

Impaired Digestion

May not be all that is meant by dyspepsia now, but it will be neglected. The uneasiness after eating, fits of nervous headache, sourness of the stomach, and disagreeable belching may not be very bad now, but they will be if the stomach is suffered to grow weaker. Dyspepsia is such a miserable disease that the tendency to it should be given early attention. This is completely overcome by

Hood's Sarsaparilla which strengthens the whole digestive system

DEATH has again visited the family of Angus Darragh of Dunedin on Sept. 10 and taking from the home, Malcolm S. aged 33 years. Although being in ill health for some time it was not realized that the end was so near until Thursday morning when he began to sink and in a few hours his spirit had taken its flight to that better world. Mack as he was called was possessed of a happy, cheerful disposition, always having a kind sympathetic and helpful word for all who needed it. His trust in his Saviour was unclouded to the last, and he went down into the valley of death leaning on his rod and staff. He leaves, besides a sorrowing father and mother, two brothers, John and Hector, and one sister Mrs. Daniel Frizell of Cornwall, who have the sympathy of all in their sad bereavement. The funeral service was a most impressive one which was conducted by the Rev. Mr. McLeod who spoke from the words, "As for man his days are as grass, as a flower of the field so he flourisheth, for the wind passeth over it and it is gone, but the word of the Lord is from everlasting to everlasting."

How slender is life's silver cord! How soon it's broken here; Each moment brings a parting word And many a falling tear, And though these years, to mortals given, Are filled with grief and pain, There is a hope—the hope of heaven Where loved ones meet again.

THERE are three ways of spreading news, telephone, telegraph, tell a woman—and it is the fair ones that are spreading the glad tidings—about the perfect fit and unsurpassed wear of the Duchess faced boot.—Ames Holden & Co.

INCREASING THE OUTPUT.

It will not be long until Manitoba and the Northwest Territories produce sufficient grain to supply the wants of Great Britain and Ireland, and if the customs duties were sufficiently lowered they would probably capture the markets of the United States. Canada has a great future as a flour-producing country, and incidentally it may be mentioned that Ogilvie's Flour is the leading bread-maker in the flour world to-day.
