COURTESY IN THE STREET CAR.

Something of a Reversal of the General Rule.

"Do you suppose that's an effect of the recent agitation of women's rights?" asked the man, indicating with a nod of his head a scene that was taking place in an "L" car in the homeward rush. His companion looked and saw a slender, handsomely gowned woman offer her seat to a young man who, in the crush, was standing in front of her and was carrying an armful of large, heavy books.

The young man looked rather embarrassed and bravely declined with a pleasant little smile, which was all he could accomplish in lieu of raising his hat with his heavily incumbered hands.

"Well, then," said the lady composedly, resuming her seat, "let me hold the books in my lap."

"That would certainly be kind, if you don't mind," consented the youth, relinquishing his load; and when the lady reached her station, leaving her seat to him, he thanked her for her thoughtfulness with fully as much gratitude as a woman would have expressed for a similar courtesy from a man—perhaps with more appreciation, the experience being more rare.

AT HARVARD FIFTY YEARS AGO.

N. S. Shaler Tells Us of the Life of a Senior.

He was a senior in Harvard college and had a well-deserved name for scholarship in the classics, as well as for a miscellaneous assortment of talents and knowledge. He was reputed to be the best player of the game of checkers in the country; knew the political history of the United States amazingly well; was learned in pugilism, having at his tongue's end the story of all the prize-fights of recent times; withal he was the merriest little man I ever seen. I well recall my first morning with him, when, after going over the best of what I could and could not do, he asked me if I could box. I pleaded guilty to some knowledge of that ignoble art. At that time I had not learned of his interest in it, and thought that I would be lowered in his eyes by the confession. To my surprise, indeed to my horror, for I had a swordsman's contempt for the business, he insisted on my having a bout with him at once.—N. S. Shaler's Autobiography, in the Atlantic.

Two Marks of Beauty.

Beautiful eyes and brows are, in one sense, a special gift of nature. Many a plain woman is redeemed by fine eyes; many a pretty face spoiled by red-rimmed, dull, lusterless eyes. But at the same time a great deal may be done to make even unpromising eyes clear and attractive, to render eyes which are only passably pretty really beautiful.

Attention to the general health will go far to make the eyes clear and bright and prevent fatigue, even when they are called upon to do a great deal of work.

Have you never noticed the dull eyes of a person afflicted with dyspepsia, the yellow tinge of overfeeding and neglected liver; the lusterless eyes of the woman who sleeps in an ill-ventilated room, who takes no exercise and spends all her spare time reading novels over the fire?

A Proven Success
No Honing—No Stropping

King C. Gillette experimented for fifteen years before he perfected the Safety Razor which bears his name.

But—when he did put this razor on the market, it was mechanically perfect—because the principle was right.

Above, we show the "GILLETTE" Standard Set in handsome leather velvet-lined case, which sells the world over for $5.

Gillette signs are displayed by the dealers handling the razor.
