Y. M. C. A. SERVICE OF SONG

The usual Sunday after church service was held in St. James Church last evening with some 300 young people in attendance. The singing was greatly helped by the presence of St. James choir. The special numbers were solos by Mrs. J. A. Lawson, (Beautiful Isle of Somewhere) and Mr. C. J. Gallagher, (My Task), both of these beautiful solos were very well received.

The speaker of the evening was Rev. D. C. Hill of Port Elgin, Ont., who is supplying in Zion Church for part of December.

The speaker's message was mainly to the students on "Study," stating how we study in order to be able to think clearly. To think in order to live, and to live in order to make a living. Mr. Hill pointed out in his short address that Christianity must be treated with intellectual respect if we are to worship the Lord with understanding. If we are to make the most of our religion it must be the most important thing in our lives else in times of distress or great crises our faith will not sustain us. With this warning to his audience that they make their religion vital. Mr. Hill brought his talk to a close.

Those assisting in the service were Rev. Moorhead Legate, Rev. W. L. Outhouse, Rev. D. C. Hill, Mrs. Keith Rogers, organist, Mrs. Lawson and Mr. C. J. Gallagher, soloists, joint chairmen, Walter Mutch and R. A. Pendleton.

At the close of the service the chairman extended the hearty thanks of all to the trustees of St. James Church and to all those taking part in the service.

Next week this service will be held in Central Christian Church.

Sentences Passed At Summerside Supreme Court

His Honour, Mr. Justice Saunders, passed sentence Saturday morning on the two prisoners found guilty at this setting of the Supreme Court at Summerside. Neither of the prisoners had anything to say to the question why sentence should not be passed.

Joseph McDougall received a sentence of three years in Dorchester Penitentiary for breaking, entering and stealing certain silver foxes from the ranch of Mr. Alban Strong of Summerside.

Counsel for the prisoner, Mr. E. H. Strong, K.C., spoke on behalf of McDougall that His Honour in passing sentence temper justice with mercy on the plea that the prisoner who was only twenty years of age at the present time and from his early childhood had had no proper chance. From the time he was eight years old, his mother had been obliged to work to support the family and he had got mixed up with bad companions. When fourteen years of age he, in company with two other boys, had been arrested for stealing some pencils from a store, there being no juvenile court, in those days, he was tried before the late Judge McQuarrie and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary. Later he was given five months in jail for a first offense against the Prohibition Act on the evidence of a spotter.

His Honour in passing sentence, stated that the evidence against the prisoner was very conclusive and that the only reason that he hesitated in giving him a long term of imprisonment was because he felt that he had not had the same opportunity as other boys but at the same time the prisoner apparently made no effort to better his environment. His Honour felt that rum had played a great part in the downfall of the prisoner. He doubted very seriously if a light sentence would do any good. But he was willing to materially reduce the sentence if the prisoner would promise never to touch liquor again and while he was in Dorchester would learn a useful trade so that he could become a useful citizen on the expiration of his term of imprisonment. The prisoner answered "Yes" to these questions and at the request of the Court signed a paper to keep these promises. His Honour stated, in passing the sentence of three years in Dorchester, that if ever the prisoner appeared before him again, he would give him the full penalty of the law.

Roy Yeo, found guilty of assault upon and beating Charles Enman, and occasioning grievous bodily harm, was given a term of twelve months in the Prince County Jail, sentence to begin from November 29th.

In passing sentence, His Honour said that the prisoner was very fortunate to have an indictment of that kind. The assault was most brutal and vicious, almost inhuman and murder might have been the charge laid against the prisoner.

His Honour went on to say that unfortunately, like many other young men, liquor was the cause of the prisoner's present condition, coming from such a highly respected family, he had expected something better of him. His Honour did not think that it would be in the interest of the prisoner or society to send him to the penitentiary, as he did not think that he was a hardened criminal. He belonged to one of the finest families in the County. His Honour hoped that the prisoner would never touch liquor on his release from his term in the jail.

The Court then adjourned.—S.

Honesty The Best Policy

(Special to the Guardian)

NEW YORK, N. Y., Dec. 13—Five year old Mary Donoghue whose father, a laborer, is out of work enriched her family to the extent of $750 today, when she collected that sum as a reward for finding a bag containing eleven pieces of jewelry valued at $7,400. The gems had been lost Sunday by Mrs. Evelyn Marshall Field, divorced wife of Marshall Field, 3rd near her residence on east seventeenth street. The child's parents reported the find to the police and today the ownership was traced through an insurance company newspaper advertisement.

A small donation might mean to the person of Christian spirit the beginning of the "giving habit" and would mean to the happy little recipient, a very merry Christmas. It is an opportunity which comes but once a year. All detail work is handled by The Guardian.

Santa Pals may contribute in either of two ways. They may provide such articles as fruit, candy, or toys, or they may contribute to the 25 cent Empty Stocking Fund. In either case the Santa Pal may indicate the particular child which he or she wishes to "adopt."

All who have signified their intention of helping in the work are requested to forward their donation to this office as soon as possible, if they have not already done so.
