Uncle Sam.—My! the Presidential campaign has just gone by, and here comes the Christmas campaign a-jog.

The "Bora Fixer" at Work. "Our clock stopped the other day," said a woman. "When I wound it the pendulum refused to swing. William told me to let it alone until he had time to fix it."

"One evening after dinner William took down the clock. He told the servant to bring him the kerosene oil can. He poured half the contents of the can down the back of the clock. Incidentally he ruined the tablecloth and his trousers. But I didn't mind that. It never pays to interfere with a bora fixer when he's fixing something."

"After William had tinkered with the timepiece for an hour he decided to wait until the next night. When he had gone downtown next morning I took it to a clockmaker. "Jimminy," he exclaimed, "who's been monkeying with this? To remedy the original trouble would have cost you 49 cents. Now you'll want a new face, since this one is soaked with oil. You're in for $4.50 all right." "I had the clock in its usual place when William came home to dinner. But he never seemed to notice it. Said he was going to a neighbor's that evening to help him fix his automobile."—New York Press.

Benny on the Kangaroo. The kangaroo is an animal with four legs, but it only uses half of them at one time. This is because its front legs ain't of much account. What it does not have in front legs it makes up in hind legs. The reason why the kangaroo stands up straight like a man is that its tail is too heavy for it and kind of pulls its head up in the air. I have heard it said that if you cut off a kangaroo's tail the tail will grow another kangaroo, but the kangaroo cannot grow another tail. Once there was a man who drew a kangaroo in a lottery. When he found he could not ride the animal he traded it for a bicycle, which is far more useful, and you do not have to feed it. Let us learn from this not to be cast down when obstacles rise before us on our pathway through life, and if we are good and obedient to our teachers we will succeed. The kangaroo does not walk, like a bird or a human being, but jumps. I would rather be a grizzly bear, which is content with peanuts and raw meat and sleeps through the long, dreary hours. —Chicago Tribune.

If It Shrinks. There's only one guarantee worth considering when it comes to Underwear. That's the guarantee that goes with every garment bearing the Stanfield label—"money back if it shrinks." That is the way we prove our faith in Stanfield's Unshrinkable Underwear. Your money is yours until the wash tub and wear prove that Stanfield's can't and won't shrink. If you are dissatisfied with any garment, you have only to say so to your dealer, to get your money. Buy Stanfield's with that understanding. And we know, right now, that you will be better pleased with Stanfield's Unshrinkable Underwear than any other you ever wore.
