MALPEQUE

In the passing of Mrs. Lewis Henry, this community loses an old and respected resident. Mrs. Henry was born in Baltic eighty-one years ago, and it is over fifty years since she came to Malpeque as a bride. She was a consistent member of Prince of Wales Church, and was interested in every branch of its work, especially in Missions, to which she devoted much of her time and contributed very largely. Her husband predeceased her about fifteen years ago, but she is survived by two daughters, namely: Mrs. Keir Ramsay, Baltic, and Miss Ethel, New on Centre, Mass., and one son, Mr. Archibald Henry on the homestead, also three sisters, Mrs. Gaudin, Victoria, B.C., Mrs. Evans, Vancouver, and Mrs. George MacLeod, Burlington, and four brothers, Messrs. John and John-son Bernard, Baltic; Mr. Robert Bernard, California and Mr. Lemuel Bernard, St. Eleanor's. The funeral service was held on Saturday at noon and was very largely attended. Her pastor, Rev. Mr. Williams of Kensington, officiating. The pall bearers were as follows: Messrs. Ansel Bernard, Benj. Burns, George Crozier, James MacLeod, Kenneth MacLeod, Bruce Bernard.

Rev. D. M. Grant, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Lockerby and Mr. Howard Ramsay returned home Friday evening after being in attendance at the Conference in Sackville.

Rev. D. M. Grant, Messrs. J. K. MacGougan and Archibald Woodside, motored to Summerside on Wednesday, and were in attendance at the meeting of Presbytery which was held in Trinity United Church.

Col. Lindbergh Invited To C. N. E.

(Special to the Guardian) TORONTO, Ont., June 18.—Col. Chas. A. Lindbergh has been asked to attend the Canadian National Exhibition, in a letter sent today by the directors, which will be presented to him at St. Louis.

In their invitation the directors state that it is expected that His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales will open the exhibition on August 27th. After extending congratulations the letter says: "Our board is prepared to arrange a suitable reception on receipt of your acceptance of their invitation. Our Canadian people are very anxious to have the opportunity of honoring you, as you are, no doubt aware, and the Canadian National Exhibition is, without doubt, the logical place for your reception in Canada."

ROUSING RECEPTION FOR CONSERVATIVE CANDIDATES AT WHEATLEY RIVER

A very lively meeting took place at Wheatley River, Friday evening, which at times took on a rather noisy aspect and threatened to become unmanageable. Especially unfortunate in his reception, was Mr. B. W. LePage, the former representative of the district whose remarks were continually interrupted by heckling and shouts of disapproval. Mr. McPhee who was the first speaker received a better hearing, on the other hand the Conservative candidates received a very friendly reception.

There was a very large attendance of ladies which shows that they are taking a keen interest in the great questions of the day. Friday night's meeting can be taken as any indication of what the electors will do on the 25th, then the Conservative candidates need have no fear of the result. Mr. Angus McPhee was the first speaker. He first attempted to justify the acts of the Bell Government re the increased tax on and claimed that the Conservatives did not lower them. He next made a very feeble attempt to uphold the Prohibition law, but did not receive much sympathy from the audience. He regretted very much that the matter had been taken into the hands of the clergy.

Hon. L. L. Jenkins the next speaker, was received with loud applause. He first referred to the fully implemented platform of Premier Stewart and compared it with that of Premier Bell which had not been carried out in any aspect. He next referred to the Poll Tax. "We repealed that tax," said Mr. Jenkins "and did not replace it by the Gasoline Tax which is put on solely for the upkeep of the roads and does not go into ordinary revenue." Mr. Jenkins also pointed out the argument of Mr. McPhee that Premier Stewart had nothing to do with getting the $125,000 and quoted Sir Andrew Rae Duncan who said that Premier Stewart presented the best brief of any of the Maritime Premiers. Mr. Bell gave as his reason for getting no increase "in our subsidy that he got no assistance from the legal minds about him. Mr. Saunders was one of these, so what could you expect if he ever became premier? Dealing with temperance he showed that the enforcement of the Prohibition Law is in the hands of the Commission and the government has nothing to do with it whatever. He pointed out how the bootlegger got his start under the regime of Mr. Bell—who allowed four wholesale liquor houses to operate in Charlottetown. "You trusted Premier Stewart before," said Mr. Jenkins "trust him again, and you can rest assured that he will give you a better Temperance law than you have had for years. In closing he made an earnest appeal to the people to consider this question and on the 25th vote for Mr. Buntain and himself, (loud applause.)

