Tully, in London, Admiral Meurer, who commanded the surrendering German fleet, said to Admiral Beatty: "You understand we are driven to this. There is no child life left in Germany. All are dying of hunger. We ask you to accept the full crews instead of only half the personnel. We cannot feed them, and we dread more trouble." Admiral Beatty refused this request whereupon the German Admiral produced a document for Beatty to sign, stipulating that the German crews would not be ill-treated. STANDARD EFFICIENCY TRAINING COURSE

Campaign Inaugurated at Large and Representative Meeting Last Night.

The first of a series of conferences in connection with the Canadian Standard Efficiency training course for mentors was held last night in the Y. M. C. A. hall. There was a large attendance, the different congregations in the city being well represented. The proceedings began with a sumptuous supper served by the young ladies of St. James Church and which was done full justice to by all. Consul Pierce was called upon by the Chairman, Mr. W. A. Stewart. The Consul after a humorous introduction in which he disclaimed any right to speak with authority on the training of boys as his own five sons were yet in their childhood and their future unknown, gave one of his very best addresses. There were no bounds to the possibilities of boy life, and boy life is pretty much alike the world over. He had seen boys of all nationalities, had seen them at work and at play and he had admired the readiness with which boys of alien races adapted themselves to the games and the methods of the western nations. The instinctive enthusiasm and energy of boy life was the same everywhere. How to control and mould this energy was the problem of the future of this Canada of ours and of civilization depended. He had received the other day a letter from a young man whom he had known in Summerside a few years ago. He was now serving at the front and the greater part of his letter was devoted to a recital of what the Y. M. C. A. was doing in moulding the lives and safeguarding the morals of the young men of the Army. The speaker here emphasized the great work being done throughout Canada and the United States by this organization. There was much to be done and it was not to be done by talking and lecturing but by doing. If he were preaching a sermon, he said, he would take as his text St. Paul's injunction "Be ye Doers." In connection with the programme mapped out for the present winter he urged upon all, fathers especially, to be doers, to use their influence and to give their sympathies towards helping to train the boys for useful citizenship. He spoke of the great possibilities of Canada. "What," he asked, "are you going to do with this great Canada?" You do not hold this vast territory in fee simple merely

STEAMER RANGER HERE FROM NEWFOUNDLAND

The steamer Ranger arrived in Charlottetown from St. John's, Nfld., via North Sydney yesterday morning and is now loading a cargo of 30,000 bushels of potatoes and oats by Mr. J. Stanley Wedlock for St. John's. She expects to sail Saturday. The Ranger had a very stormy passage from North Sydney, running into a regular blizzard of Cheticamp but came through it in good style. The Ranger is a very old vessel, having been built in Dundee 47 years ago. She has been in the whale and seal fishery for many years and is one of the best known vessels in Newfoundland. She is in command of Capt. Tucker and is owned by the well-known Newfoundland firm of Bowring Bros., who have a fleet of four similar vessels, the others being the Terra Nova, (of Capt. Scott and South Pole fame); the Viking and the Eagle. Since the war these vessels have all gone into the cargo-carrying business owing to the scarcity of bottoms. The Ranger is a vessel of 264 tons having both sails and steam-power. In her younger days she was square rigged but has gradually trimmed down to three plain masts. Capt. Tucker was in Charlottetown on three previous occasions—as third officer on the S. S. Stephano and as mate on the S. S. Flo riel. His present chief officer was third officer of the Florizel when she was lost off the Newfoundland coast with a loss of 94 lives, there being only 43 survivors. Captain Tucker himself just narrowly escaped going on the ill-fated ship on that occasion, being detained from going on account of having to be vaccinated. The Captain reports shipping very brisk in Newfoundland, and says that never in the history of the colony has there been as many sailing vessels on the register.
