CHAPTER XXV

Cary sat for a long time staring at the closed door through which Anthony had gone. Like sweet music that flowed through her body, she heard his words that left her with an inexorable feeling of sadness.

It seemed to Cary there was nothing either of them could do about it. She was free—free to say to him "I love you too, Tony," but beyond that they could go no farther. A wall arose between them that she knew instinctively was not of Lucrècia's building. Lucrècia was only a part of the difficulty—a small, selfish, beautiful part, intent upon having her way or ruining the way of others.

But besides Lucrècia, an unwelcome finger pointed back to the day when somewhere David Garth found a fourteen-year-old boy and took his home with him and said, "From now on, Anthony, you are my son and I'm your father."

This had brought bitter unhappiness to Lucrècia. It was the thing that now threatened Cary's happiness.

Cary was out of bed before daylight the next morning. She scarcely touched her breakfast and soon was in her travel topper and a light-weight coat.

Ivy turned over in bed, yawned and said, "Must you be up at this awful hour, darling?" Cary said in a guarded voice, "I'll be back as soon as I can. Keep Lucrècia here until then will you?"

"H-m-m-m. I'll do my best," Ivy promised. Cary went out quietly. Her mother's closed door worried her. The gold hands of Cary's dressing table clock had pointed to two A. M. when Lucrècia came in and Cary had found no comfort in her own thoughts about her mother and Jim. Lucrècia knew how to punish her daughter.

When Cary reached the track, streamers of mist still hung about the tops of the eucalyptus trees beyond the infield. The sun was just touching the observatory tower on Mt. Wilson, making it look like a rounded, white sentinel standing guard over the morning-shadowed hills of the old Lucky Baldwin Ranch.

Men and horses moved about in the gray light. There were terse, quick orders. Heavy work saddles creaked and gravel rasped under steel-plated hooves.

MALPEQUE W. I. The Malpeque W. I. met in the Institute room on Thursday evening May 13th for their regular meeting. President Mrs. Charles Lockhart presided and the meeting opened by singing Ode and repeating Creed in unison.

Nutt, Sick and school committees gave their reports and several letters of correspondence were read and different items of business were discussed. It was unanimously decided to donate an outfit for a little girl of 4 years to be displayed at the Annual District Convention. It was also decided to donate a quilt to send to a Military Hospital in Newfoundland and plans for making quilts were discussed. As there were no further business the singing of the National Anthem brought the meeting to a close. A generous silver collection was taken.

POST NUPITAL SHOWER A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Keenan, Murray River on Monday, April 17th, when a large number of young people assembled to tender a miscellaneous shower in honor of their daughter, Yvonne, who was recently married to AB J. H. Cameron of Charlottetown.

The bride gracefully acknowledged the lovely gifts, which included a beautiful satin bedspread from the Young People's Society of which the bride is a valued member. The evening was passed merrily by playing games and singing. Refreshments were served and a pleasant evening came to a close, all joining in the very best wishes for the happiness of this popular young couple.

TRANS CANADA AIRLINES SUBSCRIBES TO VICTORY LOAN WINNIPEG, Man. May 22—According to final figures made public yesterday, employees of Trans-Canada Air Lines subscribed $100,000 to the Fourth Victory Loan. This was double the amount they contributed in the third loan campaign. There were 1357 subscribers throughout the system.

Royal Edward Chapter

I. O. D. E. Adopt The "Fairmile"

Royal Edward Chapter I. O. D. E. have adopted the "Fairmile"—H. M. L. 090. Following letter has been received from the Commanding Officer:—

H. M. C. M. L.—090 Halifax, N. S. Dear Madam:—It is indeed very kind of you and all your chapter to take such an interest in our ship and such a personal interest in the men. I hope we are lucky enough to put into Charlottetown some day so that we may ask you on board to thank you personally.

I am sending you a list of things that sailors always need but some they never think to get them, and also because the chances of getting shopping done are few and far between. Included on the list are items that are slightly imposing and you think best. Here is our list: Cards, Handkerchiefs, Pillowslips, Phonograph, Electric Toaster, Electric Iron, 2 lute mats, 2 x 1 1/2, 3 plainly covered pillows.

I hope it is not too much of a shocker. Enclosed is a small picture of the ship. As soon as possible I will send you a picture of the ship's company. As you will notice from westerners. We have told them about your adoption, and I have no doubt that there will be some letters from them soon.

If there is a chance to give some leave, I will tell some of the aids who are not able to go home about your very kind suggestion. I've heard that E. E. is a lovely place, quite like Vancouver. I'm in fact, and am anxious to take my little ship there.

The box your send has not yet arrived but there is a good deal of pleasure caused all around by the knowledge that it is on the way, we will get you know as soon as it comes.

Thanking you so much again for your great kindness and also our thanks to all the members of your Chapter. Yours very sincerely CRAIG CAMPBELL, Lieut. R. C. N. V. R. M. L. 090

IN MEMORIAM

REV. ALLISTER MURRAY

There passed away to his eternal rest and well earned reward, on Thursday, May 8th, at the Valley Hospital, Paris, Ontario, after an illness bravely borne, the Reverend Allister Murray. He was born at Shortway, Rosshire, Scotland, in the year 1866. Early in life he determined to dedicate himself to the furtherance of the Gospel, wherever God in his wisdom might please to use him; and, after some years in study in the city of Glasgow, he came to Canada in 1891. Here he resumed his divinity course in Manitoba College of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, and after his graduation there, spent seven strenuous years of pioneer work amongst the widely scattered Scottish settlements of Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Having been induced to come to eastern Canada, he held pastorates at Middle River and South St. Anne's in Cape Breton, Nova Scotia. From there he was called to Milan, Quebec, where for seven years he spent a fruitful ministry. The last five years of his active work were given to Galedonia, one of the most important charges in the Presbytery of Prince Edward Island. Mr. Murray had all the winning gifts of character which mark the bred and born Highlander. His work was always done with zeal and earnestness, and the proclamation of the Gospel was with him a passion. The memory that will endure with those who came under his spiritual care, will be his memorable sermons in Gaelic language, and particularly the sacramental services conducted by him in that ancient tongue, and in the fashion of their forefathers. He is survived by his widow, now resident at "Penmark", Paris, Ontario, one daughter, Mrs. T. J. Watson, wife of the minister of New St. Ontario, three sisters, and one brother in South Africa. The funeral was held in London, Ontario, on Saturday, May 8th, the services being conducted by the Rev. John Fleck, moderator of the Presbytery of London, the Rev. Dr. J. McNair, Rev. Samuel Parker, District Chaplain of the 1st Military District, interment taking place in the London Cemetery.

FIRE THREAT INCREASES
