Mothers Advise Their Daughters to Rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Keep Them in Health

A Mother's Advice Restores Mrs. Hall to Health

Lindsay, Ontario.—"I had very poor blood and was bothered with pains in my side and back. I took kidney medicine for a while without success. I got pale, weak and nervous. My mother, who has used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a number of years with very good results, advised me to take it and I did. It did me worlds of good. I have gained twenty pounds and have not felt so well for a long time. You may use this letter as a testimonial to help others if you think it worth it."—Mrs. MARY E. HALL, R. R. 5, Lindsay, Ontario.

A Sickly Child

Mahoningtown, Pa.—"I would like to say a few words about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. About a year ago I thought it would be necessary for me to take my daughter out of school. She was losing weight, was nervous, and when she would come home from school she would drop into a chair and cry, and say, 'Mamma, I don't believe I can go to school another day.'"—I gave her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now she is a healthy, happy, hearty, strong girl and weighs 130 pounds. She has no difficulty in doing her gym work, and she works at home every night and morning, too. I am a mother who can truly praise your medicine, and if it will be of any benefit you may use this letter as a reference."—Mrs. GEORGE E. WHITCRE, 621 W. Madison Avenue, Mahoningtown, Pa.

Every girl wants to be healthy and strong, and every mother wants her daughter to do well in school and to enjoy herself at all times. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine for young girls just entering womanhood. Mothers may depend upon it. Remember it is prepared from roots and herbs, contains nothing that can injure, and tends to tone up and strengthen the organs concerned, so that they will work in a healthy and normal manner.

For nearly fifty years it has been used by women of all ages, and these women know its great value. Let it help your daughter and yourself.

I am enclosing herewith a donation to the Members of your Department and please convey to them my appreciation of the efforts they made to save the building and stock. It must have been apparent to anyone who was present on that occasion that had the Department been furnished with smoke masks this great loss of property would have been avoided. I further believe that some member of the Department should have an intelligent knowledge of the construction of all our large public and private buildings so that the Department would be in a position to have ready access to a fire. The citizens must stand behind the Firemen and support them with all necessary appliances for the better protection of our property. Wishing you and all the Members of the Department a happy and prosperous year and believing me to be Sincerely yours, S. A. McDonald.

was, in a very short time they sprouted up and grew strong in the best residential sections of Boston.

We have only stopped the legal manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors, and have started the illicit production and selling, also the unlawful importation. We have started boys getting the boot the same as they have been doing for nearly fifty years on P. E. I., and the greatest curse of all, we have started nearly three million people in the use of powerful dope and drugs that will drag them down low into the gutter of sin and shame, and if we keep going at the present rate in that direction, we will in twenty years hence be one of the weakest nations on earth, mentally, morally and physically.

I find that for the year ending December 31st, 1922 there were 107 deaths in our hospitals as a result of drinking moonshine and other horrible mixtures. A person now showing any sign of intoxication is rushed to a hospital for observation and treatment. This is done in order to be on the safe side and save life, and of course when they are sent to a hospital there is no police record for arrest. Therefore statistics for drunkenness at this time is very misleading, especially in the case of temperance cranks, who when prohibition went into effect started selling material and utensils for the manufacture of moonshine and home brew, that would easily fall into the hands of young boys and girls.

Personally I do not believe in the old time bar room as it was conducted in the old days. The course of the saloon was the treating habit among poorly paid workmen I could never see the sense of a group of workmen lined up at a bar setting up the drinks at one dollar a round until they were in many cases become woefully on their underpinning and wiggly in their understanding.

I don't pretend to be anything but a human being. I don't even class myself as a successful Islander abroad, and I will admit I don't know a verb from an adjective, but I will attempt to say with the approval of Mr. Islander and Mr. Prohibitionist, that the best way to handle the liquor question is by legal sale and proper regulation, and the best way to bring about true temperance is by education and not by legislation.

The man who sold liquor has always been put in the category of crooks and criminals. Let us see about that. I think he was just as much on the level as the grocer who gave you three shreds of tea out of the one chest, or the merchant who sold you goods to put on little Anne's feet and made the claim they were genuine leather when he knew the inner soles were a cheap grade of paper. And again, was he not just as upright and more so than the farmer who would put the rotten apples in the bottom of the barrel and the good ones on top? And was he not more honest and upright than the mother who would advise her daughter to marry a man who she did not care for, simply because he had a few thousand dollars done up in a stocking with a wire fastening?

I find that every State that ever tried prohibition in the past came back stronger than ever against it, and went back to the legal sale of liquor. The State of Maine was the only exception. She kept prohibition in force since 1844, but she did not bring about any degree of temperance. She has always had a lot of miserable little drunkards, the bootlegger and prohibition became pals and partners.

