MEN ONCE TRAPPED BY OTHER WOMEN FEAR BEING EXPOSED

So They Keep On With Their Clandestine Affairs, Hoping That They Can Escape The Disgrace Of Divorce

Dear Miss Dix—I had thought that my husband and I were unusually happily mated, but now after 23 years together he is in love with her, or in another woman. I don't know whether he is in love with her, or in another woman. I don't know whether he is in love with her, or in another woman.

Yes, dear lady, there is no kind of folly that a man can't commit about a woman and in a park at night, he can't get himself into a mess that he can't get himself out of. There is no other human being of whom he can be so much afraid.

My guess is that that is just the case with your husband. At middle age he heard that last call to the dining car and in a panic at thinking that youth and romance and adventure were about to leave him, he hopped aboard not thinking even so still care so much for him that I know I should be more miserably away from him than I am with him.

Setting Her Lure
But it didn't turn out as innocently and harmlessly as he expected. There was a good-looking woman passenger who was his fellow traveler. He looked her over and he seemed prosperous and ready for a fling and oh, well it is the same old story you have heard thousands of times.

The man was a little tired of domesticity. He had worked hard all of his life and never taken any domestic as the husband of a woman who has a little caviar and butter to his wife and children, but suddenly home-made bread and butter were a little more to him than he wanted and he thought he would just have a bite and then go back to Maria and the kids and no harm would come of it.

But the lady thought otherwise, and when he wanted to return to the bosom of his family, she held on to him with both hands. She threatened scandal, the breaking up of his home, and the man discovered that he was in a bad fix.

Dear Miss Dix—I fell in love with a young girl, but after going with him for some time I have found out that he is married. He says that he isn't living with his wife and that the reason he didn't tell me he was married was because he knew I wouldn't go with him if I knew he had a wife. Do you think I am doing wrong in going with him?
A GIRL.

I think you are being very foolish because you are letting a man who can't marry you monopolize your affections and keep you from other attentions from men who could marry you.

Tell this young man to keep away from you until he has gotten a divorce and can court you honorably. He has already shown you that he is not to be trusted, so he is a bad risk any way you look at it.
DOROTHY DIX.

One fabric from Britain that is 100 per cent cashmere is offered in fine diagonal weaves. It may be had in one color, such as tan, or in two-color effects. The combinations of color in the two-tone effects are very soft and subtle. A typical one combines very pale green, blue, and light yellowish green. This soft-handling smooth-fabric cashmere cloth weighs between 11 and 12 ounces.

DIAMONDS WORN AGAINST SUNTAN LOOK THEIR BEST
The time to wear diamonds is in early autumn, so that the contrast of chalk white evening gown with brown skin gives the diamond its greatest value.

A gold necklace high-lighted with diamonds, a large diamond-studded floral clip, gold knotted earrings with a diamond in the center of the design, a diamond bangle, as big as you can wangle, with a saltire diamond ring—would be something.

Many women could manage this ensemble.

A two-tone gold necklace, earrings which are more gold than diamonds, are not prohibitive. Diamonds may have a beautifully worked plaque, diamond studs or it also may be a floral arrangement picked up by round and baguette diamonds. A ring may be greatly enlarged by careful setting and the use of baguette diamonds to give the illusion of greater size.

Take all the jewels you have down to your jeweler and see what he can do in the way of new lapel pin—bold, arresting, highly decorative. It will look very smart on the lapel of your suit or fur coat, and equally well on your formal evening tulle. Diamonds, rubies, emeralds and pearls may all be used together in the ornamental manner.

Household Fly Disease Carrier

The common housefly is notorious for the part it plays in spreading dangerous diseases, such as typhoid, cholera, diarrhoea, tuberculosis, to health because it breeds in filth and may pass directly to food, particles of decaying organic matter, or other living organisms, to its hairy legs and body, and sticky feet and mouth parts. It is computed that one fly may carry as many as 1,000,000 germs, and that female housefly may become a great grandmother in 60 days, laying about 2,700 eggs during a lifetime of three months.

Houseflies are particularly dangerous during warm weather, when they are most numerous. The most effective method of controlling them consists in eliminating and purging, except breeding places by properly treating or disposing of manure and garbage in the cities, garbage is an important factor in fly production. Control measures to be fully effective should be organized on a community basis, because one neglected garbage dump or manure heap may infest a whole neighborhood. Collections of manure should be removed from city streets and disposed of at least twice weekly.

In rural sections, where practicable, the manure should be removed daily and spread thinly on fields after the drying effect of sun and wind will prevent breeding. An alternate method consists of taking advantage of heat produced by fermentation when manure is placed in tightly packed piles. The heat produced by fermentation destroys all fly eggs, larvae and pupae, except perhaps those close to the surface of top layer. The application with water can or sprayer of a solution of borax consisting of one pound of borax to six gallons of water will destroy any fly stages in the top layer of the packed manure. Further information on the control of flies and other household insects may be obtained from the "Sanitary and Domestication Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa."

How insignificant a newcomer at a club can feel, watching the members who run things. Conducting a meeting, escorting a speaker, they seem so poised.

You're apt to forget they were once new members, too. Learn something of club organization and etiquette as they did and you also will win favorable notice, even in your freshman role.

For instance, wait for the chairman's permission before you speak in meetings; don't move about the room when someone has the floor. Club posts are given to those who show themselves ready. So don't let bids catch you unprepared, weakly saying, "I wouldn't know what to do!"

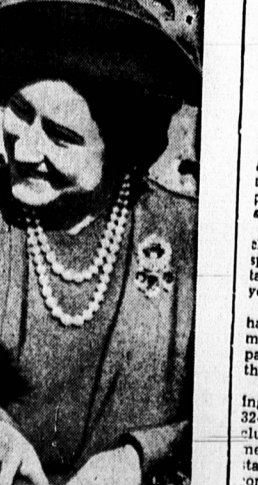

If you are on the committee chosen to escort an out-of-town speaker, meet her at the train and take her to her hotel, at which you've made advance reservations. Perhaps you are asked to handle the publicity for a money-making affair. Send stories to papers well in advance and send them often!

Could you ever conduct a meeting, be president? Of course. Our club booklet explains in detail members' duties of officers. Start a club, write a constitution and conduct meetings. Gives successful hints for raising money.

War Seemed Far Away Before Canadian Tour

War was still a black cloud looming in the distance when this picture of the royal family were taken in Buckingham Palace grounds. It was just before the visit of their majesties to Canada, and with the two princesses they are shown. Today the war, which then seemed unthinkable has been brought to the P-lace gardens, where a 250-pound bomb exploded, Sept. 10, and smashed 100 windows in the north
