VISIT TO QUEBEC

A Brief Description of the Sentinel City.

ITS GREAT BEAUTY

Dwelt Upon, With a Short Historical Sketch—Illustrations Given.

Here sailed Jacques Cartier bold, and great Champlain, Here fell two heroes; one in victory Scarce realized; his rival in defeat Scarce known. Peace from the glorious graves has schooled

The ancient discord, till our minstrelsy Sings growth united in war's vacant seat!

Before leaving Charlottetown I promised to say something about my visit to Montreal. Having spent Sunday in the city of Quebec, the capital of the Province of Quebec, I have decided to write you something about its history and a few of its features. By reference to your map you will find that the city is situated at the junction of the St. Charles with the St. Lawrence in lat. 46.48 N., long. 71.12 W. The details above enumerated will doubtless be weariness itself to your readers. But passing on, Quebec is noted for its picturesque situation, and is as your readers are aware the most strongly fortified city on the western continent.

The site was visited by Cartier in 1535. The city was founded by the French under Champlain in 1608; taken by the British in 1629 and restored in 1632; unsuccessfully attacked by the British in 1690; besieged by the British under Wolfe in 1759 and taken after the battle of Quebec in Sept., 1759; ceded to Great Britain in 1763; and unsuccessfully attacked by the Americans under Montgomery in 1775. He perished before its walls and his troops were dispersed. The battle of Quebec was a victory on the Plains of Abraham, near Quebec, Sept. 13th, 1759 gained by the British under Wolfe over the French under Montcalm.

Possibly there is not another spot in America richer in historic treasure or more lavishly endowed by nature in the beauty, grandeur and splendor of its surroundings, than the quaint old walled city of Quebec, which, guarding the portals of the great inland waters of the continent, has not inaptly been termed the "Sentinel City of the Lawrence."

It is of Quebec that Henry Ward Beecher said: "Here is a small bit of medieval Europe perched upon a rock, and dried for keeping—a curiosity that has not its equal in its kind on this side of the ocean." Strolling in Lower Town one might fancy himself in Amiens or Dieppe, and along the Grand Allée, running right across the Plains of Abraham, you might be in Brussels or Paris. Another writer has said, "The majestic appearance of Cape Diamond and the fortifications, the cupola and minarets blazing and sparkling in the sun, the noble basin like a sheet of purest silver, in which might ride with safety the navies of the world, the graceful wanderings of the river St. Charles the numerous villages spires on either sides of the St. Lawrence." The atmosphere on the heights is so benign that Chaucer might have had it in prophetic vision when he wrote:

"The ayre of that place so attempre was, That never was grievance of hot nor cold."

Quebec is such a convenient resting place between Montreal and the several points of interest on the Lower St. Lawrence, and is of itself so interesting and so unlike other cities that very few making the tour of the St. Lawrence pass its memorable walls without spending a few days within them. The mere sight of the city recalls to memory the long succession of historical events in which many nations were deeply interested. "The French, the English the American, and the aboriginal Indians have all played their parts in the stirring drama whose scenes were laid around the fortress crowned rock; and the final struggle for Canada between the French and English which closed on the Heights of Abraham saw the end of France in the Northern half of the Continent and commenced the regime which was inevitably destined to result in the self-governing liberty which Canada now enjoys."

The pride and glory of Quebec is Dufferin Terrace, an unrivalled promenade and public rendezvous. From it or better, from any of the windows in the Chateau Frontenac which stands at its eastern limit and at the base of the Citadel a view, unsurpassed for beauty and grandeur, bursts upon the beholders. The broad promenade is fully a quarter of a mile long and erected on it are five handsome kiosks to which the names of Plessis, Frontenac, Lorne and Louise, Dufferin and Victoria have been given, besides another for the use of bands of music which at times are those belonging to British and French men-of-war visiting the port. Elevated 200 feet above the St. Lawrence which here contracts its high banks until but a mile separates them, it is a point of vantage from which to drink in the feast of scenic splendor which is spread out before one.

The Citadel occupies the most commanding position in Quebec overlooking the St. Lawrence and the country round and having a clear range for its guns in every direction. It stands 303 feet above the river and at one time was a formidable position of defence so much so that Quebec has sometimes been called the Gibraltar of America. Though still a fortress its present chief use is as a barrack, and in it are kept immense military stores. Access is gained to the trenches by the Chain gate and to Citadel by the Dalhousie, named, after a former Governor.

The Governor's Garden is a pretty little retreat and in it is a dual-faced stone column to Wolf and Montcalm, erected in 1827 and 1828 in joint honor of the illustrious generals to whom in the words of the inscription, "Valor gave a common death, history a common fame and posterity a common monument."

The Plains of Abraham is one of the chief points of interest. Here was the battlefield where Wolfe fell and Montcalm fought his last fight. The plain is the tableland on the crest of the height on the north bank of the St. Lawrence River, which was thought to be too precipitous for an enemy to climb. The heights were, however, quietly and successfully scaled, and on 13th September, 1759, the memorable battle was fought there which decided the fate of Canada. A tall marble shaft now stands to mark the spot where Wolfe fell, mortally wounded and bears the inscription: "Here died Wolfe victorious." His illustrious rival, Montcalm, also wounded, retreated within the walls to die there. On the plains where some of the heaviest fighting occurred in the famous battle, are three Martello towers, dating from 1805, which, while formidably built, were weakly constructed towards the city, so that in case of capture, they might easily be destroyed.

The field of the battle is a short and pleasant walk or drive from the hotel, a little beyond the St. Louis gate, on the road to Spencerwood, the official residence of the Lieut.-Governor of the province of Quebec, and in olden days the home of the Governors-General of Canada. A short distance off, on the escarpment overhanging the St. Lawrence, is the path by which the British troops scaled the cliffs on the night before the battle, and at the foot of the rocks is Wolfe's Cove two miles above which is Sillery, a place of historical interest, where Maitsonneuve spent his first winter in Canada, and the scene of the horrible massacre of Christian Hurons and their missionaries by savage Iroquois in 1635.

A pleasant trip down the River and Gulf of St. Lawrence is afforded the visitor to Quebec. Passing Cape Tourmente and Grosse Isle, the quarantine station for Quebec and indeed for the entire St. Lawrence trade, many islands of remarkable scenic beauty dot the river. Murray Bay, Riviere du Loup, Cacouna and Tadoussac, at the mouth of the Saguenay, are fashionable watering resorts, with good hotel accommodation and excellent bathing facilities. The trip can be extended down the Gulf to Prince Edward Island which is known as the Garden of the Gulf. CICERONE.

Great Victory.

BARNABY RIVER, N. B. Mar.—Few cases of illness and recovery have excited the interest in this community, as has the kidney trouble of Mr. Cornelius Crotlie.

Mr. Crotlie's treatment by the doctors at home and in the hospital, and the fact that they absolutely gave him up as a case beyond all hope, is well known. His subsequent restoration by the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills reads like a miracle.

"For five years I have suffered off and on with kidney trouble. Last fall I had an attack, for which the doctors had little hope of my recovery. I was obliged to go to the hospital for treatment, but it did me no good, so I came home given up by the doctors. A friend suggested Dodd's Kidney Pills. From the first box I improved. Now I am at my work every day."
