INQUIRIES AT CHIMNEYS

Bundle's temperament was certainly not inherited from her father, whose prevailing characteristic was a wholly amiable inertia. As Bill Eversleigh had very justly remarked, the grass never did grow under Bundle's feet.

On the morning following her dinner with Bill, Bundle woke full of energy. She had three distinct plans which she meant to put into operation that day, and she realized that she was going to be slightly hampered by the limits of time and space.

Fortunately she did not suffer from the affliction of Gerry Wade, Ronny Devereux and Jimmy Thesiger—that of not being able to get up in the morning. Sir Oswald Cootie himself would have had no fault to find with her on the score of early rising. At half-past 8 Bundle had breakfasted and was on her way to Chimneys in the Hispano.

Her father seemed mildly pleased to see her.

"I never know when you're going to turn up, but this will save me ringing," he said, "which I hate. Colonel Melrose was here yesterday about the inquest."

Those Splitting Sick Headaches!

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Stop Those Health-Robbing Pains

Mrs. Michael Coulis, Killaloe Station, Ont., writes:

"After using 'Fruit-a-tives' the headaches and dizziness from disappeared, and for two years now I have been in the best of health."

Sick headaches that come back on you time after time will yield to "Fruit-a-tives". Mrs. Coulis is only one of thousands who have discovered this. "Fruit-a-tives" is a natural medicine, made of intensified fresh fruit juices combined with the finest medicinal ingredients. It always relieves. Try it today.

"The strain of modern life—as the newspapers say."

"Which reminds me that George Lomax asked me to come over to the Abbey next week. I refused of course."

"Quite right," said Bundle. "We don't want you mixed up in any funny business."

"Is there going to be any funny business?" asked Lord Caterham with a sudden awakening of interest.

"Well—warning letters and all that, you know," said Bundle.

"Perhaps George is going to be assassinated," said Lord Caterham hopefully. "What do you think, Bundle—perhaps I'd better go after all."

"You curb your bloodthirsty instincts and stay quietly at home," said Bundle. "I'm going to talk to Mr. Howell."

Swiss extraction? No. German! That martial carriage, that flat back to the head, and he had come to Chimneys fortnight before Gerry Wade's death.

Bundle arose to her feet. She had done all she could here. Now to get on with things! She went in search of her father.

taken particular notice of him without seeming to do so. Apparently he was the perfect servant, well trained, with an expressionless face. He had, perhaps, a more soldierly bearing than most footmen and there was something a little odd about the shape of the back of his head.

But these details, as Bundle realized, were hardly relevant to the situation. She sat frowning down at the blotting paper in front of her. She had a pencil in her hand and was idly tracing the name Bower over and over again.

Suddenly an idea struck her and she stopped dead, staring at the word. Then she summoned Tredwell once more.

"Tredwell, how is the name Bower spelt?"

"B-A-U-E-R, my lady."

"That's not an English name."

"I believe he is of Swiss extraction, my lady."

"Oh! That's all Tredwell, thank you."

To Be Continued Tomorrow

Wild Plants Of P. E. Island

In concluding this list, the writer gratefully acknowledges his obligation to Prof. Herbert Groh, of Ottawa, Mr. Harold Messervy of Charlottetown, and Mr. R. R. Hurst, plant pathologist at the Experimental Farm in that city, for their valued contributions. By their researches, the number of plants given in MacSwain's list as 414, has been augmented so that 547 species have been noticed in the list just concluded.

Besides other flowering plants which may be added in the future, there are the great groups of the Club-mosses, and Mosses proper; the Liverworts; the Fucaceae or true Sea-weeds; and the Fungi, to which the attention of students of Botany may be directed.

It may be repeated, for the sake of those readers who did not preserve the first of these articles, that the numbers in parentheses refer to the pages of Gray's Manual of Botany, seventh—and latest—edition.

A few of the plants taken from Bain's list are perhaps to be referred to other species than those named; on the other hand, some plants are given by Bain (and corroborated by the writer), which do not find a place in MacSwain's list.

SUMMONED TO THE INQUEST
Colonel Melrose was Chief Constable of the county and an old friend of Lord Caterham.

"You mean the inquest on Ronny Devereux? When is it to be?"

"Tomorrow. Twelve o'clock. Melrose will call for you. Having found the body, you'll have to give evidence, but he said you needn't be at all alarmed."

"Why on earth should I be alarmed?"

"Well, you know," said Lord Caterham apologetically, "Melrose is a bit old-fashioned."

"Twelve o'clock," said Bundle. "Good. I shall be here, if I'm still alive."

"Have you any reason to anticipate not being alive?"

"One never knows," said Bundle.

checking up

Mrs. Howell was the housekeeper that dignified, creaking lady who had struck such terror, to the heart of Lady Cootie. She had no terrors for Bundle, whom, indeed, she always called Miss Bundle, a relic of the days when Bundle had stayed at Chimneys, a long-legged, limping child, before her father had succeeded to the title.

"Now, Howells," said Bundle, "let's have a cup of rich cocoa together, and let me hear all the household news."

She gleaned what she wanted without much difficulty, making mental notes as follows:

"Two new scullery maids—village girls—doesn't seem much there. New third housemaid—head housemaid's niece. That sounds all right. Howells seems to have bullied poor Lady Cootie a good deal. She would."

"I never thought the day would come when I should see Chimneys inhabited by strangers, Miss Bundle."

"Oh! one must go with the times," said Bundle. "You'll be lucky, Howells if you never see it converted into desirable flats with use of superb pleasure grounds."

Mrs. Howell shivered all down her reactionary aristocratic spine.

"I've never seen Sir Oswald had not been liked by his staff."

"Of course, it was Mr. Bateman who saw to everything," continued the housekeeper.

"A very efficient gentleman. A very efficient gentleman indeed, and one who knew the way things ought to be done."

Bundle led the talk to the topic of Gerald Wade's death. Mrs. Howell was only too willing to talk about it, and was full of pitying ejaculations about the poor young gentleman, but Bundle gleaned nothing new. Presently she took leave of Mrs. Howell and came downstairs again, where she promptly rang for Tredwell.

"Tredwell, when did Alfred leave?"

"It would be about a month ago now, my lady."

"Why did he leave?"

"It was by his own wish, my lady. I believe he has gone to London. I was not dissatisfied with him in any way. I think you will find the new footman, John, very satisfactory. He seems to know his work and to be most anxious to give satisfaction."

Was In Bed All Summer

"I have to work in the store and do my own housework, too, and I got nervous and run-down and was in bed nearly all summer. The least noise would make me nervous. I was told to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have taken seven bottles. It has made me stronger and put more color into my face. I am looking after my store and housework and my four children and I am getting along nicely now."
