Canadian Girl Guide Week

(OCTOBER 17TH TO 24TH)

One of the most prominent features of the Girl Guide activities is the out-door training. Saturday, October 24th, is the OUT-DOOR AND HEALTH DAY in the Seven-Guide-Days programme just ending of the Canadian Girl Guide Week. This has been entered into by Guides all across Canada, making it a great national effort of co-operation in Guide activities and service.

Camping, hiking and nature study enter very largely into the year's programme of every Guide company. This in turn leads to good health, for the Guides are taught that getting away from the four walls of the school or club room, and out into the fresh air and sunshine will have much to do with building up healthy bodies.

Woodcraft activities, such as tracking, stalking, signalling, fire-lighting, trail making and nature lore open up a world of adventure to the girls, who go out accompanied by an adult leader who is keen on the out-doors and who is able to instill into the Guides a spirit of resourcefulness and pioneering.

A day's hike with a Guide company will show how much may be done in teaching youth to take care of itself. The ability to lay a fire in the open, with the wind blowing, or even a rain falling and being able to light that fire and keep it going is useful in an emergency. The cooking learned over a camp fire is still cooking, and the fact that less pots and pans are used than at home is surely a matter of thrift. Guides are taught to put out their fires, which should appeal to every real Canadian who grieves over the fire wastes in our forests. Those who see the litter left by careless picknickers by the roadside should rejoice in the training given in the Girl Guides, which says "nothing should be left behind but your thanks."

All the year Guides look forward to their summer outing at camp. Guide camps are run under careful supervision, as each camp and each camp director must comply with camping regulations and standards laid down by the Canadian Council. In those happy camp days the foundations of health habits are laid. The morning Keep-Fit exercises, the regular hours for rest and sleep, well-planned and well-cooked meals, as well as clear cut teaching of healthy habits will do much to make for a healthier generation.

Sports events, and organized Sports Days are looked forward to by many companies and districts of Guides. Some girls have received an incentive in this way to go on and make Physical Training their life work while Guides are proud of the fact that several members of the Canadian Olympic Teams, at some time, have been active members of the movement.

In Charlottetown, each Guide Company is arranging a hike for this afternoon, weather permitting. Out-of-town Companies are also planning outdoor activities for this, the last day of Canadian Girl Guide Week.

Joe Said They'd Go

Island Joe in Island Politics

Now Joseph was a Liberal bold, And what he thought he always told; And doughty Tories learned to fear His under-dig and scornful jeer. He seemed to see as through a glass Events that soon would come to pass.

And then in nineteen-thirty-five—King George the Fifth being then alive, The Tories after some reflection Proclaimed a general election, And tried with all their might and main To win their way to power again, 'Twas all in vain—their day was spent; Joe said they'd go, and so they went.

And now the axe began to fall On office-holders, great and small; On some who gloves and collars wore, And pick-and-shovel men galore; And pretty little Tory dames Who really wished to change their names, But not their pleasant situations That gave such scope for recreations.

But one by one, some soon, some late, They met the same unlovely fate: Joe gave a hint—that really meant Joe said they'd go, and so they went.

And now the Liberals held full sway And ruled the roost for many a day; Much longer than the Tories wished, And longer than at first they guessed. Their leader was a graceful man, A scion of a mighty clan Whose pibroch in the days of old Made Scottish blood run hot and cold.

He was a man of many parts, And very soon he won the hearts Of Islanders who love to see High talents joined to courtesy.

But time and tide roll on their way, And every dog must have his day; The Liberal luck began to fail And fluctuate with every gale; The Tory opposition grew To be a formidable crew; And even Joe was heard to scold And criticize, and often told The Liberals—but they scorned to hear— Their day of doom was drawing near: Election came—their day was spent, Joe said they'd go, and so they went.

GRANT-MACDONALD

St. Andrew's Church, St. Andrew's, was the scene of a pretty wedding at eight o'clock of September 23rd, when Miss Ernestine S. Grant, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Grant, Mount Stewart, became the bride of Ronald George MacDonald, son of Mr. D. J. V. MacDonald and the late Mrs. MacDonald, of Mt. Stewart. The nuptial Mass was celebrated by Rev. A. P. MacLellan, parish priest.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a pencil blue ensemble with navy blue accessories, and wore a corsage bouquet of white snapdragon and baby's breath. Her attendant was Miss Mary McAskill, who wore steel grey with navy blue accessories. The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Clarence MacDonald.

During the ceremony appropriate hymns were rendered by the Misses MacDonald. Immediately after the marriage the bridal party motored to Charlottetown, where a dainty wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. E. J. Wynne. After motoring to different points on the Island, the bridal party returned to the home of the groom, where a wedding reception was held, about eighty of the immediate relatives of the bride and groom being present.

Many beautiful and useful gifts were received. Previous to her marriage a miscellaneous shower was tendered the bride by her girl friends at the home of Mrs. Donald J. McLeod. Lovely gifts of cut glass, linen and silver were showered the bride. A jolly evening was spent in music and dancing. A dainty lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Joseph MacDonald and Mrs. John McAskill.

MURNAGHAN - HUGHES

St. Patrick's Church at Port Augustus, was the scene of a pretty wedding when on October 14th, Miss Mary Catherine Murnaghan was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Joseph Chester Hughes, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. D. P. Creken, who also celebrated the nuptial Mass.

The bride looked winsome in a gown of wine transparent velvet, trimmed with silver beads, with hat and accessories to match and wore a brown coat trimmed with brown Alaskan seal. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Eunice Murnaghan, who wore brown corded crepe with brown coat, hat and accessories to match. The groom was ably supported by his brother, Ambrose Hughes.

