Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough or chest cold can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in millions of homes, because it gives more prompt, positive relief than anything else. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a 16 oz. bottle, pour 2 1/2 ounces of Pine; then add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to make 16 ounces. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy.

The Old Order Changes

By DAVID LYALL

Two days later Mary Freeland was surprised, just after she had dismissed the scholars from afternoon school, to have a second visit from the Squire. After a close, dull morning a fine, thin rain had begun to fall, and she had just taken down her raincoat from its peg, and was pondering on the advisability of pinning up her thin summer skirt to keep the mud from it, when she heard his hand on the door.

Some inner consciousness warned her of his approach. She had thought much about him after hearing of his visit from the Disneys, whom she had seen on the evening of the day when Mrs. Manning had taken him to the Vicarage. Mary was always late in leaving Mardocks now, conserving the minutes spent there like pearls of price. Her goodby would be a lingering one. More and more her soul seemed to cleave to the little place where she had been permitted for the first time, within certain limitations, to realize herself.

"I am in great good luck," said the grave gentle voice at the far end of the school. "When I heard the children shouting, I made sure I had cut it too fine."

There could be only one meaning in such a speech. He had come specially to see her, had planned his call so that he should find her alone.

The thought warmed Mary's heart, even as his close grip warmed her fingers. Her clear eyes met his fearlessly, and she gave a little laugh. "I was just going, but I can wait a little if there is anything you want to ask about the school."

"The school!" he said vaguely, looking round. "It's all like a school to me. I'm afraid of it, that's what I am! I don't feel equal to tackling it single-handed."

Mary got a fright at these words, and yet they were delicious hearing. They indicated that already Geoffrey Manning had found some things in his new patrimony which his soul loathed.

She had found many, but then Mardocks was not her patrimony; her responsibility began and ended within the school walls.

"Oh, it can't be quite so bad as that," she said cheerily, feeling that she could speak as naturally to him as to Granny; sure that here there could be no, and would not, be either barrier or misunderstanding. "And you will admit that it is quite the prettiest place you've ever seen?"

"Come over here and sit down," he commanded. "then I shall be sure you won't vanish through the door. I have a million things to ask you."

"Oh, the school won't take all that. It is really a quite simple proposition; besides the managers are the proper persons to supply information."

"I've been in the hands of managers for three whole days," he answered grimly. "A day and a half with my aunt in the house and village, a day and a half with Drinkwater over the estate. I've had facts and figures driven into me till my comprehension has become a little dazed. Now I want human things—and I don't know anybody in the place who can provide them excepting yourself."

It was a self-revealing speech which filled Mary's heart with the most intense satisfaction. For the beginning of all reform, inner or outward, is discontent with existing conditions. Coming to Mardocks with clear, unprejudiced vision, even singularly free from all the prejudice of his class, this young Colonial, who had been up against the hard facts of existence, and whose deep eyes had seen things in the spiritual sense,

DO YOU SUFFER WITH HEADACHE?

So easy to get quick relief and prevent an attack in the future. Avoid bromides and dope. They relieve quickly but affect the heart and are very dangerous. They are depressing and only give temporary relief, the cause of the headache still remains within.

The safe and harmless way. First correct the cause, sweeten the sour and acid stomach, relieve the intestines of the decayed and poisonous food matter, gently stimulate the liver, start the bile flowing and the bowels pass off the waste matter which causes your headache. might yet save Mardocks and its soul. And it was worth saving. There was splendid material within its green borders—quite endurance, inexhaustible patience, and the strength born of sorrows and injustice heroically borne. The crust of dullness and abject humility once broken, great things might even be witnessed in that simple English village. Mary sat down with her knee on the desk, and dropped her chin on her hand.

"I'm so glad you feel like that," she said simply. "So very, very glad. I don't pray very much, not more than a really healthy young woman needs to do I suppose, but I have prayed that you would come to Mardocks and be, well—just what you are. I shall always believe in prayer now. Granny says it is the greatest fighting weapon in the world, and the only one whose edge is never blunted."

"Granny must be a wise old lady—and I shall see her some day, I hope." Manning answered. Then he drew out a little shabby, battered, red diary from the pocket of his tunic and opened it at a page covered with jottings.

"The first thing I want to ask about is the Disneys. You know them very well, I understand—at least I gathered so from the way in which Mrs. Disney spoke of you."

"Yes, I know them very well—they are all my dearest friends in Mardocks. What do you want to know about them?"

"Well, everything you can tell me. The situation there wants explanation."

"The explanation is the simplest on earth. It is so simple that it is elemental. They haven't enough to live upon."

"What salary have they? I asked my aunt, but she said she wasn't quite sure, and I would have to go into the figures with Drinkwater. I asked what he had to do with it, but got no satisfactory answer. My aunt has got tired of my eternal questions."

"I don't wonder," Mary hesitated a moment, and then spoke out with frankness. "Mrs. Manning is one of those happy persons who assert that all's well in the best of worlds, even when all's wrong. Even her big personal sorrows—and it was a awful thing to lose both her sons—haven't opened her eyes to—well, to the sorrows of others."

Manning nodded. He was conscious of no disloyalty to his aunt in this kind of talk. He was out for truth, and since he could not get it in the open fields, must seek it in the by-ways.

"Well, about the Disneys. How much have they to live on?"

"A hundred and forty-seven pounds a year from the actual living supplemented by a hundred from Mrs. Manning."

"Two hundred and forty-seven pounds a year to keep themselves and their family; five, aren't there?"

"Yes, five. Mrs. Manning is very cross about the children. She does not approve of large families. In Mardocks the cottagers have never more than two or three. You will observe that when you get to know it better. Then the Vicar has to help his mother and an invalid sister."

QUEEN'S COUNTY W.C.T.U. QUARTERLY MEETING.

Representatives from Cornwall, York Pownal, Hampton and Victoria met with members of the Charlottetown W.C.T.U. on December 9th in the Y.M.C.A. Rooms for the Quarterly County Meeting. The Noonday Hour of Prayer was suitably observed after which Luncheon was partaken of.

In the unavoidable absence of Mrs. W. Crosby President, the Business Session was conducted by Mrs. R. Meikle.

An impressive memorial service included a solo by Mrs. Leigh Warren and a brief Tribute to the life and work of the late Mrs. Gordon Wright, National W.C.T.U. President.

This being the Christmas season an appropriate Story was very effectively told by Mrs. W. A. Thomas, followed by the solo 'O Little Town of Bethlehem, by Miss Margaret Stens, and a Reading by Mrs. Laura E. Bustin.

The resignation of the County President was regretfully accepted, and Mrs. Meikle was appointed to act for the rest of the year, with the assistance of Mrs. R.A. Pendleton.

The matter of suitable Temperance Charts for use in the Public Schools was discussed, and arrangements were made to have these supplied to Schools in the County. Five Dollars was voted towards County Prizes in the Scientific Temperance Contest just closing.

Announcement was made by Mr. P.E. Boctroy regarding the Convention of World's W.C.T.U. meeting in Toronto next June, and the need of P.E. Island Unions sharing in the cost of the Convention, which is being met by the sale of Hospitality Bonds valued at $1.00 each. Reference was also made to the small cost of the Text-books used in the recent Educational Contest, and the members were urged to provide themselves with copies for follow-up work so as to converse the results of the Contest as carefully as possible.

A very hearty vote of Thanks was tendered to the members of Charlottetown Union by the out-of-town friends for their generous entertainment.