Mr. B. W. LePage was the next speaker. He criticized the Government for not lowering the seasonal indemnity to $200, but he did not say that he would reduce it. He also criticized the Government for not lowering the Land Tax more, but again he did not say that he would reduce it. Dealing with the temperance question he took exception to the Guardian newspaper changing its attitude as regards Prohibition. He also took exception to opening a vendor shop in Charlottetown. "If you don't want it in the country," said Mr. LePage "why do you want it in Charlottetown." A voice—"There's a rum shop at every corner in Charlottetown now." Mr. LePage spoke for a considerable length of time upon this question, but did not propose any new arguments and did not receive much sympathy from the audience. Mr. J. H. Buntain was given a splendid ovation as he rose to speak. He first expressed his pleasure at meeting the people of Wheatley River and vicinity and took occasion to thank them for their handsome support at the last election. He compared the broken promises of the Bell Government with the fully implemented platform of Premier Stewart and he challenged the Liberal candidates to stand upon this platform and say that they had implemented their promises. (No answer.) He referred to the reduction in the Land Tax; the cut in the registration of cars and the abolition of the Poll tax. Dealing with the great question of temperance he took issue with Mr. LePage that the people of Ontario, British Columbia, Quebec and the Prairie Provinces were regenerated to be bought up by the brewers and distillers. Mr. LePage had made the statement that 100 percent of the clergymen were behind Prohibition. "I think," said Mr. Buntain, "that we have as many clergymen as they have but we go not as them to turn their churches into political halls to fight our battles for us." He read from the Temperance Bulletin to show that even the members of the Alliance are not behind the present Prohibition law. They intend to amend it. What are their amendments? Cheaper liquor, cheaper scripts and Government control in two years. He also read from the blue books of 1923 a statement of Mr. John Anderson's that he did not audit the books of the Prohibition Commission and understood he has never audited them since the days of Premier Arsenault. He also took issue with Mr. McPhee who complained that the matter was taken into politics and should have been presented as a separate issue. "We have given you a plebiscite," said Mr. Buntain, "but in this plebiscite we have taken our political life in our hands and are willing to go down to defeat if you do not approve of our policy." He then quoted Canon Cody, Sir Allan Aylesworth, Sir Wm. Ayrld to show that Government Control has a decided advantage over Prohibition in controlling the sale of liquor. In conclusion he made a stirring appeal to the people to consider this question carefully and on the 25th, vote for Mr. Jenkins and himself in the interests of good government. (Thunderous applause.) Mr. Norman Ling presided very impartially and capably and at the close of the meeting was tendered a vote of thanks.

Was Christ A Criminal? If wine and other intoxicating liquors are so vile as prohibitionists maintain, Jesus Christ should be branded a criminal, instead of one of the three members of the blessed Trinity which Christians worship. God gave mankind the material and the wherewithal to make intoxicating liquors, yet, according to the theories of Rev. Dr. Grant, He erred so badly that humans must, if necessary, move heaven and earth in order that alcohol be banished.

GOVERNMENT SALE OF LIQUOR COMPARED WITH PROHIBITION

(By R. McL. Enman)

In his article in the Patriot of June 14, under the heading, "Government Sale of Liquor Compared with Prohibition," Rev. Dr. H. R. Grant indulges in practically the same line of argument as already has been answered effectively. One of his arguments, however, has not been fully dealt with, from the opposite point of view. That is his usual line of endeavoring to show that alcohol is, in itself, absolutely poisonous. Far be it from the desire of this writer to advocate the use of alcohol. Likewise, he would not feel justified in advocating its abatement. Does not the scripture say something to this effect: "What God hath cleansed, call not thou common or unclean." When the wedding in Cana of Galilee the mother of Jesus saw there was no wine, Jesus Himself saved the crisis by turning water into that essential, for the occasion.

God gave mankind the material and the wherewithal to make intoxicating liquors, yet, according to the theories of Rev. Dr. Grant, He erred so badly that humans must, if necessary, move heaven and earth in order that alcohol be banished.

Moderate Drinkers Oultive Abstinners True, many medical doctors speak kindly of prohibition, as opposed to excessive drinking. There are some, however, who speak their minds on the question without fear of equivocation.

Dr. Rymond Pearl, head of the Institute of Biological Research of Johns Hopkins University, Philadelphia, which is regarded as the greatest medical school in the United States, in his book issued recently on "Alcohol and Longevity" says: "In a fairly large and homogeneous sample of the working class of Baltimore, the moderate drinking of alcoholic beverages was the most common habit. On the contrary, moderate steady drinkers showed somewhat lower rates of mortality than did abstainers."

Dr. Pearl's book gave the facts of many years of scientific research. Another paragraph of his book, referring to his investigation into conditions of the working people of Baltimore, says: "The results of this investigation seem to indicate with great clearness that any biological, harmfulness chargeable against alcohol in this group of over 5,000 people resulted solely from its abuse and not from its reasonable and proper use."

