Urges Moderator To Exercise Powers Of Discipline

OTTAWA, June 12.—(CP)—Conservative Leader Hanson said today in the Commons he felt Rev. J. W. Woodside, Moderator of the House of Commons, should exercise his powers of discipline and moral suasion over certain ministers in his church who have been infringing the spirit of the Defence of Canada Regulations.

Mr. Hanson said this statement in the Commons today in explanation of his association yesterday that he would like to get the ear of the moderator and "tell him something." He said today he had not completed what he intended to say at that time.

Following is the text of Mr. Hanson's comments: "When speaking in this chamber yesterday on the Prime Minister's motion for the establishment of a committee to study the Defence of Canada regulations, I made passing reference to the Moderator of the United Church of Canada, and I did not finish giving expression to the idea which I had in mind.

Mr. Hanson now permitted in order to clarify my point of view, to say what I should then have said, namely, that if I could get the ear of the Moderator, I would suggest to him that in his position he should, in my view, exercise such powers of discipline and moral suasion as he may possess with such a body as the Moderator of the United Church of Canada, and I am certain that they are among the most loyal of our citizens, and I hasten to make this statement out of single justice to him and them.

MAYORS READY Time Bomb Explodes In British Ship

BUENOS AIRES, June 12.—(AP)—A powerful time bomb apparently intended to sink the British Royal Mail freighter Gonomyx, was blasted the centre hold of the vessel while at dock tonight, killing five others, and shattering a fuel tank and opened the side of the ship.

First reports said four British sailors were injured. It developed, however, that the injured were stewards engaged in loading meat. The explosion shattered a fuel tank and opened the side of the ship.

Officials said the explosion was the result of the first major sabotage in Buenos Aires since the start of the war.

of Reims. French aviation was heavily engaged over the battle area during the day, some units returning five times to the attack.

The region between the Aisne and Meuse rivers was reported quiet. From the lower Seine to the Argonne forest the battle raged. As the guns roared along the whole irregular front, word came up from the south that the Italians, with 60 or 70 divisions (perhaps 900,000 or 1,000,000 men mobilized) had blown up a bridge at Vintimille on the French border in the Alps.

As the German army advanced, trying to complete the vast circling movement around Paris, the military governor ordered all employees of the public services in the Seine-et-Oise and Seine-et-Marne departments to remain at their posts. These areas immediately west and east of Paris.

The prefecture of the Seine department, which includes Paris, re-estimated all bakeries, pharmacies and groceries.

Were Turned Back When the armies of Von Kluck and Von Bulow reached the Marne in the autumn of 1914, the French turned them back with a swift flanking attack.

Now in the Vic-sur-Aisne, about midway between Soissons and Compiègne, the Germans crossed to the south bank of the river and from a high plain opened an offensive to bring them closer to Senlis already in their hands, and the road to Paris down the Oise valley.

South of the Marne, along the line of the Meuse and Chateaufort, the French ordered a withdrawal. Meaux is only 26 miles east of Paris.

But the war ministry said the withdrawal had been in the east toward the northeast, were counter-balanced in the west along the winding Seine valley.

The Germans crossed the Seine near Vernon yesterday, between the old town and the ruins of the fortress Richard the Lionhearted built to defend the valley in the 13th century, but the French wiped them out in fierce fighting.

Gains Small In the area of Louviers, farther down the River ward Rouen, the Germans were trying to cross the river under cover of a smoke screen, and here, too, the fighting was violent.

In spite of the fierce attacks, the gains were small, a military spokesman said in the first conference at Tours, French provisioned capital. He emphasized that decisive victory had yet been gained.

With Reims holding as in 1914-18, the war ministry said the German advance between the besieged city and Compiègne had failed to pierce the general defence system. General Weygand's plan of defence apparently was inflicting tremendous losses on the Germans in men and tanks.

Into the fight, the war ministry said, the German had thrown even training tanks brought hastily up from Germany.

Chateaufort, Thury, where the French have dug in to stop the German rush, marks the farthest point reached by the Germans in the big spring offensive of 1918.

Ontario In Danger Of An Invasion? ST. THOMAS, Ont., June 12.—(CP)—Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario declared last night the Ontario Provincial Police have received information Nazi and Fascist sympathizers in the United States are organizing and waiting only for orders to attack the Atlantic coast.

Trained and Equipped Mr. Hepburn, recuperating from illness at his home here, said he considered the matter so urgent he disregarded his physician's orders and issued a statement to the press from his bedside. He declared the totalitarian sympathizers in the United States were well-trained and equipped with arms for quick action.

Operators of the criminal investigation department of the Provincial Police had definite information, he said, "I hope the able-bodied men of Ontario will become as apprehensive of this danger as I am and they will act quickly. I appeal to them to act for the protection of their homes and their factories, of their wives and children."

