B.: "For several years I have had kidney trouble," says Mr. Olive, "until quite recently I suffered torture. A few months ago my condition assumed a very serious form. I consulted several city doctors, used different pills, but without the slightest benefit. I suffered from an intense pain in the groin, and the increasing seriousness of my trouble prompted me to try Ferrozone. It gave me quick relief, and half a dozen boxes cured. Ferrozone I can recommend as a specific for diseased kidneys."—Chas. F. Olive.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

LESSON XII, FOURTH QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, DEC. 20.

Text of the Lesson, I Kings x, 1-1 and Matt. ii, 1-12—Memory Verses, I Kings x, 6-9; Matt. ii, 10-11—Golden Texts, Prov. xxix, 2, and Matt. x 21—Commentary Prepared by Rev D. M. Stearns.

(Copyright, 1903, by American Press Association.)

As we have a choice of lessons for this week, or, better still, two good lessons which nicely run together, we propose giving a summary of each. In each lesson we see the great ones of earth coming from far countries to worship the Lord, the King of Israel and to bring Him gifts, pointing us on ward to the time when Isa. lx, 1-3, 10 11, and the whole chapter as well as all the prophecies concerning Israel's future glory shall be fulfilled in the Son of David, the Son of Abraham.

As to the lesson in I Kings x, concerning the queen of Sheba, the fact that this visit is fully recorded both here and in II Chron. ix, and that our Lord Jesus Himself referred to (Matt. xii, 42) marks it as an event of more than ordinary importance, and our Lord's reference to it points to time and fulfillment yet future. It was not the fame of Solomon, but the fame of Solomon concerning the name of the Lord, that led her to visit Jerusalem and she looked upon Solomon as king for the Lord his God, sitting on His throne (II Chron. ix, 8). She brought much gold and precious stones and abundance of spices, but King Solomon gave her all her desire, whatsoever she asked, in addition to that which he gave her of his royal bounty. She also commended with him of all that was in her heart, and by his God given wisdom he told her all her questions. She came laden with presents for the famed king and possibly thinking a good deal of herself, but she confessed that the half of his glory had not been told her, and she returned to her own land emptied of self and laden with his favors. A sight of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ will effectually blind us as to the importance of self and the attractiveness of this present world. See Acts vii, 1-5; xxvi, 12 20; Job xiii, 5, 6; Isa. vi, 5; Dan. x, 8.

When His word is our guide, His glory our aim, His will our delight, Him self our all in all, we shall be blind to all else. In her own land she had heard of Solomon and of the Lord his God (verse 6); therefore some one must have borne witness, and, although she did not believe all she had heard, yet she believed enough to make her wish to see for herself. As truly as Israel was chosen to make Jehovah a name (I Chron. xvii, 21; Isa. xlii, 12, 14), we who are the redeemed of the Lord to day have been chosen to show forth the praises of Him who hath called us out of darkness into His marvelous light (I Pet. ii, 9), and He Himself has told us to let our light so shine before men that they may see our good works and glorify our Father which is in heaven (Matt. v, 16). Many among the heathen who for the first time hear of the love of God and of the redemption that is in Christ Jesus for them ask, "How long have you known this?" "Why did you not come and tell us sooner that our fathers might have heard it?" "How can people believe in Him of whom they have not heard?" (Rom. x 14.) What shall we say at the judgment seat of Christ concerning our unfaithfulness to the trust committed to us to proclaim repentance and remission of sins in His name among all nations? (Luke xxiv, 46-48.)

Concerning the Christmas lesson in Matt. ii, 1-12, and the familiar story of the wise men who came from the east to see and worship the King of the Jews, how few among believers ever think of Him or speak of Him as the one who is yet to rule God's people Israel (Verse 6.) The words in Isa. lx 6, 7, "Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given," are so familiar and so much said and sung at the Christmas time, but shall we hear anything of the rest of the passage, of the throne of David and of Christ as sitting upon it and of the government that shall be upon His shoulder and of the peace when He shall reign? (Luke i, 32, 33; Isa. xxxiii, 1, 17.) If not, are we faithful teachers, or do we shun to declare the whole counsel of God because perchance it might offend some? We may have to wait until "the morning" to know all we would like to about these wise men—who they were, how many there were, what they knew about the King of the Jews and how they knew, what land they came from, what was the effect of their tidings upon their countrymen when they returned, etc.—but they make us think of Ps. lxxii, 10, 11; Jer. iii, 17, 18; Zech. xiv, 16, as well as Isa. lx.

That Herod and all Jerusalem should be troubled because of Him makes us think of Rev. vi, 15-17, when kings and mighty men and all, great or small, shall be so troubled that they shall cry to mountains and rocks to crush them because of the wrath of the Lamb. According to the custom of our time, these men should have given gifts the one to the other when they saw the child, but instead of that they gave all to Him.

We have neither learned nor taught the Christmas lesson or any other lesson aright unless we have each for ourselves come to Him, accepting Him as our own personal Saviour and bringing to Him all we are and have as a glad thank offering that He may use us and it to make His name known to others. It was the star that led them from the east, and it looks as if they lost sight of it when they turned aside to Herod, but God graciously restored the star to them and led them to the child. Happy are those who turn not aside from following Him (Heb. xii, 1, 2; Ps. lxxii, 8).