As long ago as 1914 Dr. Pearl began the study of the real effects of alcohol upon fowls. He put his experimental chickens in closed metal tanks, the air of which was saturated with alcoholic vapor. For one hour each day they breathed this alcoholized air. Similar chickens, fed only plain food and water, were kept for comparison. The results of these experiments, continuing over several years, led Dr. Pearl to pursue the subject further.

"Everyone said that alcohol shortened human life," Dr. Pearl writes in the preface of his new book. "But the alcoholized fowls lived longer than those which got nothing but plain food and water."

Carefully studied tables show, as a result of Dr. Pearl's studies, that the average of 50 a moderate drinker has a life expectancy of 3.32 years more than does the total abstainer, while compared with the heavy drinker of the same age the moderate has a life expectancy of 8.13 years more.

Moderate Use is Beneficial The Lancet, of London, England, is regarded as the most authoritative medical organ in the English speaking world. The following statement is from that journal's columns of March 30, 1907: "We have received the following document for publication in the Lancet. As an expression of scientific opinion it deserves to be considered carefully by medical practitioners. The signatories are well known members of the profession, and the importance of the questions involved, alike from the medical and social point of view, can hardly be over-estimated."

"In view of the statements frequently made as to present medical opinion regarding alcohol and alcoholic beverages, we, the undersigned, think it desirable to issue the following short statement on the subject—a statement which we believe represents the opinions of the leading clinical teachers as well as of the great majority of medical practitioners: "Recognizing that, in prescribing alcohol, the requirements of the individual must be the governing rule, we are convinced of the correctness of the opinion so long and so generally held, that in disease alcohol is a rapid and trustworthy restorative. In many cases it may be truly described as life preserving, owing to its power to sustain cardiac and nervous energy."

It is a deplorable situation, when the very men and women who are supposed to be the princes of temperance are, for the most part, of such decidedly intemperate views as such professional prohibitionists as Rev. Dr. H. R. Grant of Nova Scotia. Moderation is Great Need What the world needs today is men who will steer a middle course in such large issues as temperance. An extreme prohibitionist is just as much a detriment to the temperance cause as is the alcoholic addict. The experiment of seven Canadian provinces has been that government control is a much greater promoter of temperance than prohibition. Let Prince Edward Islanders throw intemperance and intemperance dry overboard and try government control as an antidote for a while. Campers—Take Minnard's with you.

Greatest People Use Alcohol. If alcohol is as destructive to the human system as professional prohibitionists maintain, one would think that through successive generations of continuous use of whiskey, such as is the case in Scotland, that that proud race would by now be either extinct or would have degraded to a pitiable depth. Yet the very opposite is the case. Scotland still has the most fervently religious people in the world. Educationally, Scotland is now, and for generations past has been on a footing as any other nation, and far in advance of most countries. For generations the English people have been habitual beer drinkers. Yet 40,000,000 beer-drinking Englishmen rule 300,000,000 abstinent Hindus. Furthermore, the British flag flies over a third of the earth's surface, making up the greatest Empire that ever existed. Who dares say that the average Englishman's health is below that of a Hindu or any other abstainer?

Alcohol Has Created Genius Were the Christian peoples of a higher religious and moral standard centuries ago, before prohibition was even suggested, than they are today? While this writer is opposed to an excessive use of alcoholic beverages, yet there are cases on record where men who have been geniuses while under the influence of liquor, were of just average ability when sober. Take, for instance, Scotland's immortal bard, Robert Burns, who said, in his poem on "Scotch Drink" "Let other poets raise a fracas 'Bout vines, and wines, and drunk on Bacchus, And rabbit names and stories wrack us, And grate our lug, I sing the Juice Scotch beare can mak' us, In glass or jug. 'O thou, my muse, guid auld Scotch drink, Whether through wimplin' worms thou link, Or, richly brown, ream o'er the brink, In floribus faem, Inspire me, till I lisp and wink, To sing thy name! Oh Whisky, soul o' plays and pranks Accept a bardies gratefu' thanks! When wanting thee, what tuneless cranks, Arc my poor verses!" Thanked God For Wine Another of Scotland's literary geniuses, Sir Walter Scott, said: "The juice of the grape is given to him that will use it wisely, as the wine cheers the heart of man after toil, refreshes him in sickness and comforts him in sorrow. He who so enjoyeth it may thank God for his wine-cup as for his daily bread; and he who abuseth the gift of Heaven is not a greater fool in his intoxication than thou in thine abstinence."

Gladstone Liked Wine And Beer William Ewart Gladstone, one of the greatest statesmen that England ever produced, said: "How can I, who drink good wine and bitter beer every day of my life, be a temperate man, and BELIEF OF CIVILIZED MANKIND, among friends, coolly stand up and