See the Danger "I am not an alarmist, but I am a realist," said Premier Hepburn. "I want the people of Ontario to become realistic with me and see the danger of the situation. Ontario is in a vulnerable position, for it projects into one of the most thickly-populated sections of the United States, where undoubtedly there are hundreds of thousands of Nazi and Fascist sympathizers. I fear that by the time the Dominion Government got ready to act the damage would be done."

Many are Training "Our C. I. D. operatives have furnished us with definite information that many of these Nazis and Fascist sympathizers are training that they are well organized and in some instances they are well armed," the Premier said.

"They are only waiting for orders from across the Atlantic to sweep in upon us and lay waste to our beautiful land.

No confidence in the Dominion Government, judged by its past record, I have no confidence in the Dominion Government of being of help to us in general, or of being of help to us in our fair province. At the same time the Dominion Government got ready to act, the damage would be done."

OTTAWA, June 12.—(CP)—Warning given by Premier Hepburn yesterday of a possible invasion of Ontario by Nazis and their sympathizers in the United States was branded today by Justice Minister Lapointe in the House of Commons as "a sample of the kind of cooperation we are receiving in this country."

Conservative Leader Hanson read an extract from a newspaper reporting that Mr. Hepburn as secretary of the Dominion Government had attacked Canada from the United States whenever they received the word from Hitler.

"I was very disappointed when Hon. J. C. Power, acting Minister of National Defence said this morning that the Dominion Government was receiving information from the United States that it was to be used to attack Canada from the United States whenever they received the word from Hitler."

"I have just learned of the tragic accident, I know what a great loss it is to you and the Dominion in the death of Hon. Norman Rogers. I am hourly praying for the recovery of the brave and gallant Captain H. H. Balfour, United Kingdom Under Secretary of State for Air sent the following message to Mr. MacKenzie King:

"Please allow me to express my deepest sympathy with you and your colleagues at the death of Mr. Rogers who was such a brilliant and helpful colleague to me during the Commonwealth Air Training Plan discussions."

Island Man Sent To Jail HAMILTON, Ont., June 12.—(CP)—Edward Bennett, 54-year-old farm labourer from Prince Edward Island charged under Mr. Rogers' Island Charge Regulations was sentenced to six months in jail today. He was sentenced to a concurrent two-month term as a vagrant.

Mr. Rogers' two boys, Roderick McLeod, and Alan MacNeill Rogers walked behind the coffin, clad in short-trousered suits and wearing the black ties of mourning.

Ahead marched long columns of the fighting men who were mustered behind the coffin, and the cabinet ministers, foreign diplomats, members of parliament and senators. Hon. R. J. Manion, former Conservative leader, also attended the service.

The funeral service was the first ever held in the Parliament buildings. When the late Governor-General Lord Tweedsmuir, died last winter, his body lay in state in the Senate chamber, but was taken to a church for the service.

Following a private service at the Rogers' home, the body was brought to the buildings late in the afternoon and placed at the end of the Hall of Fame close to the door of the old library, the one relic of former buildings destroyed by fire in 1916.

By request of the family there were no flowers. Nothing detracted from the color provided by the huge Union Jack which draped the coffin.

Cabinet ministers, members, high ranking officers of the armed services, senior civil servants and diplomats filled nearby corridors. The Rogers family, father and mother, widow, sons and brothers, stood in the library doorway.

Full-bearded were the senior officers of the armed services, and the bear party was a composite one, made up of men from all three services.

Red-coated Royal Canadian Mounted Police rode the station which hauled the body to the station on a gun carriage.

The body will be cremated in Montreal, where Mr. Rogers' native Amherst, N.S.

War Comes to Italy The Allies brought the war to Italy earlier in the day with bombing raids on the great industrial cities of Milan and Turin and other points in the north.

Other action unspecified in nature occurred along the Ligurian coast, on which Genoa is located. Its second day of belligerency, the Italian high command still told little of its operations against Britain and France.

The first war communique reported yesterday only yesterday's air bombardment of Genoa and an alleged fight with British planes which bombed Libya.

Early today, anti-aircraft guns sounded and warning sirens shrieked for an hour at Turin, Milan and other cities in the north.

Details Withheld Details were withheld. Newspapers reported merely that anti-aircraft guns were in action, and that the firing was particularly heavy around Milan.

It was claimed in some quarters that Italy had massed a great army on the French coast, perhaps for a drive through the maritime Alps where the French are strongly entrenched.

The report of action on the Ligurian coast, which lies between Leghorn and the French-Italian frontier, south of Turin and Milan, did not explain whether it was naval or aerial. Details of official announcements were withheld.

Crown Prince Umberto, Inspector of Infantry, sent a message of encouragement to his troops.

March with unshakable faith and heroic vision of past triumphs towards new and certain destinies of Imperial Italy," Umberto said.

"The Fatherland is expecting more splendid glories from you who are as brave and tenacious as ever."

The British Minister and the French ambassador to the Holy See made arrangements to take up their residence in the Vatican Friday.
