

THE CHARLOTTETOWN GUARDIAN

THURSDAY MORNING NOVEMBER 29, 1906.

MEN WILL FLY.

Man has always envied the birds, his airy companions since the creation. They possess a rare power of locomotion which he has not, the power of aerial flight.

His thought and imagination has been much exercised upon this matter. He has pictured to himself in all ages and countries, the gods, the demons, angels and faeries with wings. He has fondly hoped that in his own immortality to come he may be equipped with power of swift flight through air and ether.

For I dipt into the future, far as human eye could see, Saw the vision of the world and all the wonders that should be; Saw the heavens filled with commerce, argosies of magic sails, Pilots of the purple twilight, dropping down with costly bales;

Boys and men alike have dreamed of flight and hoped to solve the problem by their inventive genius. Darius Green is but a type of a thousand farmers' boys, who have puzzled their brains and wrought with their hands in the effort to attain the power of flight.

The Wright Brothers' flying machine has now been certified to by so go great an authority as Dr. Graham Bell, the greatest of Canadian inventors, and one who has given much thought to the problem of flight.

Men will fly, and what then? A slow revolution in travel, in commerce, perhaps in warfare; a multiplication of appalling accidents; the angel and the demon in man both making use of the new power for good and ill; the murderer and the robber escaping through the air and leaving no trace; the police on wings hovering above the city; smugglers with customs officers in swift pursuit through the air; pleasure parties sailing above the earth with parachutes for life-preservers; rules of the air as we now have rules of the sea to prevent collisions.

We bespeak a good attendance of all interested in pure elections at the public meeting to be held in the Stipendiary Magistrate's Court Room, City Building on Monday evening next.

GOLD AND SILVER.

We are only now beginning to learn the priceless stores of Canadian mineral wealth. Coal and iron we have long known to exist in plenty beneath Canadian soil. Oil and natural gas have been exploited for a generation, and it is known that in our far northern regions beyond the reach of present railway carriage are vast oilfields as rich as any in the world.

The question arises, are we handling these natural bounties wisely? In their natural state they are the property of the entire people. And yet in the progress of events they are passing into the hands of rich capitalists and soulless corporations from whom the people must buy them back at costly retail in the hour of their need.

ST. ANDREW'S DINNER.

All Christendom, Protestant, Roman Catholic and Greek, holds the good Saint Andrew in veneration. Scotland and Russia, both northern lands, but wide apart in national characteristics, have alike made him their patron saint.

The goodly plan of celebrating the day with feasting, story and song, is to be followed by the Caledonian Society this year. Tonight at the Queen Hotel the clansmen will foregather, with happy memories of many banquets past and high hopes that this occasion may eclipse them all.