We have those miserable den and dives now throughout the entire country, and they will thrive and flourish as long as prohibition remains on our statute books. Our boys and young men will be led into those horrible places that are the breeding places of the underworld for drug using, the lowest kinds of vices, the most wicked kinds of crime and a total disregard for our laws and everything that pertains to good living and respect for our Government.

I am, Sir, etc., JOHN D. MCINTYRE, Boston, Mass., Jan. 5-23.

The "Perjury" Ghost

After a period of hibernating, or hiding, "Temperance" is again in the limelight. This time his agony of suspense being over the "alarming increase of perjury" in this province, and its relation to ANTI prohibition. His past experience, with its inglorious failure, in proposing to wipe out the illicit still by permitting an incoming flood of foreign liquors, has at least taught him to be cautious, and as an expedient he carefully inserts the words: "If any." He is more circumspect than of yore and hesitates following his old custom of charging prohibition with inspiring this offense. Before touching this feature, as he is fond of asking questions, I would ask him: What has this to do with the question of the Plebiscite, and the import or export of liquors?

I do not need to go to the County Court Judges or to any other source for information as to perjury. In some form or another it is an attendant in almost all cases of law enforcement, civil or criminal. In how many cases tried in any of our courts, regardless of the size of the court or the character of the case, do we find a harmony of testimony? In very many cases there is an open conflict, each side telling a directly opposite story. Is this perjury, and if so would our "red herring" friend propose to abolish every system of justice? "Temperance," for instance, or his wife—if he has one—should be come too hotly embroiled in some of his select arguments over his back yard fence, with a neighbor or neighbor's wife, and the case of "abusive language" being aired in the magistrate's court, WOULD BOTH SIDES TELL THE SAME STORY? And if not, wouldn't it be wise to close down the courts and give free scope to those back fence brawls, rather than that there be opportunity for either of these parties to relate an untruth? The violators of law, and the unprincipled in civil life, are not in the aggregate over mindful, either of their word or their oath, and person who will kill and steal and willfully swear falsely to escape the penalty, and in many cases there are those who would court perjury for even a trifling gain. The very fact of the presence of such is in itself the proof of an existence of crime. Would "Temperance" then abolish every administration of law and give free scope to the lawless brigade to ply their arts of freebooting brigandage up on the law-abiding communities, just to save the spectacle of a criminal swearing falsely to escape a justly earned penalty?

As to the extent of perjury in prohibition cases I do not claim supreme knowledge. As a matter of logic it would appear that the lower the moral status of the criminal, the greater the number of offences would be. "Temperance" seems to be a better authority than the writer on this subject; and he would have us believe it gives him more cause for lament than even the bile outlook after the voting on the 22nd instant. But I am not of that class who would return to the original base of savagery, and to abolish all laws and every legal restraint for the ridiculous reason that the pillagers of our property and destroyers of our homes will seek to evade justice by perjury in the courts. For in every case, from a five cent dispute to that of life or death, or involving millions of money, false swearing is liable to occur.

I am, Sir, etc., PROHIBITIONIST.

Mr. McIntyre's Volte-face

Sir,—Poor Mr. McIntyre is back again—but so different, one would hardly recognize his last epistle but for its inconsistencies and egotism. Evidently the only way Mr. McIntyre can attract attention is by defaming the land of his birth, but he will stop at nothing in order to get his name in print. In his first letter he could not find a single virtue worth commending in the whole province. He has since turned "about face," and now literally assures us that it will be impossible to keep him from spending next summer in this province, and goes into poetic raptures over the natural beauty and productivity of "The Garden of the Gulf."

He invites a prominent doctor and clergyman to write him jointly. Would he not be well advised Sir, to consult an alienist nearer home? Islanders are naturally proud of the success of the numerous natives of this land at home and abroad, are particularly proud of those, like Sir Andrew McPhail, who comes to the province annually to carry out experiments in farming in a large scale employing much help and otherwise endeavoring to assist Island farmers to meet and overcome their problems.

Contrast this with Mr. McIntyre who says "My Private Limousine with Ivered chauffeur will take me to P. E. I." Note the egotism of it all. His admitted lack of knowledge of P. E. I. reminds one of a boast made by an illiterate writer and speaker, who said that he "thanked Providence that his mouth was opened despite the fact that he lacked education"—a similar incident occurred in Balnam's time" was the quick retort

Burial Service Was Transmitted By Radio To Vessel
TORONTO, Jan. 9.—A New York special says:—"We commit this body to the deep."
While the crew of the storm-tossed little freighter Hatteras stood with bared heads about the body of their dead captain, the steamship President Adams, 240 miles away, transmitted by radio the solemn words of the Episcopalian burial service.

There seems to be little likelihood, the dispatches say, that the question of the Caliphate will be satisfactorily settled between the Turks and the independent Moslem territories without drastic concessions by both parties which so far they appear to be unwilling to make.
Peggy—Clare has a sweetheart who gives her free tickets to every show.
Betty—Does he want to marry her?
Peggy—No; it's just a passing fancy.—Judge.
