Fine Underworld Film At The Prince Edward

Gangland was never before depicted on the screen so cleverly, realistically and entertainingly as it is in "Born Reckless," the Fox Movietone feature with Edmund Lowe as "Louis Beretti" which opened at the Prince Edward Theatre yesterday.

Aside from a brief interlude overseas during the war, most of the story's action takes place in and around New York. Lowe, the gang leader, grows prosperous with a string of speakeasies and turns control of his followers over to his boss pal, Big Shot, retaining little connection with his former organization. Big Shot, however, gets "sent up" on a felony charge and before he leaves for prison, manages to kill the informer in the gang, who has betrayed him. On his return the gang decide to stage a kidnapping to put Big Shot on his feet again. All would be well had the kidnappers not selected the child of Lowe's hopeless love, a former society girl and a sister of his wartime buddy, who was killed in action. How Lowe regains the child, battles his one time allies in their reprisals, and finally has to shoot it out with his lifelong friend, "Big Shot," compose an ending that for dramatic intensity has seldom been equalled.

Lowe is superb in his sincere and convincing portrayal of the leading role, and Catherine Dale Owen is both lovely and effective as the society girl. The other featured players are Lee Tracy, Marguerite Churchill, Warren Hymer, William Harrigan, and Frank Albertson, with Paul Page, Roy Stewart, Ben Bard, Mike Donlin, Yola D'Avril, Paul Porcasi, Ferike Boros, and other favorites in the supporting roles.

EXHIBITION AT SOURIS

With a locale in the mining region of Mexico, where "bad-men" of the most desperate type seek to outwit and overthrow the son of an American mine owner, portrayed by Steele, "Headin' For Danger" touches the high spots of suspense and absorbing interest.

Jola Mendez, who appeared in support of Steele, also deserves high praise for her artistry in a role that involves much dramatic action, as well as expert riding and not a few breath-taking adventures. The other members of the cast, including Al Ferguson, Tom Forman, Frank Rice and Harry DeRay, are exceptionally capable and Robert N. Bradbury's direction provides a wealth of the sort of realism for which this director has become noted.

Both in attendance and quantity and quality of exhibits inside and outside the main building the Eastern King's exhibition at Souris Wednesday was pronounced success.

The attendance exceeded any previous year and the quality of the exhibits was very fine. The ladies home work department which includes fancy work and home cooking and preserving attracted considerable attention and many favorable comments were heard from the visitors.

The flower class was also well filled and here was also seen a remarkably fine display. Roots and vegetables shown were far superior to any ever shown at an exhibition here. There was a fine showing of prime butter with a small number of factory cheese.

His Honor Lieutenant Governor P. R. Heartz officially opened the exhibition at 12 o'clock noon.

Mr. A. F. Peters, president of the Exhibition Association after a few preliminary remarks introduced His Honor who during the course of his remarks stated it was a great pleasure for him to again open this exhibition in Souris. He recalled the fact that his first official duty he performed after being appointed lieutenant governor in 1924 was to open the Souris exhibition. He thought it proper and fitting that his last official duty would be the opening of the Souris Exhibition of 1930. He reminded his audience that his connection with Souris was not confined entirely to opening exhibitions, as a number of years ago he had resided for five years in Souris. He told of what great benefit and profitable experiences his connection with that section of the Island had been to him in after life. He said that Providence had again bestowed many blessings on this province in the form of good crops and compared the conditions here with other parts of the world. His Honor touched briefly on the very excellent appearances of the farms, farm buildings, fences and landscape improvements which the farmers had made on their property during the last few years and told of the many favorable comments made by important visitors whom he had the privilege of escorting at various times through out the province. He congratulated the management upon the excellence of this year's exhibition and expressed his appreciation of the outstanding qualities of the exhibition held at Georgetown last week. His Honor addressed the children of The Convent and the public school who were assembled in the main building and stressed the point of their importance as citizens of the British Empire. At the request of Capt. Curtis of H.M.S. "Wisteria" who accompanied His Honor, the latter granted all the school children a holiday. The granting of this favor was received by applause and cheers by the children.

Hon. W. M. Lea congratulated the exhibitors on the excellent quality of their exhibits a great improvement over last year. He emphasized the value of keeping live stock and pointed out the spread between the cost of feed this year and other years was the basis to figure the profit of feeding hogs and showed that even beef and pork though they might not be bringing as high a price this year as last the margin of profit over cost of production might be about the same.

Mr. J. W. Boulter spoke of the reduced estimated yield of potatoes and stated he could see no reason why the price should not materially advance. The economic conditions might be a hindrance to high prices but with the present forecast of the

COLD CARGOES

It is the most instantaneous of all methods and is, therefore, practicable for the delicate tissues of fish. Most of the Newfoundland salmon pack is now brine frozen. Each individual salmon is wrapped in a small watertight bag, and dropped into a tank containing brine at a temperature of over 40 deg. F. below freezing point. The salmon is frozen through in a flash, for the cold is so great that if a man fell in he would be killed in a couple of minutes.

The mechanical side of this intricate science has reached a point where minor improvements rather than revolutionary changes are the goal. Such new departures as "gas storage" offer strongest grounds for hope. It is to the biological side that we must look for future developments of real importance, and in the laboratories at Cambridge, East Melling, and elsewhere a new science of biological refrigeration takes place.

yield in Canada and the United States it is hoped the price would increase considerably. Mr. Boulter also explained that the turnip market had been overloaded resulting in very low prices which would likely continue as long as the weather remains as warm as at present.

Dr. J. A. Clark of the experimental station commended the excellent quality of the vegetables. He had not completed judging but the exhibits of tomatoes and corn were among the best he had ever seen—as near perfect as they could be.

Mr. S. G. Peppin, seed inspector, made a few remarks directing attention to the exhibit his department was showing for educational purposes.
