Workmen's Compensation Acts in other Provinces and Newfoundland are being studied by the Provincial Government with a view to framing an Act for this Province to be introduced at the opening session of the Legislature, Premier J. Walter Jones stated last evening. The Legislature opens on Feb. 22.

It is hoped to extend the benefits of the Act to practically all classes of urban employees, including civil servants, the Premier said. The legislation will require to be adapted to the peculiar situation of the Province, with its comparatively large rural population.

It is proposed, if the legislation goes through, to start with a small office staff and to keep overhead costs within the minimum of efficient administration.

Another proposal that is being studied to link up the Provincial administration with the New Brunswick Workmen's Compensation Board in order to effect a further saving, while at the same time insuring that the money will not be sent out of this Province, but will be re-invested in provincial securities.

Requests for a Workmen's Compensation Act have been before the Provincial Government for several years. In principle it has been endorsed by both parties in the Legislature, and it is expected that discussion on the Bill when it is introduced will be confined chiefly to methods of procedure.
