

Children Cry for Fletcher's CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine is even more essential for Baby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. It was the need of a remedy for the common ailments of Infants and Children that brought Castoria before the public after years of research, and no claim has been made for it that its use for over 30 years has not proven.

What is CASTORIA?

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. ## New Zealand Makes Contracts For Butter Supply

LONDON, September 4.—It is understood that the Ministry of Food in pursuance of its policy in restricting imports and controlling prices, is arranging for the renewal of another contract with the New Zealand producers for the purchase of the whole of the surplus supplies of butter from that Dominion. A similar contract is said to have been made with Australia, while the importation of butter from Denmark is also controlled by the Food Ministry.

This matter has evoked the attention of the Imperial Commercial Association, which Lord Lochdale is president, and Hon. F. M. R. Fisher, former Minister of Trade and Customs in New Zealand, is a director. Speaking on behalf of that body Mr. Fisher made a strong protest against the continuation of the system of control, and instigated the shortage of butter supplies and the high prices to the consumers as indicative of the evils which characterized that system. He said:

"All the state trading and limitation of private trading is against the public interest and calculated to penalize the consumer. The feeling in the trade is that as long as the Food Department remains in existence the prices of foodstuffs will not decline. It is quite possible that if the restrictions made by that Department were removed they would occur a slight, but only temporary, rise in prices. Until we get back to pre-war conditions under which we had open competition in a free market, prices cannot be expected to decline permanently.

It is reasonable to suppose that the policy of the Department is dictated by a desire on the part of its officials to show that they have some justification for the continuance of the Department, but they should be made to bear in mind the calamitous effect which this policy has upon the prices of products in this country. We know that during the war the government was the sole purchaser of wool from Australia and New Zealand. The result was one of the worst examples on the part of the Imperial Government of profiteering that came to light during the war. It also created a feeling of profound suspicion on the part of the producers of the Commonwealth and the Dominion and at this moment there is a strong feeling of resentment on the part of the producers, not only of those countries, but also in Canada."

GERMANY SEEKS HELP FROM ROME

BERLIN, September 4.—The influential role the Pope is again coming to play in European diplomacy—one of the most conspicuous post-war reactions—has been further emphasized in an appeal which Germany sent yesterday to the Vatican for mediation in the Saar Valley dispute with France.

While the German government issued this appeal simultaneously to other European powers, special significance attaches to the communication to the Holy See as it marks the initial recognition of papal influence in diplomatic affairs by Germany since the overthrow of the monarchy. Germany, though republicanized, is continuing the traditional policy of the monarchy in working in the closest union with the Vatican, in many ways transcending the former empire's recognition. The republic has sent an ambassador to the Vatican who represents not only Prussia, as before, but the whole empire.

The Centrists, always a powerful element in German parliamentary life, are chiefly responsible for the prestige enjoyed by the Vatican here, and the present important Centrist block in the Reichstag can be counted upon to seek extensive use of the Vatican influence in many questions pertaining to German foreign policy. Their recent declaration, in which they express confidence in the restoration of the people's temporal power, tends to substantiate this view considerably.

Many Germans, however, have looked in the direction of Rome with some suspicion and misgivings for it was felt that the Vatican was not unsympathetic to certain French suggestions that Catholic Bavaria, Austria and the Rhenish provinces would unite against Prussia and Saxony. In its note to the Vatican Germany drew attention to a series of alleged abuses by the French in their mandate in the Saar, charging excesses by French soldiers, particularly the black troops, and maintaining the right of the German Government to conduct "national cultural propaganda" on strictly German territory and among a strictly German population. Germany invites an examination of the nature of its propaganda and insists it cannot be accused of intrigue against the League of Nations, which it will be remembered is the nominal sovereign in the Saar valley.

The Germans point out that the French are making an even more intense propaganda not alone cultural but political and economic as well. Finally the Germans warn that unless the arbitrary regime instituted by the commander of the army of occupation ceases serious results may ensue. Incidentally, the state of siege now is definitely lifted in the region, but there seems no tendency on the part of the strikers to return to their labors.

