

What a Life!

The girls didn't go for this soldier on leave in spite of the stripe he had on his sleeve. It's all because he has ways he should mend— He has to perspire, but he need not offend.

CRANBERRY CULTURE

(Experimental Farms News) Cranberry bogging is being recognized by the growers of the cranberry crop throughout Eastern Canada. W. L. E. L. Eaton, Assistant in Cranberry Investigations, Experimental Station, Kentville, N. S., says that the high acre cost of grading, turving, ditching, and sanding annual crops are necessary, if reasonable returns for labor and capital are to be assured. On many of the older bogs, winter flooding only was provided and the season of 1942 has again shown that this is not enough. The early advance of spring brought cranberries forward just as it did fruit trees and other crops, and the severe spring frosts which followed have reduced cranberry yields on these unprotected bogs in some cases as much as ninety per cent. On the other hand, the bogs where water was available for frost protection have a full stand of bloom and fine clear weather throughout the blooming period has been ideal for pollination.

DULL AND SHINY FABRICS COMBINED

New York—The combination of dull and shiny-faced fabrics is a revival. Velvet and wool, satin and crepes will be seen over and over again in numberless combinations. The young will take their viclets in corduroy and velveteen, especially in campus clothes. Jersey is too practical to ignore, and adaptable to the most practical of new dresses, one inspired from a coat. It buttons all the way down the front, has pockets and well-tailored lines.

WOULD SERVE TEA

Tea will vie with more potent beverages at the bars of bars in Plymouth, England, if the chief constable has his way. He has warned innkeepers against restricting the number of customers by locking doors when there is a shortage of supplies. "Licenses," he said, "can cater for the public in providing tea, etc., which would be useful owing to limited resources."
