Island Ladies Received by Pope

The following are extracts from a letter received from Mrs. Frederick J. Nash, and dated Rome March 18th:

I easily found Reverend Father Monaghan, whose address His Lordship Bishop O'Leary so kindly gave me. After conversing a while, he asked me if there was anything he could do. I immediately informed him above all things I would like to see the Pope —Pius XI. Father Monaghan said he would inquire if there was to be an audience this week, and later he called me up at the hotel to inform me that there was to be an audience at noon the next day, and that he would be delighted to take Mrs. MacKay and myself with him. He also inquired if we had black dresses, long sleeves, high neck, and a scarf. Fortunately we had them, so he said he would meet us in front of Saint Peters at 11.30 a. m. It was needless to say that we were there on time.

We entered with others. We walked up four flights of beautiful white marble stairs. The celebrated Swiss guard was on duty, as well as others of whom I did not learn. When we reached the reception floor we entered an antiroom and put on our scarves over our heads. There were other people there. Then following Father Monaghan we were ushered through four other rooms, all containing quite a number of people until we entered a room into which the Pope would come first. Naturally we were somewhat nervous for the usher placed Father Monaghan next to the door, on the right hand side, so that we would be the first to meet His Holiness. We stood a while and talked while looking at the wonderful tapestry on the walls, and the magnificently painted ceiling. Officials were moving about to see that all was right. A number of church dignitaries were also present.

At last the Pope's guard, (they are composed of the best families in Europe I heard) came to attention, and then everyone knelt down. The Pope entered attended by his secretary and some Cardinals. He held out his hand to Father Monaghan which he took and kissed the ring, then to Mrs. MacKay, and then to me. In turn the Pope then circled the four sides of the room, meeting each one present. When he finished he blessed the people who were kneeling, and it was a most impressive simple ceremony. It would deeply impress anyone either Catholic or Protestant.

The Pope was dressed entirely in white. He is a very fine looking man, well on to seventy, but does not look a day over sixty. His face impressed me very much indeed—kind and wise looking, and you could see a look of serenity and resignation which was very striking.

After the audience was over, we assumed our outer garments There was no confusion, although the rooms were filled with people.

Father Monaghan also showed us through Saint Peters, explaining the different places, of exceptional interest, historic and otherwise, etc., to us. The wonderful beauty of the sculptures and mosaics in it are beyond description. I even climbed to the top of the building both by elevator and stairs, some 500 feet or more. From the top you see the inside as well as all Rome from the outside. Certainly this was the most wonderful day of my life. We have been directed as to which cathedral to go on Sunday where the music will be the best.

Father Monaghan could not believe at first there was anyone from Prince Edward Island, as few come so far.

I have been to the Coliseum, Pantheon, the Forum, the Gardens and picture galleries, and tomorrow we are going to motor to the catacombs, which I am determined to explore; also the Appan Way

(Father Monaghan referred to is a son of Mr. and Mrs. James Monaghan, Weymouth Street, Charlottetown.)

Enjoyable Program Broadcast by Station C. F. C. Y.

A most enjoyable programme was broadcast by CFCY last evening and judging by the phone response locally was one of the most appreciated yet to be put on the air from this station.

Mr. Willard McDonald of St. John, N. B., gave some beautiful interpretations on the violin of such well known and liked selections as "The Volga Boat Song," "Berceuse de Jocelyn" and "Elegie" and Mrs. McDonald (nee Mary Moore) by special request sang two groups of soprano solos including "At Dawning" by Cadman and "Moonlight and Roses" by Lenoire.

It is a great privilege for our people to hear such accomplished musicians as these. It is hoped that they will consent to give a programme later from CFCY. Mr. McDonald has been requested to play at CNRA, Moncton in the near future.

Tonight's Program

Tonight CFCY presents a programme of vocal and piano selections by Miss Constance Whear, soprano and Mr. Roy Whitehead Basso of Charlottetown. Pianist, Mrs. Keith Rogers.

The program is as follows:

1—The World is Waiting for the Sunrise ..... (Seitz)
Miss Whear
2—The Bells of the Sea (Solomon)
Mr. Whitehead
3—My Laddie ..... (Thayer)
Miss Whear
4—The Tinkers Song .... (Slater)
Mr. Whitehead
5—The Valley of Laughter) ..... (Sanderson
Miss Whear
6—Shipmates O' Mine (Sanderson)
Mr. Whitehead
7—Ah! Tho the Silver Moon Were Mine ..... (Lohr)
Miss Whear
8—The Harp that Once Thru Tara's Halls,
Old Irish Air (Mr. Whitehead)
9—The Spanish Cavalier ..... Hendrickson
Miss Whear
10—Piano selections Mrs. Keith Rogers.

Miss Whear is singing again in response to numerous requests from Radio listeners throughout P. E. I. and Nova Scotia who enjoyed her initial program some weeks ago.

The Agricultural address this evening will be given by Mr. J. A. Clark Superintendent of the Dominion Experimental Farm, Charlottetown, who will take as his subject, "the Weather and Our 1926 Crops."

H. P. KENNEDY

Notable Cast in "Smouldering Fires" at Prince Edward

Something entirely new in the conception of the well known "Eternal Triangle" was seen on the screen in the Prince Edward Theatre yesterday, when "Smouldering Fires," Universal-Jewel-Clarence Brown production was given its initital showing. For, fundamentally, "Smouldering Fires," is just that sort of a story, but it is altogether different int treatmen from the majority of such situations as they are portrayed on stage or screen.

