"The Fighting 69th" Opening Today At The Prince Edward

"The Fighting 69th" starring James Cagney, Pat O'Brien and George Brent will have its first local showing today at the Prince Edward Theatre. Supporting the star trio are Jeffrey Lynn, Alan Hale, Frank McHugh and a host of others, playing featured roles in the story.

A rousing action drama, "The Fighting 69th" shows Cagney as a cocky young private, bucking army discipline in the form of comic-strip top sergeant Alan Hale. Pat O'Brien plays the role of Father Francis P. Duffy, well-known and beloved chaplain of the 69th, and George Brent portrays "Wild Bill" Donovan, dare-devil colonel of the regiment.

"The Fighting 69th" is unique in that, with the exception of but four characters all in the picture represent real persons, many still living. The Cagney and Hale roles are fictional, but the O'Brien and Brent roles are taken straight from famed real life characters. Jeffrey Lynn portrays Joyce Kilmer, soldier-poet of the 69th. Often called the Shamrock Brigade, the 69th regiment was one of the best known for its unusually heroic exploits and its general capture of scrap-iron. Captain John Prout, of the 69th, acted as a technical advisor during production of the film, supplying much of the personal data which makes up the human interest story of the scrap-iron regiment.

Besides those mentioned, the cast includes Dennis Morgan, Dick Foran, Guinn "Big Boy" Williams, William Lundigan, Henry O'Neill, Tom Kennedy and many more.

Roy Rogers At The Capitol

A new and unusual type of plot is brought to the screen in Republic's "Days of Jesse James," starring Roy Rogers, now showing at the Capitol Theatre.

The scene is laid in the middle-west at the time when the James Brothers were committing their depredations. Roy Rogers is imported by the Bankers' Association to track down the James boys. The railroad also join in the man hunt, engaging a famous detective, Captain Worthington, and offering fifty thousand dollars reward.

Worthington's sole motive is to collect the reward money, while Roy, on the other hand, is fired by lofty ideals of patriotism and civic duty—colored a bit perhaps by his regard for the pretty grand-daughter of one of Jesse James' bank robbery victims.

The plot takes an unusual twist when Roy discovers that the James boys are not the ones he is after, after all a contingent of local troops has been operating unchecked, and blaming its outrages on the James gang.

Pauline Moore, who in private life is the wife of Jefferson Macnamer, the cartoonist, plays the leading role opposite Rogers, and supporting roles are ably handled by George "Gabby" Hayes, Ron Barry, Glenn Strange, Carl Spivey, Forrest Dillon, Jack Rockwell and Hansel Warner.

will "neither negotiate nor conclude an armistice or treaty of peace, except by mutual agreement."

3. There will be no peace talk before the Allies are completely agreed on the conditions necessary to ensure each a "definitive and lasting" guarantee of security.

Also discussed at the meeting, it was understood, were: a policy of greater vigour in prosecution of the war; relations with Soviet-Russia, both diplomatic and economic; and means of plugging two big gaps in the Allied blockade of Germany, the use of Norwegian coastal waters by German merchantmen, and German imports by way of Vladivostok and the trans-Siberian railway.

Developments in the strategic situation since February were reviewed, and a "future line of action" decided upon.

The foreign office gave its first hint of a diplomatic push in the Balkans when it announced that the British Diplomatic representatives to Turkey, Greece, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Rumania and Hungary, will come to London early in April for consultations with Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax.

Sir Percy Loraine, Ambassador to Italy which considers the Balkans in her special sphere of influence, also will be here.

Simultaneously Paris announced Reynaud will confer with France's Ambassadors and Ministers in Europe.

These announcements were taken to mean the Allies do not intend to sit back any longer and watch Germany attempt to line up the smaller States of Europe on her side in the economic war.

Observers predicted a concerted drive by the Allies to block any move Von Ribbentrop and Hitler may be formulating to gain control of the vast wheatlands, oilfields, mineral resources and grasslands of the Balkans either by Germany herself, or with Russia and Italy as partners.

Watch The Balkans

"Keep your eye on the Balkans," one of the most experienced diplomatic observers in London advised tonight, soon after it was announced that Britain's Ambassadors and Ministers would come here for consultation.

Reynaud, who returned to Paris after the meeting of the War Council, already has called his Ambassador to Rome, Andre Francois-Poncet, home for a consultation.

Informed sources said the Allied diplomatic move provides ample evidence that a counter-blow is being prepared to meet any German and Russian economic move in the Balkans. Beyond this primary objective, these sources said, lies the Allied determination to seek neutral help in preparing a new world after the war.

Card Of Thanks

The family of the late Mrs. W. C. Howard wish to extend their sincere thanks to a host of the many acts of kindness and expressions of sympathy shown them in their recent sad bereavement.

Local Legion Hears Address On Naval Reserves

The regular monthly meeting of the Charlottetown Branch of the Canadian Legion British Empire Service League, was held last evening with a good attendance. President Comrade M. W. Lowther occupied the Chair. One new member was admitted and three initiated. Lieutenant Commander J. J. Conroy was the guest speaker, and gave a most interesting and instructive address on the growth and development of the Naval Reserves. Comrade MacNutt, Chairman of the recent Legion Campaign, stated that over eight thousand dollars had been raised on the island, which was over one hundred per cent more than had been allotted to the Island and that this sum had been raised on an expenditure of $15,467, or less than two per cent of the amount raised, which was most satisfactory. Provincial President R. C. Chandler announced that Comrade Albert Dennis had been appointed part time supervisor of entertainment of the troops, and had already entered upon his duties. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

In those days the West was 'wild'! We were bringing in a load of furs and we had made camp when up pops a Redskin. I don't know where he came from nor why—but my scalp itched. 'Pipe of peace' I said and shoved over my tobacco. He filled up and sat there saying 'Oom! Oom!' It was Old Chum I gave him. I said then, and I say now, 'Always and everywhere, there is no other tobacco just like Old Chum! I like it and it likes me. They chose the right name when they called it Old Chum.'