HAD THEIR ORIGIN IN THE OLDEN TIMES.

(Philadelphia Public Ledger.)

When you say that you have escaped by the skin of your teeth do you know you are quoting scripture? Look in the 20th verse of the 19th chapter of Job and you will find lines: "My bone cleaveth to my skin and my flesh, and I am escaped with the skin of my teeth."

And do you think you are profane when you say that you "don't care a dam." The truth is that a dam was the smallest Hindu coin at a time when the English were invading India, and the expression that one "didn't give a dam" naturally sprang up to mean that a matter is of next to no importance.

Of similar origin is the phrase that a thing is "not worth a rap." That was an Irish copper coin issued early in the 18th century to supply a long-felt want for small money. Nominally it was worth a half-penny but its metal was so thin and base that it never passed for more than a farthing. In fact current expressions today can be traced back to all parts of the globe. The ancient Egyptians believed that the souls of men were weighed after death. From it has arisen the phrase that man is tried in the balance and found wanting.

The shibboleth of the Chinamen is the word "business," which he seems unable to pronounce. In trying to do so he makes a sound, which resembles "pidgin." Thus the business English he picks up in the open port which is a largon of the many languages he hears, has come to be known as pidgin English.

It is the Malays, who, when under the influence of opium rush through the streets with drawn daggers, crying, "Amok! Amok!" ("Kill! Kill!") and threatening the lives of every one they encounter. The word has been translated in English as "amuck" and it is easy to see the beginning of the expression to run amuck.

Two words which had their origin in Italy are gazette and ball. In the 16th century a small handwritten sheet was circulated in Venice containing news of the war with Soliman II. It was not sold outright, but each one who read it was charged a gazette, the Venetian coin valued at three-quarters of a cent of American money. Hence comes the word "gazette," used commonly as the name of a newspaper.

Ball play in church by the dean and choir boys of Naples was a curious old custom during the "Feast of Fools" at Easter. The boys danced around the dean singing an antiphon. The dean had a ball which he threw to them and they caught it while dancing. Late at private dancing parties the dancers threw a ball to each other, as, to the sound of their own voices, they whirled around in sets. The pastime consisted in loosening hands in time to catch the ball. Dancing has long survived, this strange game, but a dancing party is still called a ball.

At the time when the Plantagenets held possession of the Basque provinces in Spain, Edward I. brought over to England troops of Basque mountaineers to aid him in the subjection of Wales. The ruling deity of these people was called Jaiako, and from them the Englishmen caught the expression "by Jingo!"

An incident of interest in English and French history occurred in 1514. The French fleet ravaged the coast of Sussex and burned Brighthelmston, now Brighton, whereupon Sir John Wallow one of the best naval commanders of his time, was sent by Henry VIII, to make reprisals. In this he succeeded only too well. He burned 21 French villages, demolished several harbors and thrashed the enemy to his heart's content. His men however, proud of his achievement, declared that they had walloped the French. Thus there came into the English language as a synonym for thrash the new word wallop.

Can You Do More Work by Neglecting Sleep

WHEN a man finds himself up against more than he can do, his solution may be shorter hours instead of longer—more sleep instead of less.

There is no greater help to good work, and keen enjoyment in doing it, than plenty of that deep, sound sleep that wakes a man up feeling alive all over.

When a man finds that he is not sleeping properly, he should look to his bed. No one can sleep soundly unless his bed is noiseless and steady; his spring resilient, and his mattress and pillow invite perfect relaxation.

THE truly noiseless Bed is the Simmons Metal Bed—built for sleep.

Just as the sleep-inducing Spring is a Simmons "Waldorf," of specially tempered spring coils. Fine Springs that fit the contour of the body and support the spine in a straight line, insuring perfect circulation and restoring the energy used up in the fatigue of the day.

Simmons Felt Mattresses are the result of twenty-five years' study of equipment for sound, natural sleep. Made of pure, new cotton in clean, sun-lit factories. Used in thousands of fastidious Canadian homes.

And Simmons Pillows, which rest the head and neck exactly as they need to be rested.

Years ago Simmons Limited established the principle of Beds,
