still silent. Gaby had the conversation and she was glad to let her keep it. "He didn't say—" "So!" Gaby came at her with a voice that snapped like a whip. "That little coward, after coming down here and making Ruth extremely unhappy and uncomfortable, went home and told you all about it! That's like him—I believe that story. But when are you going to begin telling the truth, Myra? You've told us several fibs so far." Myra was still so uncomfortable that when she answered, her voice did carry conviction. "I never do ask Tim where he goes on his nights out. Only last night some of the men from the office telephoned me and asked where he was, they wanted him to go to a prize fight. So I knew he wasn't with them. And I wondered about it and finally thought I'd call here on a chance—just because I wondered. Ruth's voice was so funny I knew he was here, her voice showed she was upset about something. I guess I was jealous—" "Then when Tim came home I told him I knew where he'd been, and he said yes, he was here. I asked him why Ruth had to lie and tell me he wasn't, and he looked sort of funny and said he guessed Ruth thought it wouldn't upset me if she said he wasn't, and that I might be mad if she said he was—" Gaby was on her feet, her face showing all the suppressed anger of the last hour. "Do you mean to tell me that that little—little sneaking coward was mean enough to hide behind his wife? Ruth, did you hear that? Can you have any respect for a man that will do a thing of that sort? Her drawl, and her mannerisms were forgotten. Gaby was furiously angry and more beautiful in her anger than in her other moods. Then Ruth took up the conversation. "I'm not in love with Tim," she said quietly. "I'm engaged to be married to another man." "Langley?" Gaby cried and turned to put her arms around Ruth. "DOUBTS Chapter 108

She paused, watching the effect of this on Myra. Ruth made a sudden motion of protest. "He kissed her. You may be able to imagine how unpleasant it was for Ruth, with her feeling of loyalty towards Langley. Now go on home. You wanted to find out about last night. Now you know all about it." She turned her back, starting out the window. Ruth, feeling weak and helpless again, sank down in the big chair. Myra started to speak, and as she did, the door opened and Marie came in for the tea tray. Myra stood there, putting on her coat and hat, waiting for the maid to go.

Again Gaby saved the situation. "Oh Marie, will you come here and fasten these books?" She extended a slim hand and arm. The tight sleeves of her dress were unhooked at the wrists. Marie came to adjust the little fasteners, a task that required some moments. Myra, seeing the ruse, turned and left the room without a word. "As soon as she had gone, Gaby laughed.

"All right, Marie," she said. "Thanks. There Ruth, I got rid of her without giving her a chance to say something nasty. Oh, what a relief!" "But why did you tell her about Tim—kissing me?" Ruth watched Marie disappearing through the door with her loaded tray. "She had it coming to her," Gaby remarked slangily, fixing herself comfortably on the sofa again. "She was so smug and sure of him, I thought I'd give her something to worry about. She'll go home now and get a little energy, and try to make herself attractive. It will do her good. She was getting too fat and lazy."

"But—" "No, please don't scold me for saying it. She may row with Tim, but that will only be what he deserves. The coward! Ashamed to say he told you to lie to her! Hiding behind a woman! Ruth, how can you—how could you ever be in love with him? But it's all over, and you are engaged to Langley. Tell me all about it this minute."

"I'm not engaged. There's nothing to tell"—and Ruth suddenly turned away and buried her head in her arms.

"But—" "No, please don't scold me for saying it. She may row with Tim, but that will only be what he deserves. The coward! Ashamed to say he told you to lie to her! Hiding behind a woman!
