THE MORNING GUARDIAN

TUESDAY SEPT. 15, 1903.

THE ALASKAN BOUNDARY.

The big legal fight which is to take place over the Alaskan boundary question will undoubtedly resolve itself into a consideration of the definition of the strip of land along the coast claimed by the United States. The other questions at issue in this dispute are comparatively of minor importance.

This is the richest "because" we ever heard of in jurisprudence. It may be said that we are commenting upon matters which are subjudice with wiser heads than ours as the judges. It is not so.

Reports of Russia and Japan having come to an understanding with regard to Manchuria and Corea may have good foundation, although Japan knows by this time exactly how far to trust Russia's covenants, that is just as far as she herself can enforce them.

JUST IN TIME.

A motorman in Chicago ran his car into the approach of an open bridge but stopped it with the fender actually overhanging the gulf below. He wouldn't want to repeat the experiment because the chances are that he'd never again have the same good fortune.