The church was tastefully decorated for the occasion by the bride's cousin in a colourful scheme of white and pink strewn with dahlias and roses.

After the ceremony the bridal party motored to the home of the bride's parents, where a sumptuous breakfast was served to about eighty invited guests. After some hours of hilarity the bridal party left on a drive, accompanied by the groom's brothers and some friends. After motoring to points of interest on the Island they returned to the groom's home in Dromore, where upwards of two hundred guests had assembled to partake of the gorgeous supper prepared.

During the course of events fitting remarks concerning the reception and the standing of both bride and groom in the esteem of the people of the communities to which they belonged were expressed by J. J. McCarthy, John Hughes, Martin Power, Daniel Hughes, John Holland and Charles McGuirk.

Many useful and valuable gifts were received, including silverware, glassware, chinaware and linen, as well as a large number of envelopes containing money and cheques from friends and from relatives aboard, all testifying, as did the before-mentioned remarks, to the popularity and esteem in which the young couple were held.

After supper the young people indulged in dancing, the music being furnished by the Hughes and MacDonald orchestras, and in the wee sma' hours all departed wishing Mr. and Mrs. Hughes many long years of happy wedded bliss in their new home in Dromore.

In Memoriam

MRS. F. E. CONROY

The passing of Mrs. F. E. Conroy, Souris, on Monday evening, October 19th, so suddenly and unexpectedly, came as a severe shock to her many friends in a community of which she was a highly respected citizen. The late Mrs. Carrie Carlton Conroy was a native of Worcester, Mass., and came here some sixteen years ago as wife of Mr. F. Conroy of this town. Since taking up residence here she has identified herself with every work—Member of the United Church, Ladies Aid and Missionary Society—she will be sadly missed.

Though not in her usual health Mrs. Conroy's condition was not considered serious, but on Monday evening after partaking of supper she apparently fell asleep, and shortly after, her husband failing to awaken her, found she had passed away.

Oh death, where is thy sting; Oh grave, thy victory; She is survived by a sorrowing husband and two cousins: Miss Matilda Carlton and Mr. Lloyd Carlton of this town.

Other relatives at Worcester, Mass., whence her remains have been forwarded.

Funeral service at St. James United Church, was conducted by Rev. J. G. Hockin, assisted by Rev. Mr. Bell.

The many floral tributes bore silent testimony to the esteem in which she was held: Messrs. Matthew and McLean, Ltd. wreath; Master and Brethren of Orient Lodge, pillow; The Fraser Family, sheaf; Mr. and Mrs. H. D. McLean, spray; The Misses McQuaid, spray; Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Matthew, spray; Mrs. H. L. Worthy, Charlottetown, spray; Mrs. John McQuaid, bouquet; Mrs. Jacob Green, bouquet; Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Cox, spray; Ladies Aid and Official Board of the United Church, cross; The Misses Garrett, pillow; The Staff, Matthew and McLean, Ltd., wreath; Mrs. Leard and Family, spray.

New Anesthetic Best Yet Discovered
 BY STEPHEN J. McDonough
 Associated Press Staff Writer
 PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23-(AP)—Extensive successful use of the most nearly perfect anesthetic yet discovered was reported today before members of the college of anaesthetists and the American College of Surgeons.
 Known as "divinyl ether," the anesthetic has been used to date on 2,675 cases, according to Dr. Isidor Ravdin, professor of research surgery of the University of Pennsylvania, and "thought it is not the ideal anesthetic, it is as close as approach to it as we know."
 The principal advantages, he added, are that it produces unconsciousness more rapidly than other drugs, can be safely used in operations requiring several hours, and is quickly eliminated from the body after an operation is completed.
 Fewer bad effects, such as nausea result from the use of divinyl ether, Dr. Ravdin declared, and in a series of 600 cases in which examination was made no harmful effects on the kidneys, which sometimes result from the use of other anesthetics, were found.
 The drug is especially valuable in dental operations and in the treatment of fractures where quick relaxation of the patient's muscles is necessary.
 Dr. R. C. Buerki of Madison, Wis., said most individuals could present the occurrence of high blood pressure in themselves if they wished.
 "Moderation in all things and prohibition in none is the rule for preventing high blood pressure and its complications," he advised.

get the Flemish and Rexist votes behind a new army bill." (The Rexist is a new Fascist-inclined Belgian political party).
 Previously King Leopold's speech had been interpreted as forecasting Belgian withdrawal from her treaty with France, from the Locarno Pact and from her obligations under the League of Nations Covenant.
 Assurances to the contrary, Deblos said, had been given him personally by the Belgian Premier, Paul Van Zeeland, on the evening of the King's speech.
 "Van Zeeland told me," Deblos said, "that Leopold's words were purely a gesture and that the Franco-Belgian alliance would endure. He also said Belgium would remain faithful to the Locarno Treaty and to the League Covenant."
 Discussing the Spanish situation, Deblos said France would resolutely oppose any move by the Fascist element in Spain to transfer part of Spanish Morocco to Germany or Italy (presumably in return for military aid in the civil war).
 "The French are determined," he said, "that the present status quo of Morocco will be maintained."
Call Parliament
 BRUSSELS, Oct. 21-(CP-Havas)—An extraordinary session of the Belgian Parliament was convoked tonight for next Tuesday. Growing domestic and foreign difficulties facing the Government of Premier Paul Van Zeeland will be considered, it was reported.
 Official announcement that both houses would be convoked came on the heels of an important conference between King Leopold and Foreign Minister Paul Henri Spaak and a report that 200,000 followers of Leon Degrelle, Rexist chieftain, were preparing to march on Brussels this Sunday. The Government banned the march tonight.
 In his talk with the King, Spaak was understood to have dis-
