

A Great COMPLIMENT

YEARS ago the families of this Province paid chain stores a great compliment. They said: "We like your way of buying direct from producers. It makes sense to cut out wasteful in-between handling charges. Your practice of passing the savings thus made on to customers in the form of lower prices appeals to our Scotch thrift. We like to live well, yet great distances and a small, scattered population make many of the best and newest things in life prohibitive in cost unless you undertake to distribute them for us the modern, straight-line chain store way."

Because chain stores have succeeded in bringing you the kind of up-to-the-minute, quality merchandise you want, at prices you can afford to pay, you have kept asking for more such stores; and the number has gradually increased to meet your needs.

In a Province famed for its gracious hospitality and the thrift and intelligence of its citizens, it is indeed a tribute to be preferred by the buying public. You may depend on your local chain stores to continue making more of the good things of life ever more easily available to you.

Remember, every chain store in your community grew to order. It is there because you and your neighbor found it useful.

THINKING NEEDED WITH STAGE PLAY

NEW YORK, April 12.—(CP)—Edward Barrymore playing the lead in "Whiteoaks" by Maso de la Roche, the Canadian author, was interviewed by the Herald-Tribune: "It was my brother Lionel who first spoke to me about the play as a possibility," she said. "It has had a very long run in London and he read 'Jaina' or 'Whiteoaks of Jaina' out. I got both books and enjoyed them."

"I didn't pass any time preparing for the part. Before rehearsals started, I don't believe in that. Three weeks of rehearsals are enough, except perhaps for thinking beforehand. Thinking, thinking—that is what acting is all about. It is the only thing in acting."

"It was really in Montreal that I acted for the first time," Miss Barrymore recalled. "The play was 'The Eveals' with grandmother (Mrs. Drew) as Mrs. Malaprop. I was Julia and my aunt, Mrs. Sidney Drew (Gladys Rankin) was Lydia Langgish."

Combining Flowers And Vegetables

There are more delights in the vegetable patch than are appreciated in the dining room; as much fun growing your own beans as your own bouquets.

To get the full pleasures from vegetable growing, consider how beautiful the garden can be made, and how decorative in form and color are carrot tops, spinach leaves, the slender green onion and the fruits of the squash pumpkin and egg plants.

The cucumber vine is a fit background on a fence for the gladioli, and a row of leaf lettuce, with its delicate shades of green, has a beauty which many flowering plants cannot equal.

Combining flowers and vegetables in the garden is a hobby with advantages which few other hobbies have—it gives great satisfaction to the grower and at the same time provides the finest quality and most healthful food.

A BORDER OF FLOWERS ABOUT THE VEGETABLE PATCH WILL FURNISH CUTTING MATERIAL FOR MOST OF THE SUMMER.

The idea of flowers and vegetables can be carried out in many ways. The simplest and least expensive is to make a border of one or more rows of flowers. This border may entirely or only partly surround the plot, depending upon the quality desired. Where more flowers are wanted, the border may be used and flowers also planted in rows with or between the vegetables. The surprising thing about such a layout is that the vegetables themselves, if cultivated cleanly, are as attractive as the flowers. Many gardeners whose space is limited, confine much of their gardening efforts to the vegetable plot.

Where space is available, real landscape planning may go into the vegetable patch. A fence, with an arbor gate for vines or climbing roses will segregate this part of your garden from the ornamental garden and at the same time frame it in such a manner that it may be built into a picture in its own way. The vegetables may be divided into four sections, with paths bordered by yucca, lobelia, petunias, dwarf marigolds or other annuals. A bird bath or sundial in the center where the paths meet makes a good focal point. The back of the lot may have a lattice fence or shrubs or a border of tall annuals such as African marigolds, cosmos or sunflowers.

Consider your vegetable garden seriously when you lay it out this year, and you can make it pleasant

Don't pass up a garden because you have but a small space of ground, or because you think the soil is too poor. Any small area will raise something, even if only a bit of lettuce and radishes, and by following one crop with another you can have a whole season's supply.

Here is an interesting glimpse into the quarters of one of the largest machines of the Royal Air Force. At first glance it suggests the intricate mechanism of a submarine. The radio operator is seen seated on the left with his receiving and transmitting controls placed directly before him, while on the right is the reserve pilot busily engaged at his navigation and chart table checking up the exact position of the plane. Space for movement is restricted by the mass of specialized control mechanism.