Pauline Frederick and Laura La Plante are co-starred in the picture and they do some of the best work they ever have done, but it is not a two-person picture by any means and Universal had sufficient confidence in the ability of the stars to surround them with a fine cast, knowing that such a cast would add quality to the picture and not in the least detract from the work of those in the leading roles,

Malcolm McGregor plays the part of the youthful husband of the middle-aged woman, portrayed by Miss Frederick, these two and Miss La Plante constitute the base and sides of the triangle, Tully Marshall, as the trusted clerk, adds both humor and pathos to the story, and the straight comedy roles are well cared for by Wanda Hawley, Helen Lynch and George Cooper. Such widely-known players are Bert Roach, Billy Gould, Rolfe Sedan Jack McDonald, William Orlomond, Robert Mack and Frank Newberg are in the cast.

Miss Frederick has the part of a woman who has reached middle age without having given a thought to anything except the business of the factory which she had managed ever since the death of her father. She dominates those who work for her, and the only romance she knows of is the romance of business competition, and her only emotions have been those of elation at successful business deals and anger at the limitations she finds in those who work for her.

Marries Man Her Junior

Then she falls in love with a youthful employee and they are married. But not until this new and to her strange experience has resulted in her turning totally feminine, luxuriating in those things most women crave and which her fortune enables her to provide lavishly.

Her happiness is short lived, however, for she discovers that her young sister and her husband are in love with each other. The situation thus developed gives opportunity for some fine emotional acting on the part of both the stars, and the older woman reverting to the business machine she had been arrives at a solution of the problem.

The picture was given a lavish production, the action taking place in part, in the work room of a real factory. A sea voyage (real) and a trip to Yosemite National Park afford some fine scenic effects.

Weeks. He is at the home of his sister, Mrs. John Campbell at Elmsdale, where at the request of a large number of western people he went last Saturday morning to do some fiddling. He will leave for Boston Friday morning to take part in the contest on Saturday night.

Although Judge Arsenault is somewhat disappointed that Cheverie did not win first position, it is impossible to say on what points the contest was judged. Mr. Cheverie excells in old time fiddling, and his ability to play the old time tunes and to bring in the cuts, slurs and grace notes, which are characteristic of old time fiddling. Without particulars it is impossible to say whether this feature was considered in the contest. From the tone of the telegrams and from the fact that two representatives from this Province are to take part on Saturday night, it is felt that Prince Edward Island will give good account of herself.

Mr. Tinney, who accompanied Mr. Cheverie, is doing some publicity work for Prince Edward Island, and arranging for tourist traffic to this province next sum- Montreal where there is work to be done in the Department of Natural Resources with the C. N. R. and C. P. R.

The fact that Mr Cheverie has been invited to play in the City Auditorium before the Advertising of Boston, is in itself a sufficient evidence that he has distinguished himself; and from a publicity standpoint it will be of great value to this Province.

The International Contest was open to the United States and Canada. Although telegrams have been sent asking for the conditions of the contest, the number of entrants, and other information no replies have yet been received.

It is not known whether last night was to finally settle the matter; but Judge Arsenault is of the opinion that there was only to be one contest, although evidently the winner is accepting a challenge for another "go" on Friday evening.

POVERTY PROBLEMS.

A study of the causes of poverty is one of the finest things a woman's club can do, for "the poor we have always with us", and to help them in the wisest way we should aim to remove the causes which bring them into poverty.

A habit of laziness, illness, mental feebleness, ignorance of a means of earning a livelihood calamity and old age are some causes. All these and other's should be investigated in detail, together with the effect each has on the mind of its victims and know what means may change conditions.

'Most relief of poverty has been left to the communities, and is administered in two ways. "Out-door" relief consists in giving aid to the poor in their own homes, and "in-door" relief is the placing of the poor in homes, either private or poor houses."

Children are no longer kept in poor houses, as the influences there are not wholesome.

Sometimes a poor-house cares for paupers during the winter and releases them in the spring, when they become our vagrants. It has been discovered that vagrants and paupers decrease in those places where work is expected of them. Some cities that have wood or stone yards, where they may earn at least part of their keep, are remarkably free from them. Most poor-houses are on farms and the inmates can earn part of their expense.

It is pitiful when the aged are sent to the poor-house against their will, but it is often necessary. An increase of thrift among us might make us better providers for old age. Some, however, are so unfortunate as to lose their wealth after a life of industry and thrift. Homes for the aged, such as are becoming common, are better places for these.

There are two things which should be considered in giving to the poor: how may they best be relieved, and will this relief make them able better to care for themselves in the future or will it cultivate their independence. Much giving does the harm of making people willing to depend on it. There is a great deal of shrewd grafting on charity by paupers. This has led to the organization of charity under one head, that some families may not draw support from several institutions, while others are overlooked altogether. Under "organized charities" the poverty of the locality is studied and treated systematically and scientifically.

With our desire to help relieve the sufferings of poverty it is best to know the name and address of our organized charities and to get the name of any person needing help and refer him to the charity organization, calling at the home. If we wish further to help that especial case, it is wise to do so through the organization, giving our funds to it to be used for that especial case, as it knows the situation and how much and what is being given or needed. Promiscuous giving is rarely a help permanently, but rather fosters pauperism.
