

IN MEMORIAM

Although not unexpected, news of the death of Mr. Lorne R. Unsworth was received by citizens yesterday morning with a shock of pain. Called in his prime, in the prime of a splendid manhood, called from his wife and little children, and from a host of friends, his death is peculiarly sad. He was a man of more than ordinary physical strength, a trained athlete of only a comparatively few years ago and a winner in many a well-contested event. His winnings and his championships in the field of athletics there are many evidences in the shape of cups, medals and other trophies, but there are testimonials that will be more highly valued than these, the testimonials of those who competed with him that he was one of the "whitest men" that ever entered a contest. And as he was clean in his sports he was clean and square in the game of life, honest, manly and upright, a citizen of irreproachable character, a loving and devoted husband and father. Up to only a month ago he enjoyed apparently perfect health, when he became ill and went to the Prince Edward Island Hospital for treatment. The disease developed rapidly despite all that medical skill could do for him. Dr. Archibald, one of Montreal's most noted specialists was called in consultation but nothing could be done for him and he sank gradually till the end came. The deceased was 39 years of age. He was a son of the late Mr. Joseph Unsworth at one time Chief Superintendent of the P. E. Island Railway. For the past thirteen years he was an engineer in the Marine Service, serving on the winter steamers Stanley and Minto and latterly on the Car Ferry, Prince Edward Island. There are left to mourn his widow, formerly Miss Carrie Saunders, daughter of Mr. John Saunders, City, and four daughters; also two sisters, Mrs. Arthur W. Weeks and Mrs. C.H.B. Longworth and one brother, Mr. James Unsworth, Toronto. To the bereaved family and relatives The Guardian tenders sincere sympathy.

SEVERE ON "JAMES."
The mistress of the house entered the butler's pantry quietly. "James!" she said, severely. The butler looked up with a guilty flush. "James," she asked, "how is it that whenever I come into the pantry I find your work only half done and you lying down reading the newspaper?"

AN IRISH STORY
"As I was crossing the bridge the other day," said an Irishman. "I met Pat O'Brien. O'Brien," says I, "how are you?" "Pretty well, thank you, Brady," says he. "Brady?" says I, "that's not my name." "Faith," says he, "and mine's not O'Brien."

Canada's Food Controller
It was welcome news to the women of Canada to learn that at last this country was to have a Food Controller, and all are pleased at the choice made by the Government. Now the housewives do not imagine for a moment that there will be any immediate relief from the prevailing high prices, but with honest and thorough investigation on the part of the Controller, the housewives will know just where the responsibility rests for the great increase in prices. So many conflicting stories are told about ruined crops, speculation in commodities, hoarding of necessities, undue inflation of prices and so on down the list or up, that the ultimate consumer is at a loss to know just what to believe. Then the poor housewives are admonished from all sides to practice thrift, to waste not, when in hundreds of households the keeper of the purse is trying to solve the problem of making ends meet. However, the women all over the Dominion will lend their aid and assistance to any measures the Controller may adopt. Mr. Hoover in the States, whom Mr. Hanna, our Food Controller, is consulting, has made the statement that "Beyond public places 85 per cent. of American food is consumed in the household. The women of America thus really control America's food consumption." Now in Canada the percentage of food consumed in homes would be greater than in the States, for we are not given to dining out as much as our neighbors to the south. Continuing Mr. Hoover says: "When the women are working as hard as the men. There is no body of woman in the world so capable of rising to an emergency as American women; nor is there any problem so peculiarly capable of solution by them. For instance, every person in America who can cook bread instead of wheat bread is helping in the present wheat shortage, for the English people have never learned how, and have not the equipment to make corn bread, because they do not bake in the household at all and corn bread cannot be served from the baker. Now when the American Food Controller appeals so strongly to the women to come in and help, it is an assured fact that Mr. Hanna will do the same. So it behooves the women of the country to be ready to adopt the slogan of the women of the United States: "Get behind Hoover," "Get behind Hanna." Food administration pledges and badges have been asked for by the women, and we may be also taking the pledge to abstain from certain foods. Of one thing Mr. Hanna may be assured, and that is the loyal support of the women in the prevention of food waste and in helping in more food production.

FRANCE.
In France the fields are brown with new turned earth. The trees stand bare and gaunt before the wind. Which blows across the country, mad with mirth. With wallings to the ears of those who've sinned. The long roads reach across the furrowed ground. And silence holds the land within her spell. The creaking carts of peasants, home ward bound. Jolt towards Vendome's ringing vesper bell. A Polt in his coat, once splendid blue. Trudges to his home; returned on leave. And all seems peace and quiet. Oh! how few. Would it within this land that many grave. O France, thy strength lies not in hoars or show; But silence is thy grandeur, sure and slow. —ARTHUR'S BOURINOT, Royal Flying Corps, France.

Have you got a Kitchen Cabinet? If not come get one. Dear Mary— Until lately I'd overlooked getting a kitchen cabinet. Why, I wouldn't be without one! It takes up so little room and saves so many steps. And then there is a place for everything. By all means, Mary, get a kitchen cabinet. You'll soon save enough from waste to more than pay for it. You'll thank me for this 'tip.' As always—HELEN P. S. I got my new kitchen cabinet from Beer & Weeks.

THE PASSING OF A GREAT NATIVE SCULPTOR
Louise Philippe Hebert, C. M. G., the well-known Canadian sculptor, who died at Montreal a few days ago was born at Ste. Sophie, Megantic, Co., Que., Jan. 27, 1850. The story of his life is full of inspiration to every school boy who feels and responds to the lure of Art. Educated at the local schools, he worked as a boy on his father's farm and became at fourteen a clerk in a country store. In 1869 he went to Rome as a Pontifical Zouave and while there, apart from performing his military duties, revealed in the public monuments and numismatic artistic treasures of the ancient city. For a short time he was a prisoner of war in Rome. From his earliest years Hebert always had an inclination for carving in wood and in fact, never tired of whittling. On the suggestion of his cousin, Edward Richard, he went to Montreal, and in 1873 obtained prize bust of Barthelemy in wood. Soon after that he was taken into the atelier of Napoleon Bourassa (father of Henri Bourassa). There he spent six busy and profitable years, designing and modeling images for many of the Roman Catholic churches of the Province of Quebec. At the same time he followed the course of the Council of Arts and Manufacturers, also, reading extensively. After spending a year in study in Paris, he returned to Canada and designed the statue of De Salaberry.
